A girl who may find great happiness in marriage

A kindly nature, thoughtful, unselfish and often neglectful of her own interests; with an impressionable mind, a sensitive imagination, love of purposeful work, the habit of efficiency, and a big capacity for love and self-sacrifice; but wanting in judgment and worldly wisdom, and not strong enough to stand on her own feet. A born home-maker, and may find great happiness in marriage and a home of her own.

Bradley's for FOOTWEAR

Specially Built for feet with Enlarged Toe Joints

Here's good news for those people who, because of enlarged toe joints, can never obtain perfect ease in ordinary shoes! The first of these styles has just that extra width at the critical point which ensures a perfect fit and complete freedom of movement. The other style is equally comfortable and easy fitting, and has that same grace of line and stylish dignity.

No. 264. Ladies' very comfortable extra wide fitting One-bar Shoes with full round toes and in all Patent Calf. Black or Brown Glacé Kid, with strong, but neat Leather Soles and Cuban Leather Heels. Specially made to accommodate large toe joints. Sizes 3 to 8 and half sizes.
No. 264. Black Glacé Kid.
264b Brown Glacé.

GARDEN, FARM, BEES, ETC.

OUTSIDE TOMATOES.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times the Garden Correspondent says:—

Sturdy plants transferred to boxes early in June with a root run limited to a cubic foot of good soil for each plant placed in a sun-trapping position against walls, close fences or out-buildings, are now very promising under daily attention from the waterpot, and as soon as the sixth truss of fruit has set and is swelling, a bi-weekly watering of something a little stronger than aqua pura will be helpful. However, we find a weekly sprinkling of the seedsman's potash manure, watered in, excellent for giving firmness, flavour and colour, the deficiency of potash being the cause of poor, watery tomatoes. Each plant should now be confined to a single stem by constant pinching out of lateral growths, while a flick over the open flowers at mid-day with a rabbit's tail or feather duster results, by ensuring pollination, in a good crop.

YACHTING.

RACING ABANDONED AT COWES.

Owing to a hard westerly breeze and heavy seas running off Cowes yesterday the annual regatta of the Royal London Yacht Club was abandoned. As the breeze increased later, the sailing committee's action proved a wise decision. It would have been unfair to expect the yachts to risk their gear under such unfavourable conditions. It is more than probable, however, that the Royal London Yacht Club will give a race for the large yachts over the Cowes course on Wednesday, 9th August, the day fixed for the private match between Velsheda and Shamrock V., which figures on the programme of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club of Ryde.

THE CHANNEL RACE.

All the competitors which set out from Cowes on Friday last to sail to Havre and back are now accounted for. Spica (Mrs. and Mr. J. T. Hunt) was an easy winner, thus repeating her successes of 1932 and 1930. Altair finished the course under power and did not qualify. White Heather IV. (Mr. W. G. Watkins) secured second prize, and Dusmarie (Commander Douglas Dixon) was third. Iolaire retired and put into Dieppe. Windhover split her main sail and gave up, and Nona is reported to be at Havre. The official times of the placed boats were:—

Spica (winner), 9h. 49m. a.m., July 30.
White Heather IV. (2nd prize), 9h. 36m. 9s. p.m., July 30.
Dusmarie (3rd prize), 7h. 14m. 9s. a.m., July 31.

BOYLE SPORTS.

Dublin clubs were well represented at the Co. Roscommon Garda Divisional sports at Boyle on Sunday. M. Gregan (D.M.G.) and P. Flannelly (Castlebar) had exciting finishes in the sprint events, which Flannelly won by narrow margins. Gregan won the 440 open from a large field, and he also made a good show in the high jump. T. B. Fortune and T. Morris, of the Harps, and G. Robinson, of Ballina, had rare duels in the cycle racing. Details:—

100 Yards Flat (confined to Roscommon Gardai Division)—1, Garda P. Flynn; 2, Garda T. Ryan.

100 Yards, Open—1, P. Flannelly, Castlebar (4 yds.); 2, M. Gregan, D.M.G. A.C. (6 yds.). Won by inches.

Three Miles Cycle—1, T. Morris, Harps; 2, T. B. Fortune. Won by a wheel.

Five Miles Cycle—1, G. Robinson; 2, T. Morris. A great finish was spoiled when Morris skidded on wet track coming into the straight.

Tug-o'-War—Killaraght team defeated Boyle.

THE KILOWATT CLUB.

The third annual sports of the Kilowatt Club were held at the Clydagh Hotel, Greystones. There was a large attendance of the staff of the Electricity Supply Board from Dublin and country districts, and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent. Subsequently a dance was held in the Clydagh Hotel Pavilion. Among those present were Mr. R. F. Browne, chairman of the E.S.B., and Mrs. Browne; Dr. T. A. McLaughlin and Mr. J. M. Fay, technical directors; Mr. Weckler, chief accountant, E.S.B.; Mr. P. J. Dempsey, secretary, E.S.B.

Results were:—

100 Yards—J. P. Nugent, Civil Works Department, 1; W. C. Fitzpatrick, Department of Chief Accountant, 2.

Kilowatt Cup—J. P. Nugent.

Hahn Cup—Miss K. O'Kane.

A miniature of the Kilowatt Cup was presented to Mr. J. P. Nugent and a miniature of the Hahn Cup to Miss Honor Lambe, the winners of these trophies last year.

ANGLING.

CONNEMARA.

There were good takes of sea trout during the week ending 29th July, and a few salmon. The waters are well stocked with salmon and trout, but the salmon are very dour. There were heavy rains during the week-end, and the rivers are now in flood, which it is expected will put more vigour into the salmon. Prospects are bright, that is with ordinary favourable weather.

FOOD AND PRODUCE MARKETS.

Birkenhead—Irish Cattle prices not quotable, Lambs steady. London—Slow and prices steady. Merklands Wharf—Last week's rates maintained. Hull—Slow and downward tendency. Manchester Pig—Prices fairly steady. Birmingham Pig—Firmer. Rubber irregular. Tin and Copper steady.

CATTLE.

LONDON (METROPOLITAN).—A small entry of fat beasts encountered a slow demand at about late rates. Devons 4/6 to 4/10, Herefords 4/4 to 4/8, shorthorns 4/- to 4/6, Norfolks (box fed) 5/- to 5/4. Sheep supplies were larger than the corresponding market day last week. Trade proved quiet, but sellers required generally steady prices. Wethers 5/- to 5/4, ewes 2/4 to 2/8, lambs ranged from 5/8 to 6/-, as to quality, all per stone of 8lb. to sink the offal. Total supplies—71 beasts, 1,229 sheep and lambs.

All subject to our terms of buying.—(Advt.)

BIRKENHEAD.—On offer: 348 Irish cattle, 1,150 Canadian cattle, and 1,000 lambs. The cattle trade was very quiet, and for Irish there was not sufficient business to warrant quotations. Strong Canadian bullocks made 6d. to 6½d., small cattle up to 7½d., and baby cattle 7¼d. A steady trade was experienced for lambs at from 8d. to 8½d. per lb.—all prices sinking the offal.

HULL.—Large supplies of all kinds of stock. Prices show downward tendency. Best beef, 4/- to 4/3; secondary quality, 3/9; young cows, 4/-; older, 3/9; pork pigs, 7/6; baconers, 6/6; stores, 5/9 per stone; young sheep, 9d.; ewes, 7d. per lb.

WAKEFIELD.—Best English cattle 7½d. per lb., secondary quality 7d., fat cows and bulls 4d. to 5d.; Irish cattle, 7d.; best small hogg sheep 10d. per lb., medium 9½d., large 9d.; ewes 5d. to 6d., tups 3d. to 4d., lambs 10½d. Cattle, 168; sheep, 988. No market next Monday.

MERKLANDS.—Four hundred and three fat Irish cattle offered; quality again usual average. Prices for top and secondary realised about last week's rates, best classes making 35/- and secondary sorts up to 32/- per live cwt. Arrivals totalled 553, mainly stores—175 Dublin, 26 Limerick, 40 Waterford, 13 Cork, 20 Sligo, 185 Derry, and 94 Belfast.

MANCHESTER PIG.—Shipments from Ireland to this country for the week ended July 22nd totalled 783, as compared with 426 in the previous week, and 736 at the corresponding period of last year. Cooler weather conditions were more favourable to business, but spot supplies were quite adequate for demand. Prices generally remain fairly steady. Lean cutters 10/6, choice sizeable baconers 10/3 to 10/6, sows 8/6 per score estimated dressed carcase weight.

BIRMINGHAM PIG.—Supplies less plentiful and demand rather more active. Bacon pigs, 10/6; cutters, 10/- to 10/6; sows, 8/6 per score, dead weight.

Send your Pigs to COSGRAVE, RANELAGH—(Advt.) Highest Current Prices Paid.

GRAIN.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES (BALTIC).—WHEAT—A dull tone pervaded the floating and forward cargo section, and buyers reserved, following the sharp break on North American markets and lower first-hand Canadian offers. Manitoba grades were reduced by 1/3 per quarter, but other sorts unchanged. No. 1 Northern Manitoba Atlantic August sellers 30/-, No. 2 ditto 29/3, Australian afloat 28/-, August also September 28/3, October 28/6. Parcels quiet and 7½d. to 10½d. per quarter lower for Canadian, with Plates and Australian 3d. per quarter down. MAIZE cargoes quiet, but steadily held. Plate August sellers 17/3, September 17/6, October 18/-. Parcels quiet of sale on about former terms. Plate afloat July-August also August-September sellers 16/6, September-October 17/-, October-November 17/6 per 480lb. A London c.i.f. La Plata maize futures market is being established on the Baltic Exchange, and trading will commence early in August. BARLEY dull and barely steady. Parcels of No. 3 Canadian Western Vancouver August sellers 20/6, No. 3 ditto 20/9, Plate 64-65 kilos August 13/9, Persian new August-September also September-October 15/-, Danubian August also September-October 15/-, Russian September also October 15/- per 400lb. OATS quiet and easier for Canadian. Parcels of No. 2 Canadian Western Vancouver August-September sellers 18/3, No. 3 ditto 17/6, Plate August 12/3, September 12/4½ per 320lb.

MARK LANE CORN.—There was a good attendance of buyers at the week's opening market, but trade without improvement and tone unsettled. A sharp break occurred in wheat quotations, especially Canadian grades, following the sharp decline on North American markets and lower c.i.f. offers. Feeding stuffs barely steady. WHEAT declined sharply, especially Canadian grades. No. 1 Northern Manitoba, Vancouver, ex ship 32/3, Atlantic 32/3, No. 2 Vancouver 31/3, No. 3 do. 30/9, No. 4 Manitoba 30/3, No. 5 28/3, Australian 29/3 to 29/9 per 496 lb. English best old nominally 28/-. Only a few samples of new on show, but sales reported at 26/- ex farm per quarter of 448lb. FLOUR quiet and tendency easier. London straight run 29/6 per sack for country deliveries, and 28/6 London area. Country straights new 21/6 to 22/- ex store. Of imported, Manitoba patents 26/- to 27/6, Australian patents 21/- to 23/- ex store per 280lb., excluding quota payment of 2/9 per sack. MAIZE easier. Plate landed 18/6, ex ship 17/6, July-August 17/9, August-September 18/-, September-October 18/3 per 480lb. Yellow maize meal £5 15/- per ton f.o.r. London. BARLEY quiet. Canadian largely nominal. LIVERPOOL.—The weakness in Winnipeg had been partly discounted here, and forward deliveries of wheat, after showing a moderate depreciation at the outset, improved on unfavourable European weather reports until a moderate advance on Saturday had been registered. Then lack of support caused prices to recede, and with late afternoon cables from Winnipeg disappointing, final rates were the worst and marked a fair depreciation from Saturday. C.i.f. parcels wheat unchanged to 9d. lower, but business confined to smutty No. 1 Manitoba (Vancouver) arrived at 28/- per quarter. C.i.f. parcels River Plate maize unchanged. September-October selling at 17/- per quarter. WHEAT on the spot quiet and unaltered. MAIZE—Spot parcels quiet at 3/10 per cental for River Plate. FLOUR quiet at late rates. Graded wheat futures opened ¼d. to ½d. per cental lower, then improved until ⅛d. to ½d. over Saturday had been paid, which prices again moved downward, market finishing ⅛d. to ½d. under last week-end. Values—October 5/7⅜d., December 5/9⅜d., March 5/11¼d., per cental. Sales—100 loads.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS.

WEAKNESS OF COMMODITIES A DISTURBING INFLUENCE: STOCKS REACT.

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

NEW YORK, Monday.

The weakness of wheat and cotton was a disturbing influence on the Stock Exchange to-day, and the market declined 1 to 5 points. At the same time the set-back was not surprising, as brokerage circles have been anticipating a secondary reaction. The turnover was limited to 3,090,000 shares.

The opening was irregular, and prices during the morning declined 1 to 6 points before support reappeared. Industrials and Specialities, including "Wet" stocks were very heavy in tone.

With trading being largely of a professional character the market in the afternoon stumbled through the expected secondary reaction, but the volume of business dwindled appreciably on the decline, with bids and offers in many instances far apart. Several of the recent pools were apparently not yet reorganised, and most groups lacked support. Pressure, however, was not marked, except in some of the lately more buoyant specialities. The Grain market generally was heavy, while the dollar fluctuated uncertainly.

The market finished above the day's low levels on covering, but the close was weak.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Monday.

On the Grain market to-day reports of high temperatures and generally bullish crop damage advices were entirely ignored. A lack of buying interest and liquidation caused declines to the low limits allowed by mid-day. In the afternoon trade was light, with a very pessimistic speculative interest. Wheat fell on selling by Eastern houses, while maize, rye and oats eased on liquidation and in sympathy with the decline in wheat.

WHEAT opened easy at 2⅛c. to 2⅜c. lower and closed weak at 4⅛c. to 5c. fall.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS.

W. AND H. M. GOULDING.—The directors' report for the season 1932-1933 states that it is with deep regret that they have to record the loss sustained in the death of Mr. Joseph Milne, who joined the firm as far back as November, 1877. In August, 1930, he retired from active management and became Deputy-Chairman of the company, a position which he held until his death. The net profits for the year, including dividends from subsidiary companies and investments and after making provision for discounts on outstanding accounts, amount to £34,625. This, with £3,046 from last account, leaves a sum of £37,671 available for distribution. After providing for accrued debenture interest they recommend a dividend at the rate of 5½ per cent. on the Preference Shares, and 6 per cent. on the Ordinary Shares of the company for the year ending 30th June, 1933, payable in equal instalments on 31st July and 30th December next, less income tax (same). They further recommend that £6,000 be carried to depreciation account. The sum available for distribution is thus allocated as follows:—Debenture interest to 30th June, 1933, £2,250; dividend and income tax, £25,775; depreciation account, £6,000; carried to next account, £3,646. Mr. William Basil Goulding has been co-opted a member of the Board, which is submitted for approval. Major Hugh A. Henry and Mr. J. W. Milne retire by rotation as directors, but offer themselves for re-election.

Birmingham Railway Carriage and Wagon.—An interim dividend declared at rate of 6 per cent. per annum, less tax, on Preference, for half-year ended June 30.

Broken Hill South.—Dividend of 5 per cent., payable in Melbourne on September 22. The payment follows distributions of a similar amount in February and June last.

Bengal Iron Co.—Profit advanced from £32,132 in 1931-32 to £48,084 last year, but after providing for depreciation of £35,482, Debenture interest of £60,722, and writing £1,000 off Debenture discount account, there is a net loss for year of £49,120, compared with £114,242 previously, when £17,000 was placed to tax reserve. The debit of profit and loss account is now £162,004. The report states that the blast furnaces still remain shut down. Depressed conditions continued in the coal trade, but the general outlook for business in India is distinctly better.

Clifford Motor Components.—During the year to May 31st last profits increased from £1,037 to £1,643, to which was added £1,985 brought in, making available £3,628. A sum of £1,700, against £1,000, was utilised in writing down preliminary expenses, and the remaining £1,928 is to be carried forward. The last dividend was 5 per cent. for the year ended February 28th, 1930.

Chrysler Corporation.—Dividend of 50 cents. Second quarter earnings were equivalent to $1.80 per share.

Glynns Lydenburg.—The company's cash position at the end of the financial year, 31st July, 1933, is sufficient for payment of the accrued liability under the power agreement with the Government amounting to £13,600, and excess profits duty £6,028 as at 30th June, 1933, but no surplus is available for the declaration of a dividend. Excess profits duty for the second half-year is estimated at £14,300.

Dulcetto-Polyphon Loss.—The accounts for the year to May 31st last of Dulcetto-Polyphon, Ltd., (manufacturers of and dealers in gramophones, records, etc.) show a loss of £15,579, which follows a trading loss of £2,781 in the preceding year. As a result, the debit balance carried forward was increased from £22,187 to £37,766. The Preferred Ordinary dividend is in arrears as from September, 1930, and the last Deferred dividend was 37½ per cent. for the 14 months to March 31st, 1929.

Friary Holroyd and Healys Breweries.—Final Ord. dividend of 4½ per cent., making 7½ per cent. for the twelve months to June 30 last. A year ago the final was 5 per cent., making 9 per cent.

Hunters The Teamen.—Net profit for the year amounted to £42,981, against £53,480 for the previous year, and the available balance is £58,403, against £69,541. The directors recommend payment of a dividend on the Ordinary Shares of 1/6 per share, making 11¼ per cent. for the year, free of tax, against 12½ per cent., and the transfer of £3,867 to depreciation reserve account, restoring that reserve to £200,000. There will then remain to be carried forward £13,291, against £15,421.

Improved Wood Paving.—Interim of 5 per cent., less tax (same).

Ingersoll Rand.—Third dividend of 37½ cents per share on Common Stock.

Page and Overtons Brewery.—Profit £29,833, against £32,413. To general reserve £2,000, £4,428 forward. No final recommended, against 5 per cent., making a total of 25 per cent.

Redfern's Rubber Works (Hyde).—No interim ordinary dividend. (Same.)

Semenyih Rubber.—Operations during the year to April 30th last resulted in a profit of £24, which compares with a loss of £1,528 in ceding year. The balance to be carried was consequently increased to £8,831. dividend was 8 per cent. for 1929-30. plant, etc. have been written down to appropriation of £4,844 from reserve.

Western Canada Investment.—Payment dividend is to be considered in October ne accounts for the year should be available.

Watney Combe and Reid.—The final di Defd. of 6 per cent., which brings the ye up to 10 per cent. for 1932. The tota per cent., so that there is a reduction cent. for 1933.

Silver was 1/16d. easier for spot at 17 15/16d. per ounce, and unchanged at 18 1/16d. for forward delivery. Gold rose 4d. to 124s. per ounce fine, there being a premium of 6½d. per ounce in this price. About £180,000 available in the market was taken by the undisclosed buyer.

At the Bank of England £99 in bar gold was bought.

Active conditions again prevailed in the Foreign Exchange Market yesterday, the chief interest being the further fluctuations in the sterling-dollar rate. Gold currencies were generally quiet, with a moderate adverse movement. Dollars opened at about 4.52.53, and weakened, at one time touching 4.64. Later the dollar steadily improved, to close 4c. firmer on balance at 4.46½. The Canadian dollar was also erratic, and after moving within extremes of 4.80 and 4.91 finished at 4.81, as against 4.85⅛ on Saturday morning. Francs were finally 85 7/16, as compared with 85⅛. Swiss francs appreciated by 2c. to 17.22, belgas by about 2c. to 23.85, and guilders by 1½c. to 8.25. Reichsmarks were fractionally dearer at the close by 13.95½.

SUNBEAM - WOLSEY

DEVELOPMENT OF MARKETING ORGANISATION

THE STORY OF A GREAT INDUSTRY.

Irish industry has received another and very important fillip. The Sunbeam Knitwear Company in Cork has amalgamated with the famous Wolsey Company of Leicester, and the result will be that the manufacture of woollen goods within the Free State will be advanced to a point as near perfection as one can reasonably expect. This amalgamation does not mean that the Cork industry shall pass into the hands of the English company. On the contrary, it will remain an Irish industry, the directors and controllers of which will have made available to them all the knowledge and technical skill for which the Wolsey Company has very rightly become famous in many parts of the world. The aim—one in which every Irish person should be interested—is to develop the industry so that it shall become an important factor in the new policy now being followed in the Free State, and by this means produce for sale in the home market a better article or articles. It is a profound truth that the Wolsey Company excels in this line of manufacture, and it is heartening to learn that the Sunbeam people have concluded an arrangement under which the products from the Cork factory will be largely increased, meaning that employment will be increased, and that as a natural corollary, there will be a more general diffusion of happiness in Cork and in the surrounding districts.

EXTENSION OF FACTORY PLANT.

The story of the development of the Sunbeam Knitwear factory is a stirring one of personal initiative and determination. William Dwyer, a man who has had a long connection with the trade and manufacturing processes, made a modest start, since the prospects at that time (four years ago) were uncertain. But he laid his plans after a manner that marks him out as one of Ireland's foremost industrialists. The demand for the products of the Sunbeam Knitwear factory grew to a point when it became necessary to extend the factory plant. William Dwyer sought for a more extensive premises, and Cork answered his needs. To-day the Sunbeam Knitwear Factory is situated at Blackpool, on the fringe of Cork City. It marks a new era in the industrial life of Cork—a city that has suffered many blows in the last two decades, not going further back in years. Mr. Dwyer has done one important thing by establishing the factory in Cork. He has aided in the plan to decentralise industry. There was a danger, a short time before Mr. Dwyer set out to provide Cork with this factory, that Dublin was being given preference in industrial development, and one recalls that numerous protests were made by interested public bodies. But active intelligence and practical action, such as that shown by William Dwyer, in purchasing machinery and putting operatives to work, was ten times better than these good, though pious, resolutions.

And now one looks to the future with hope. Products sent out from Cork will have a better finish, done by experts in the delicate manufacturing process. These products will be available to purchasers in every town and village in the Free State, for the new company is starting forth with an improved marketing organisation. This organisation, coupled with the sound advice to support Irish manufacture, which means supporting Irish workpeople, who will no longer be dependent on flimsy relief schemes, will enable Irish people to put their patriotism to practical purpose. William Dwyer does not, it must be clearly understood, appeal alone to the patriotic instincts of the people in the conduct of his business. His aim is to produce an article as good if not considerably better than that of his competitors, offer it for sale and let patriotism, in the particular matter of purchase, take its proper place. That is as it should be, and such practice in the conduct of an industry will bring its own substantial reward, a fact already proved by the growth of the Sunbeam Knitwear Company.

LOWER PRICES.

The extension of the Cork Company means that the home purchaser, apart from securing better finished articles, will get them at substantially lower prices. Making them within the Free State means that no Customs duties will be payable, that employment will be given at home and that increased circulation of money will follow. The advantages of this change may not be apparent, but it can be reasoned out in this way: The absence of Customs duties on the bulk of woollen goods now sold in this country, a demand which can, and will be, met by the Sunbeam-Wolsey Company, will bring the prices to a lower level, and the employment given in meeting this increased demand will lessen to some extent the general burden of taxation, of which a considerable portion is paid away in maintaining the workless people. There one sees two immediate benefits.

Irish people, speaking generally, are not familiar with industrial effort and economy. The Free State has been, and will for many years remain, agricultural, but in the years to come the peaceful aggression of industry will be noted. Leading figures in Irish life have advocated the strengthening of the industrial arm. This is now taking place, and it is refreshing to note that the Sunbeam Company has been a pioneer. Irish people have long cherished the notion that it is an easy task to establish a factory dealing, for instance, in woollen goods, and that with the aid of a few hundred pounds and plodding work that factory will prosper. This belief is now discarded, and its place has been taken by a more robust appreciation of the task of bringing industry into an agricultural country. Workers have to be taught to handle the intricate machines, the marketing organisation has to be overhauled and made productive, expenses must be brought to a safe figure, and the leader of the particular industry must be an inspiration to his workers. The co-operative or "team-work" spirit always must be evident.

HEALTH OF WORKERS.

This is what one finds in the Sunbeam Factory. Each unit works in absolute harmony with the other. Irish workers have adapted themselves to the manufacturing processes, under the guidance of experts, and week by week advances in the industry are recorded. The Cork Factory is an additional "hive of activity" in Ireland. Avenues are banked with machinery, placed in accordance with a sound planning scheme, and efficiency is the key-note on which the factory is conducted. The planning has been so effective that not an unnecessary moment of delay in the transfer of material takes place. To watch the entire process is an object lesson well worth learning, for it illustrates more than this article can hope to do how brains in organisation have been used to the very best advantage. The premises have proved to be admirably suitable for the industry. It is well-lighted and airy, and eminently serviceable for the manufacture of hosiery under hygienic conditions. It is interesting to note that the health of the operatives is a matter which enjoys the consideration of the proprietors.

The manufacture of silk stockings on a wider scale is contemplated, and the plans will shortly be put into operation. The process is very complicated, but the difficulties associated with their production have been successfully overcome.

TRAINING OF OPERATIVES.

The arrangement between the Sunbeam and Wolsey Factories will mean further that many other articles requiring specialised knowledge in their manufacture may be manufactured at Cork. Invention of new methods and practices works apace in this industry; there must be no slacking of endeavour, and it can truthfully be said that no invention of importance, which may enable the Cork Factory to become more serviceable and profitable will be allowed to pass unnoticed. The hosiery trade is peculiar in this respect: that it is not sufficient for its controllers to meet the demand for goods worn in accordance with popular wish or fashion; it must anticipate such things. In that respect it is related to newspapers, for the newspaper reporter is told always to watch for the unusual—and invariably it comes to pass.

It must be understood of course that the Blackpool Factory has not yet reached its full point of production. Operatives must be trained, and until this scheme is completed it will be necessary to import some partly finished goods in bulk from Leicester. But as has been said before Irish workers are adaptable, and so the need to import will not remain for long.

The Sunbeam factory will shortly be able to meet all demands on it, and, further, hopes to be in a position to export some of its products, principally the products in which it may be easier to specialise. This market may prove to be considerable, and, having in mind that two great Irish industries carry a very valuable overseas trade, there is no reason to be pessimistic about the future of the Sunbeam factory.

THE FIRM'S PERSONNEL.

At any rate, the factory sets out on its new career backed by the good wishes of the Irish people. The benefits of its prosperity will be mutual between producer and purchaser, and, in between, one remembers the workers, who will thus be enabled to help in the creation of an industrial phase in our national life—a thing long awaited, and now warmly welcomed.

Mr. Ernest T. Walker, who is chairman and managing director of Wolsey Limited, has been connected with the hosiery trade all his life, and is the grandson of the original founder of the firm of Messrs. R. Walker and Sons, in 1834. His vast experience and intimate knowledge of every aspect of the hosiery trade have rendered Mr. Walker's services of very great value as a representative of the industry on many councils and committees. Among his many activities the following are important:—

Member of the Executive Council of the Federation of British Industries.

Member of the Committee of the National Federation of Hosiery Manufacturers.

MR. WILLIAM DWYER, Managing Director and Chairman, Sunbeam Knitwear, Ltd.

Member of the Hosiery Joint Industrial Council.

Member of the Woollen Industries Research Association Council.

A past President of the Leicester Chamber of Commerce (1927-1929).

Mr. Walker is now a member of the Council of the Chamber, and also serves on the following committees of the Chamber:—

General Purposes, Civil Aviation, Empire Trade Committee, Hosiery Manufacturers' Section, Hosiery Distributors' Section (Chairman).

During Mr. Walker's term of office the Leicester Chamber of Commerce was largely responsible for the formation of the British Colour Council, of which Mr. Walker was a member of the Board of Management until a few months ago. For three years Mr. Walker served as a representative of the hosiery industry on the Advisory Council of the Board of Trade. He is also a Past Master of the Worshipful Company of Framework Knitters, and until recently he also took an active part on the Committee of the British Industries Fair.

Mr. Salt joined the firm shortly after its formation as a public company, as secretary of the company. He received his training in the City of London with two of the largest and most eminent firms of chartered accountants, and in 1926 was appointed a departmental director of the firm. In 1929 he was made a full director, with a seat on the Board. His appointment as assistant managing director was made in January, 1930. He is a member of the Worshipful Company of Framework Knitters, and also of the Executive Committee of the Management Research groups.

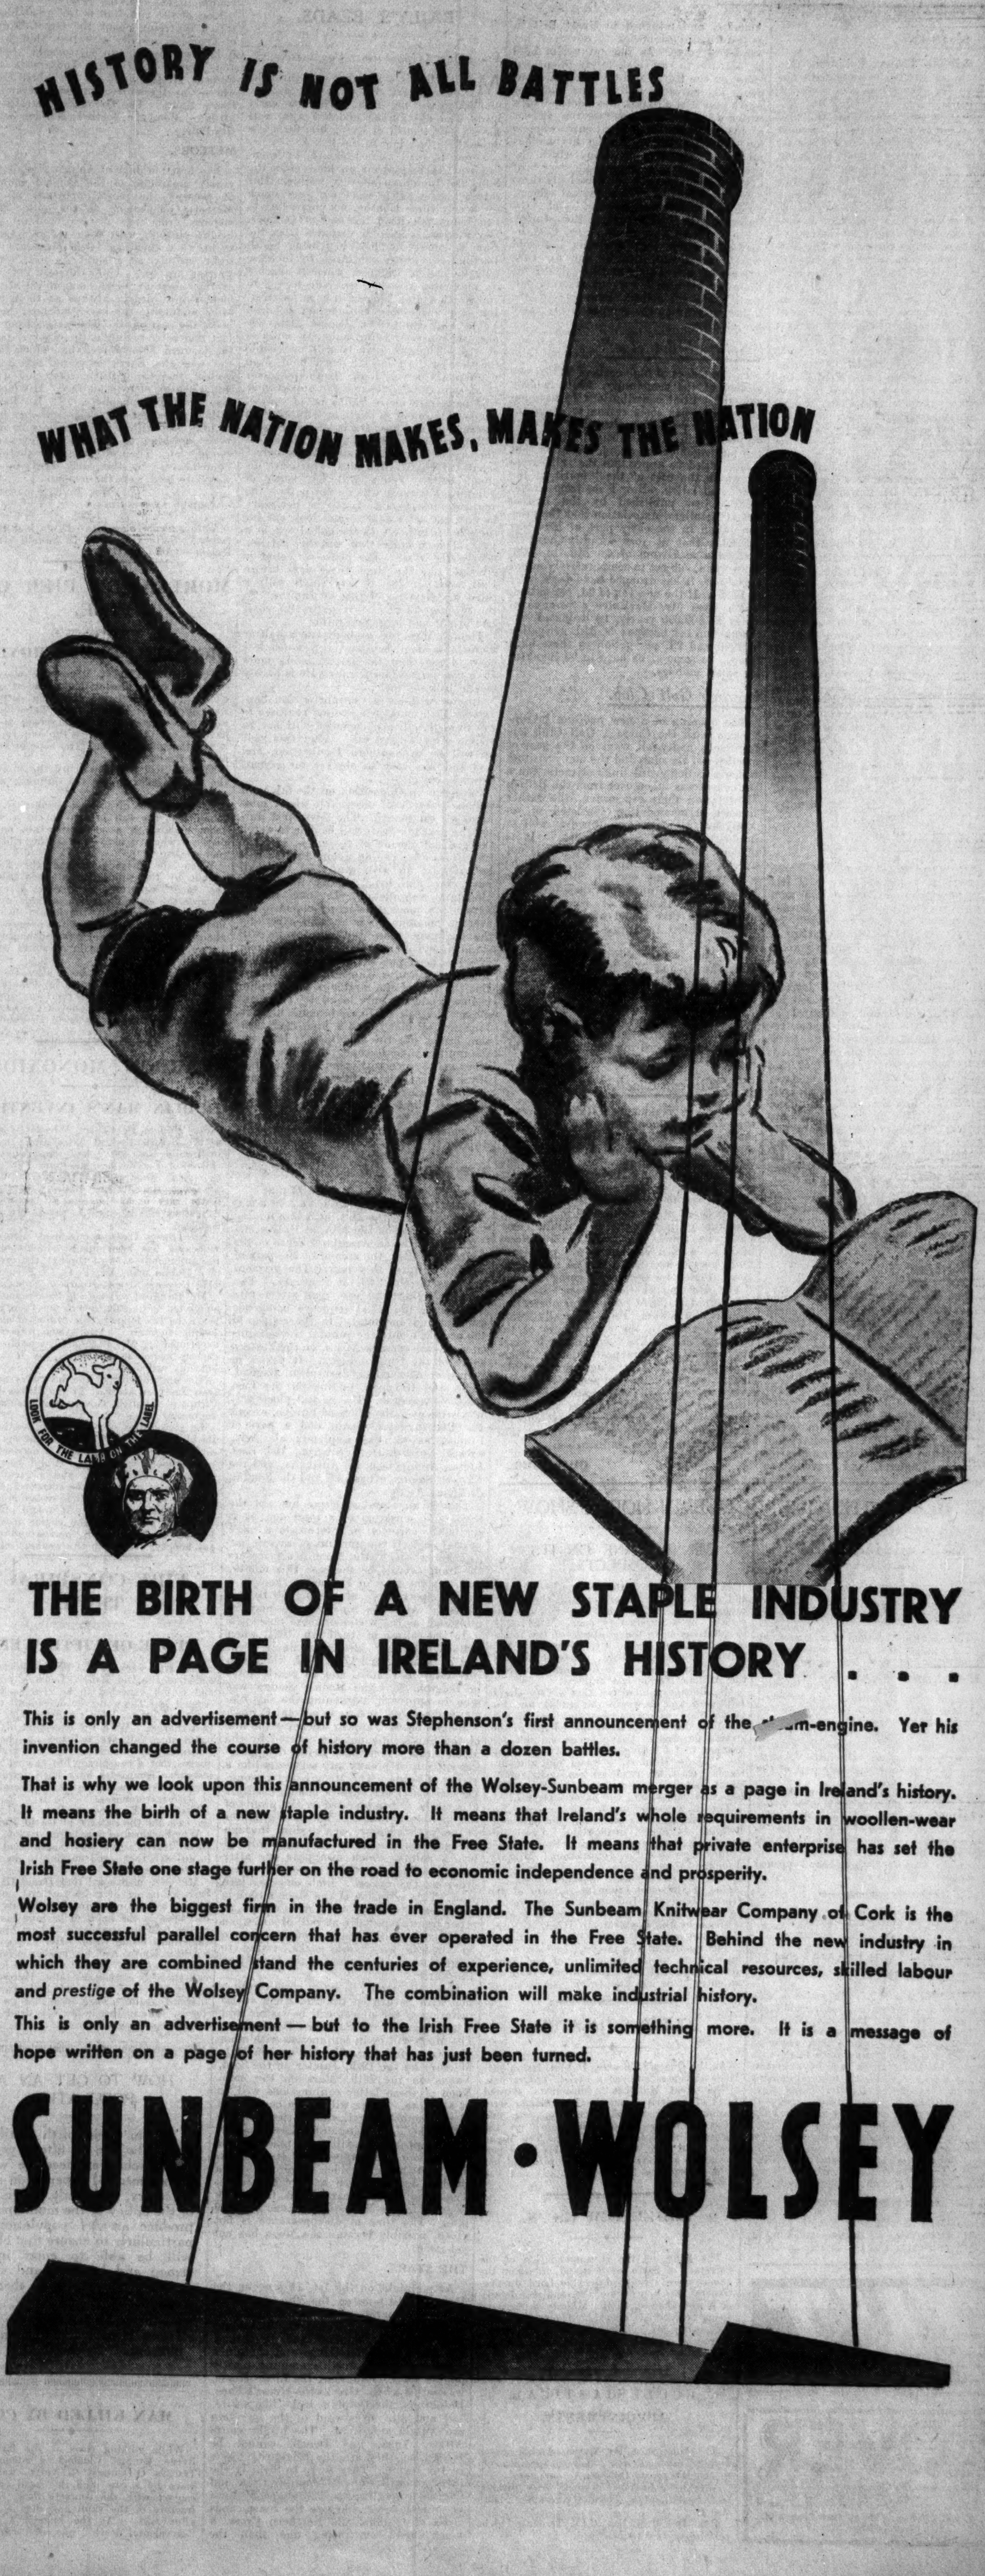
The name of Dwyer has long been associated with the commercial and industrial life of Cork city, and nowhere will the news of this new development in connection with his factory be received with greater interest. Mr. Dwyer, as already stated, has had a long connection with hosiery manufacture, and his enterprise in establishing this new factory, which will mean much to Cork and the Free State, will earn for him lasting appreciation by the citizens of Cork.



HISTORY IS NOT ALL BATTLES
WHAT THE NATION MAKES, MAKES THE NATION
LOOK FOR THE LAMB ON THE LABEL

THE BIRTH OF A NEW STAPLE INDUSTRY IS A PAGE IN IRELAND'S HISTORY . . .

This is only an advertisement—but so was Stephenson's first announcement of the steam-engine. Yer his invention changed the course of history more than a dozen battles.

That is why we look upon this announcement of the Wolsey-Sunbeam merger as a page in Ireland's history. It means the birth of a new staple industry. It means that Ireland's whole requirements in woollen-wear and hosiery can now be manufactured in the Free State. It means that private enterprise has set the Irish Free State one stage further on the road to economic independence and prosperity.

Wolsey are the biggest firm in the trade in England. The Sunbeam Knitwear Company of Cork is the most successful parallel concern that has ever operated in the Free State. Behind the new industry in which they are combined stand the centuries of experience, unlimited technical resources, skilled labour and prestige of the Wolsey Company. The combination will make industrial history.

This is only an advertisement — but to the Irish Free State it is something more. It is a message of hope written on a page of her history that has just been turned.

Drama at Inish.

I hear that Mr. Lennox Robinson, who is at present in Elstree helping with the production of the film of George Birmingham's "General John Regan," has completed arrangements for the presentation of his own latest play, "Drama at Inish," at the Ambassador's Theatre, London, in a few weeks' time. He is not yet decided by what title the extravaganza will be known there; but I believe that "Is Life Worth Living?" has been suggested. A similar procedure was adopted in the case of the last Abbey play to be produced in London; for the very distinctive title of George Shiel's comedy, "The New Gossoon," was changed to the musical comedy tag, "The Girl on the Pillion," specially for the benefit of West End playgoers, to whom, presumably, a gossoon, old or new, could not be expected to mean very much. As many of the original cast as will be available are to go over to London this week to commence rehearsals, including Paul O'Farrell, Christine Hayden, Joseph Lenane and Fred Johnson, who will also stage manage the production, which is to be under Mr. Robinson's personal direction.

Handkerchiefs.

It is good news to hear that there is increasing activity in the linen handkerchief trade in Belfast. I am told that the past fortnight has witnessed a surprising influx of business from the United States which, if somewhat belated, is not the less welcome. The difficulty is that the bulk of these goods is required for shipment this autumn in order to be in time for the American selling season, and, if the demand is maintained, the Belfast warehouses will be severely taxed to honour delivery dates. In normal times the United States business comes to hand in late spring, which allows three to four months for the manufacture and shipping of the goods. The orders that are being received now are practically two months overdue, and this means that the manufacturer must complete his shipments in half the usual time or run the risk of having his business cancelled. I hear that orders of considerable quantity have arrived for men's initialled handkerchiefs and the hand-rolled hems, and hand embroidery on these will provide much-needed employment for the country workers in County Down.

A New Church.

Strolling over the slopes of the Three Rock Mountain a day or two ago I fell into conversation with one of the men working at the granite quarry near Barnacullia. I remarked that the work on which he was engaged, that of putting a flat surface on to a block of rough granite with a hammer and cold chisel, appeared hard. "It is, indeed," he replied with feeling, "the hardest out." I learned that these granite blocks are destined for the new Roman Catholic Cathedral at Mullingar. Many have already gone, removed from the mountain-side by lorry and then on by rail to Mullingar. These oblong blocks are, perhaps, three feet long by eighteen inches wide. One surface, destined for the outside of the cathedral, is chipped and levelled until the hand passing over the surface feels no irregularities. The opposite side is left rough—this will go inside the building and be levelled with plaster. The remaining four edges are levelled, but not highly finished. I was interested to learn that granite for a church at Crumlin had also come from this quarry. Where the granite once lay is now a dog's pool, where dogs and children may be seen swimming on fine Sundays.

Earth Bathing.

Now that sea bathing is in full swing it may not come amiss to note that earth bathing was once practised, though apparently on a very limited scale. This peculiar method of hygienic treatment was recommended by James Graham, a celebrated quack of the eighteenth century. Graham himself practised it, and for eight successive days was to be seen interred naked up to his chin in earth for six hours every day, and on the ninth day for twelve hours. This was in 1790. Graham had studied medicine in Edinburgh, and after practising in England, had travelled in America, and returned to Great Britain as a fully-fledged doctor to advertise his wonderful cures. In the autumn of 1779 he settled in an elaborately decorated house on the Royal avenue, Adelphi, London. The entrance hall to this mansion, which cost him £10,000, was adorned with crutches as a testimony to the efficacy of his treatment of his patients, who no longer needed them. Among his curious advertisements was one in which he promised he would impart the secret of life to 150 years. He advertised his three great medicines as "the electrical ether," "the nervous ethereal balsam," and "the imperial pills." He boasted that during the first fifteen days of January, 1793, he neither ate nor took anything but cold water, sustaining life by cut up turf against his naked body and by rubbing his limbs by his own "nervous ethereal balsam." He succumbed, however, in the following year at the comparatively early age of fifty.

"Spirit of the Age."

In these days of high costs of living, one section of the community, while making new substantial contributions to national exchequers, has some reason to congratulate itself. While I realise that the costs of petrol had fallen substantially during the last eight or ten years, I confess that I had failed to appreciate the full extent by which the cost of the "spirit of the age" had fallen. Now I see from official records just published by the British Petrol Retailers' Association that the price per gallon in the early part of 1914 was 1s. 9d.; that it rose steadily until it reached a maximum of 4s. 3½d. in 1920, since when, subject to comparatively minor variations, it has dropped to to-day's price of 1s. 5d. If the new tax of 8d. per gallon, which gives Mr. MacEntee a revenue of about £1,500,000 yearly, be deducted, the comparison lies between 4s. 3½d. per gallon in 1920 and 9d. per gallon in these hard times. So some of us have to be thankful for small mercies.

Curragh Golf Club.

The opening of a new pavilion in connection with the Curragh Golf Club has fulfilled a badly-felt want on the part of members of the club and the many visitors which this delightful links attracts. Since the course was taken over from the British Military on their evacuation, the rather limited accommodation consisted of an Army hut, which was equipped as well as might be to act as clubhouse. It is evident, however, that playing golf is not only a question of links; for, since the new pavilion was opened, visitors have been much more numerous than formerly. Incidentally though, of course, quite apart from this added attraction, there has now been instituted a "nineteenth hole."

The club is very ably captained by the Rev. Carey, and Mr. P. O'Shaughnessy, of the Bank House, Newbridge, acts as honorary secretary. One of the most promising players among its members is Mr. W. O'Shaughnessy, son of the secretary, who, although only just twenty years of age, has reduced his handicap to eight, and is not content to leave it at that.

A Musical Clock.

Not every resident of Rathmines, not even among those who live under its shadow, are aware that the clock in the tower of the Rathmines Town Hall can be musical on occasions. It is true that its repertory is very limited, but when it offers one of its few musical pieces the effect is apt to be disconcerting. For the greater part of its working life the clock does the ordinary work of a public timepiece, by which the personal timepieces of those within earshot of its ponderous tones may be rectified. But on some occasions it startles people by going through "The Meeting of the Waters" or some other unidentifiable tune. This aberration usually overtakes this generally well-behaved clock in the early hours of the morning, and it has been known to start its musical performance after it strikes three o'clock. It will be agreed that, while music certainly has charms, it is not everyone who will appreciate a bell performance of Moore's famous melody at that hour. So few of the residents of Rathmines have heard it, however, that their sleep has been undisturbed.

QUIDNUNC.

THE ABBEY THEATRE.

"MICHAELMAS EVE."

By T. C. MURRAY.

Moll Garvey	Eileen Crowe.
Hugh Kearns	Arthur Shields.
Mary Keating	May Craig.
Mrs. Kearns	Maureen Delany.
Terry Doogan	Michael J. Dolan.
Dan Garvey	P. J. Carolan.

"Michaelmas Eve," which was staged at the Abbey Theatre last night, was seen in Dublin for the first time last summer, and is a welcome revival. Mr. Murray's play seems to improve on better acquaintance. One appreciates better, perhaps, the untamed and fiery character of Moll Garvey, and the subtle scheming of the old mother, Mrs. Kearns. But one cannot escape the feeling that "Michaelmas Eve" is spoilt by its end. Moll's sudden access to conscience, though it rounds off the plot, is the only part of the play that does not ring true.

Eileen Crowe and May Craig share the acting honours, but all the cast were good. The same, however, cannot be said for the audience, a large number of whom seemed to have come with the firm conviction that they were going to see a farce, and whose opinion was quite unshaken by anything they happened to be seeing on the stage.

THEATRE ROYAL.

BRANSBY WILLIAMS ON "MAKE-UP."

Bransby Williams this week makes a welcome return to the Theatre Royal, Dublin. In a new revue, entitled "How It's Done," he takes his audience into the secrets of make-up, or disguise. He points out, however, that facial expression has as much to do with successful characterisation as have grease paint and wigs. A distinctly unusual dancing fantasy is contributed by the Three Raya Sisters and Dolinoff, whose "turn" goes with a swing and a smile from start to finish. The Cycling Kirks introduce humour into their tricks, and comedy is also the keynote in the contributions of Billy Matchett, comedian; the Four Follies, who are women harmonists; Bert Weston, "the idiotic inebriate," and McRae and Leport, Scots trapeze artists.

Prince Jean Koudacheff, former Imperial Russian Ambassador in Brussels and Madrid, has died at Pau at the age of 75.

DUBLIN HORSE SHOW.

MR. BOHANE ON ITS PROSPECTS.

"Come what may, the Show will be held, and, what is more important still, the opportunity of sale will, under all the circumstances, be a satisfactory one." This reply to questions as to the prospects of the forthcoming Horse Show was given by Mr. Edward Bohane, C.B.E., Director of the Royal Dublin Society, in his broadcast from the Athlone station last night.

Mr. Bohane pointed out that a very slight falling-off was shown in the entries for this year's Show as compared with those of last year. A decrease of thirty-one entries in the section devoted to young horses suitable for hunters, and a falling-off of twenty entries in the "Made Hunters, 5 years old and upwards" class, are rendered less important by slight increases in the entries for the riding cobs and ponies, and the harness classes.

The Society announced with pleasure that on this occasion no less than six nations—Belgium, France, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, Holland, and the Irish Free State—would enter for the International Military Jumping Competitions, and of these the Czechs were new-comers to Ballsbridge.

One of the most colourful features of the Horse Show, the Inter-Hunt Parade, would be continued, and would be headed on this occasion by the Royal Meath Hunt, its pack, their huntsman and whipper-in.

The quality of the jumping contests would be well up to the reputation of the Show, and for the first day's competitions there was an entry of no less than seventy-seven horses.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.

At the Queen's Theatre, Dublin, last night, large audiences enjoyed a variety programme. "The Great Hilliards," illusionists, showed feats of dexterity, and the Two Sharps were thoroughly appreciated in comedy, songs and dances. Connie Ryan added much to the success of the entertainment. The Ten Moonbeams and Alec. C. Fryer and his Band performed in a pretty scena. The principal picture, "Attorney for the Defence," was well worth seeing.

THREE NEW K.C.'S.

The King, on the recommendation of the Secretary of State for Scotland, to whom the names were submitted by the Lord Justice-General, has approved of the rank and dignity of King's Counsel to His Majesty in Scotland being conferred on Mr. Thomas Trotter, Advocate; Mr. Thomas David King Murry, Advocate, and Mr. William Donald Patrick, Advocate.

ECCLESIASTICAL APPOINTMENTS.

The Most Rev. Dr. Byrne, Archbishop of Dublin, has made the following appointments in the Diocese of Dublin:—

Very Rev. Joseph Nowlan, P.P., Celbridge, to be parish priest of St. Catherine's, Meath street.

Rev. Daniel Hickey, C.C., Terenure, to be parish priest of Celbridge.

THE SKIES IN AUGUST.

ANNULAR ECLIPSE OF THE SUN.

BAILY'S BEADS.

FROM OUR ASTRONOMICAL CORRESPONDENT.

MERCURY is a morning star throughout August, being at his greatest elongation on the 18th. The few early birds who are abroad about 4 a.m. will have a good chance of seeing him for a few days after that date in the E.N.E.

Venus is still, as last month, an evening star, setting about an hour after the Sun, and therefore not very visible. Her interval after sunset does not vary much for nearly three months, not increasing to two hours till near the end of October. Her increasing angular distance from the Sun is offset by her increasing South Declination, which continues to increase till the end of October, when it reaches its maximum possible, and she begins to run North again. There will be an interesting and very close conjunction between Venus and Jupiter on August 11th, the nearest approach being only six minutes of arc. The two planets will be visible together in the same telescopic field, even if the power be very high. To the possessor of an equatorial telescope the opportunity will be a rare one. Venus is, of course, very easily found in daylight with such an instrument, and once she is located Jupiter will be visible as a faint smudge against the sky background, or rather four smudges separated by parallel gaps, which are his cloud belts. Venus will be South of Jupiter. For those who do not possess the requisite instrument it will be necessary to wait till after sunset, and look out for the planets either with the naked eye or a pair of binoculars, low on the horizon nearly due West. The phase of Venus is gibbous, like the Moon three days before Full, and her disc is very small, only a third the diameter of that of Jupiter. So the two objects will be, respectively, small and bright and large and faint.

Though Mars sets an hour and a half or more later than Jupiter, he is much less easy to see than the latter, being more than two magnitudes fainter. He is hardly worth looking for.

Jupiter will be in Conjunction on September 17th, and, owing to his nearness to the Sun, Satellite phenomena will not be visible after August 6th. After this year he will be in Southern Declination, and less and less easy to observe for several years to come.

Saturn is in Opposition on the 5th, and will be fairly well observable about midnight all the month. The telescopist during the next few years will be able to watch the gradual closing of the rings. By the time they are opening again Jupiter will be catching up with him, and we shall have, bye and bye, another interesting planetary conjunction. In one respect Saturn is a more satisfactory object to the average amateur observer, and especially the beginner, than Jupiter; for he will stand high powers. Many is the beginner who has been put out of conceit with his telescope because Jupiter looked fuzzy. But the fact of the matter is that Jupiter is fuzzy, and not only looks it. The giant planet has soft outlines, because his outlines are all cloud, and a high magnification brings out the cloudiness. It is not the fault of the telescope, but of the object. Mars and Saturn will stand high powers—Mars because his outlines are sharp and definite, Saturn because, though just as cloudy as Jupiter, he is twice as far away, and a high power applied to Saturn is equivalent to half the power applied to Jupiter.

THE MOON.

Full Moon on the 5th, at 7.32 p.m.
Last Quarter on the 13th, at 3.49 a.m.
New Moon on the 21st, at 5.48 a.m.
First Quarter on the 28th, at 10.13 a.m.

There will be an Annular Eclipse of the Sun on the 21st, the second of the pair of annular eclipses this year. The previous one was on the 24th of February. Two annular eclipses in one year are a rare occurrence, the usual sequence being one annular and one total. In the eclipse of the present month the annular track begins on the North coast of Africa, on the Eastern shore of the Gulf of Sidra. It passes in turn over Alexandria, Jerusalem, Bagdad, Delhi and Rangoon, ending on the East coast of Australia. The partial phase will be visible over the whole of Europe, except the British Isles, Spain and a part of France, as well as Lapland; all Asia, except North-Eastern Siberia; the East Indian Archipelago, all Australia, and the Eastern Sahara, Abyssinia and the Soudan in Africa.

Though an annular eclipse has not the thrill and sensation of a total one, it is distinctly superior in interest to a mere partial one. If the annulus is narrow, or, in other words, if the Moon nearly covers the Sun, as will be the case this month, and was the case in February, there is a good opportunity of seeing "Baily's beads." Also the inner corona may be glimpsed, as the writer of these notes saw it in the eclipse of April 7th, 1921, when "Baily's beads" also were finely seen, and in that of April 17th, 1912, which was just total in France, and so nearly total in Belgium that the Moon's shadow was seen to approach, darkening the sky like a thunder cloud, just as in a Total Eclipse. "Baily's beads" appear whenever the line of the Sun's limb not yet covered by the Moon becomes very thin. Before disappearing entirely it breaks into segments like a string of beads. The Moon being a mountainous body, her edge is not an even arc of a circle, but is serrated by the profile of the mountain ranges. The last glimpses of the Sun's edge are seen to shine through the gaps in the mountains as a row of bright points, which disappear one after another. The same thing is seen in reverse order as the opposite limb emerges into view. This serration of the Moon's limb is quite easily visible with a telescope at other times, especially at Full Moon, when the Moon's South Polar regions are seen to be rugged, with vast peaks, rising to heights which rival some of the highest on the Earth.

The Full Moon will be in close conjunction with Saturn on the 5th, when an occultation of the planet will be visible over a large part of the Southern Hemisphere. The Moon will be in conjunction with other planets as follows:—Uranus on the 11th, Mercury on the 19th, Jupiter on the 23rd, Venus on the 24th, Mars on the 26th. None of these latter conjunctions will be at all close. There will be an occultation of the double star Epsilon Arietis on the 12th. The Moon being in her Last Quarter, the disappearance will take place at the bright limb, the reappearance at the dark. The star being double, there will be a double disappearance and reappearance. The time of reappearance at Greenwich is given in the Nautical Almanac as 10.49 p.m. The time of disappearance is not given, possibly because the Moon has not yet risen.

THE STARS.

At midnight on the 1st, 11 p.m. on the 15th, and 10 p.m. on the 30th.

On the meridian are parts of Capricornus, Aquarius, Equuleus, Delphinus and Cygnus. Equuleus and Delphinus are small but interesting, and contain a number of objects worth examining, mostly double stars. Equuleus, the Little Horse, was called by the Greeks the Horse's Face. Delphinus, the Dolphin, looks like a kite, tail and all. Westward of the meridian are Aquila and Lyra. The bright starts Altair, Vega, and Deneb, cannot be missed, as they are the brightest objects in the region. They serve to identify the three constellations of Aquila, Lyra and Cygnus respectively. The shape of Lyra is unmistakable, likewise the conspicuous cross of Cygnus, the Northern Cross, a much more convincing one than the Southern. Had not the naming of the constellations taken place long previous to Christian times it would undoubtedly have been called The Cross, without a distinguishing adjective. Then Aquila has the stars called the Three Sisters, sometimes mistaken for Orion's Belt, which they resemble.

Further West are the groups of Hercules, Corona, Boötes, Serpens and Ophiuchus. A few stars of Sagittarius are visible in the extreme S.W.

East of the meridian is the great blank region centreing about the Great Square of Pegasus; usually so called, though its N.E. corner belongs to Andromeda. Cetus and Taurus are rising. Andromeda and Perseus stretch away to the North-East, where Capella shines pre-eminent among lesser lights. The Great Bear strolls on all fours along the Northern horizon below the Pole.

METEORS.

The first ten days of August give us the yearly maximum of the Perseid shower, at present the most important of the Meteoric phenomena of the year. The meteors from the Perseid radiant are bright objects, with long trains. On a night when they are fairly abundant the sight, merely as a sight, is well worth waiting up for. Unfortunately for the average amateur, or the man-in-the-street, meteors are nearly always at their best after midnight, the early morning hours being the best of all. This arises from the fact that after midnight the observer is on the forward hemisphere, that which faces the way the Earth is going. A motor cyclist travelling fast, gets the dust, midges, rain, etc., in his face. His face is his forward hemisphere. If he has a pillion passenger who rides with her back to him, she will have much less need to wear anything to protect her eyes and complexion. They will be on the sheltered hemisphere. So the early bird—or the very late bird, gets the meteors.

MORECAMBE PIER ON FIRE.

BIG PAVILION DESTROYED.

The Central Pier at Morecambe was discovered to be on fire last night, and at seven o'clock it was reported that the outbreak was spreading. Fanned by a fierce north-easterly wind, the flames spread to the pavilion, one of the finest in the country, and it was thought there was little hope of saving any of the structure.

Thousands of people watched the efforts of the fire brigades to get the outbreak under control.

The alarm was given by a shopkeeper, who found that fire had broken out in a workroom underneath a small structure on the pierhead which is used as a skating rink and roof garden.

When the brigade arrived the flames, caught by the wind, had a great hold on the small structure, and were spreading towards the central pavilion, a large wooden building. Momentarily the flames increased in power, and the efforts of the firemen were almost futile. Other aid was summoned, but before it arrived the main structure was in the grip of the fire.

Three-quarters of an hour after the outbreak was discovered the main dome of the pavilion crashed in, and this was speedily followed by two towers, one on the east and the other on the west side of the building. The blazing timbers fell on to the pier decks.

CARBON MONOXIDE.

DUBLIN MAN'S INVENTION.

Sir William De Courcy Wheeler, speaking at the British Medical Association's meeting in Dublin last week, laid stress on the ill effects of the deadly gas known as carbon monoxide. He stated that the effect of breathing even the diffused fumes generated by motor cars in the streets was exceedingly dangerous and harmful to the health of the populace.

Now comes the announcement that carbon monoxide has been finally eliminated from the automobile exhaust through the invention of a Dublin man, Mr. F. G. C. Bashford, of 1174 Crescent street, Montreal, Canada.

Mr. Bashford was born in Sandymount, and emigrated to Canada, where, for twenty-seven years, he has followed the calling of an automobile engineer. After some fifteen years experimenting Mr. Bashford has produced his carbon monoxide eliminator, as it will be officially called.

The authenticity of the invention and the tests has been attested by the Milton Hersey Company, Limited, Government chemists and engineers.

In giving the story of his invention Mr. Bashford stated that the elimination of the carbon monoxide would have a decided effect on the motor car itself. It did away with carbon in the engine, and prevented the formation of carbon in the silencer and under the seat of the valves, thus overcoming back pressure in the engine. It would also have the effect of keeping the engine from overheating at high speeds, and would prevent gas knocks, even with the weakest mixture.

FIRE CONSPIRACY TRIAL.

CLOSE OF FIFTH WEEK.

The fifth week of the fire conspiracy trial ended at the Old Bailey, London, yesterday, and is not expected to be concluded before August 16. There are ten defendants on trial, while six others have pleaded guilty to certain charges. With the exception of two accused men, all are indicted on charges of conspiracy to commit arson. Tre prosecution alleges that a conspiracy has existed whereby insurance companies have been defrauded of large sums of money by the deliberate firing of business premises.

Yesterday Mr. Comyns Carr, K.C., opened the case for the defence of David Harris.

Whether the fires were bogus or not, he said, David Harris's case was that he had nothing to do with them, and nothing to do with the making of a claim.

Mr. Carr mentioned that David Harris had been an owner of racehorses and one of the largest owners of racing greyhounds, and he had been in the habit of backing his animals rather heavily, sometimes making huge sums, sometimes losing them. His wife came of a wealthy family and his mother-in-law was a wealthy woman. Unfortunately he could not call them as witnesses. Mrs. Harris had recently divorced him, and both parties had married again. They were not on friendly terms. The mother-in-law was dead.

The case was adjourned.

HOW TO GET AN A 1 POPULATION.

"From their birth until they attain the age of fifteen years no Belfast children need be without proper medical supervision and, if necessary, free meals. This is part of the policy of the municipality to produce an A 1 population, and particularly to ensure that children will be able to enter industry strong and healthy, and capable eventually of earning their own livelihood."

MAN KILLED BY COW.

While milking cows at the farm of Mr. Byrne, Grange, Clonmel, a labourer named Thomas O'Donnell, 47 years, was knocked down by a cow, and, his head coming into contact with the concrete floor, he suffered fracture of the skull and died a few hours afterwards. At the inquest a verdict of "Accidental death" was returned.

PARCELS POST JUBILEE.

HOW THE SYSTEM HAS DEVELOPED.

The Parcels Post system in Great Britain and Ireland attains its jubilee to-day. The British Government established the inland parcels posts as an operating system for Great Britain and Ireland on August 1st, 1883.

Sir Evelyn Murray, K.C.B., Secretary to the Post Office, in his publication of 1927, says that under the original Act of Parliament establishing the parcels post the railway companies were remunerated for their services by a proportion of postage receipts, which was then fixed at 55 per cent. After the war when the parcel post rate, like other Post Office rates, had been considerably increased, fresh negotiations with the companies were opened, and they agreed to accept 40 per cent. of the higher rates. This rate continues under the agreement with the Post Office of the Irish Free State.

The British public in 1883 welcomed the facilities for posting parcels, and it was rapidly extended to the Colonies and to foreign countries. In the year 1885-6 the total number of parcels posted in the United Kingdom was 26,000,000. At that period the limit of weight for a parcel was 7lb. It could not be more than 3½ feet long, nor more than 6 feet in girth. In 1886 the weight limit was increased to 11lb., and in 1909-10 the average number of parcels carried by post in the United Kingdom was 109,436,000. Foreign and Colonial parcels despatched from the United Kingdom numbered 2,731,000, and the foreign and Colonial parcels post delivered in the United Kingdom reached 1,514,500 parcels.

FREE STATE'S SHARE.

The share in the parcel post business of that portion of the United Kingdom which became the Irish Free State was considerable. In 1922-3, when the Irish Free State had been established, the number of parcels collected and delivered by the Free State Post within the twenty-six counties was about 5,005,000. In 1923-4 the figure rose to 6,197,000. The reason for the increase is not known. In the following year the figure was 4,919,000. Since that time the average annual number of parcels delivered by post has been about five and a quarter millions. In 1931-2 it rose slightly to 5,362,000, a round number.

The rates of parcels post are well known to the public, and the increase in its use is an evidence of the efficiency of the service. There used to be a financial deficit on the yearly account, but last year the Free State parcels post system just paid its way.

FLYING OFFICER AND THE POLICE.

CASE REFERRED TO LORD TRENCHARD.

Flying-Officer Fitzpatrick yesterday saw Lord Trenchard in connection with his complaints of rough treatment against certain detective officers in the West End of London. He stated afterwards that the Commissioner offered his sincere apologies.

Commander Marsden, M.P., who accompanied Flying-Officer Fitzpatrick when he met Lord Trenchard at Scotland Yard, told a reporter:—"Mr. Fitzpatrick, General Spears and I are quite satisfied with the result of the interview. Lord Trenchard apologised handsomely on behalf of the police for any inconvenience suffered by Mr. Fitzpatrick. He gave Mr. Fitzpatrick the option of having a court of inquiry, at which both sides could be represented by counsel and sworn evidence could be given, or, alternately, leaving the matter in his hands. In either case Lord Trenchard would make a report to the Home Secretary.

"After taking the advice of General Spears and myself, Mr. Fitzpatrick came to what we feel is the right decision—to leave the matter in Lord Trenchard's hands. Mr. Fitzpatrick is quite satisfied now that the matter has been brought to the direct attention of the Commissioner.

"There was, perhaps, a feeling that we had a grievance against the police. This is not the case. In a Police Court case on Saturday the magistrate is reported to have suggested that the police might be afraid to arrest anyone on suspicion because of Mr. Fitzpatrick's case. But we have certainly not suggested that the police did wrong to stop a man with a parcel at that time of night. Our only objection is to their methods on this particular occasion.

If Mr. Fitzpatrick had accepted the offer of a court of inquiry, it would have started its sittings almost at once, so it is anticipated that Lord Trenchard's inquiry will soon be completed. I hope that the Home Secretary, when he has received Lord Trenchard's report, will communicate its effect. Lord Trenchard inspired us with confidence."

IMPORTED READY-MADE CLOTHING.

DEPUTATION WAITS ON MR. LEMASS.

Mr. Sean Lemass, Irish Free State Minister for Industry and Commerce, yesterday discussed with a deputation from the Dublin Trades Union Council the question of excessive imports of ready-made clothing. This matter was taken up by the Council some two years ago, but the results from the point of view of the clothing trade were not entirely satisfactory.

The members of the deputation pointed out that notwithstanding the present tariffs, overcoats and trousers were being imported.

Mr. Lemass stated that he was in touch with the situation and would take steps to deal with abnormal imports, should these prove to be due to causes other than the purchase of bankrupt stock or to seasonal over production in foreign factories having customers in the Free State.

SURGEON DISINHERITS HIS SON.

MARRIAGE WITH GERMAN FORBIDDEN.

Mr. John Sargent, son of the late Sir Percy Sargent, the famous brain surgeon, who died last January, has forfeited a share of his father's estate of £40,000 by his marriage to a German girl.

The marriage was contrary to Sir Percy's wishes, as revealed yesterday in his will, probate of which has been granted at Somerset House.

The will was dated March 21, 1932, and, after one or two minor bequests, Sir Percy left the residue of the property on trust for his children and the issue of any deceased child. There followed a codicil dated March 30, 1932, in which the testator said: "If my son John shall, either in my lifetime or after my decease, marry Dorit Keller, late of Berlin, my will shall be construed as if he had died in my lifetime without issue."

Sir Percy Sargent died on January 22, and on February 6 Mr. John Sargent, who was then living at Regent street, Cambridge, was married to Fraulein Dorit Keller at the Cambridge Register Office. Since then the couple have left Cambridge, and are believed to be travelling on the Continent.

Sir Percy Sargent, who was one of the foremost brain surgeons in the country, was consulting surgeon during the War to the British Forces in France. After the War he was appointed honorary consulting surgeon to the Ministry of Pensions. He was knighted in 1928. Lady Sargent died in March of last year. There are two sons and a daughter.

LATE CANON MURNANE.

A chapel to perpetuate the memory of the late Canon Edward Murnane is to be erected in the Roman Catholic Church at Dockhead, London, S.E. Canon Murnane, who died on July 2nd, shortly after his eightieth birthday, was known as the "Saint of Bermondsey." He was connected with the Church of the Holy Trinity, Dockhead, for 44 years, and was for the last 31 years rector of the parish. Details of the chapel have not yet been completed, but a fund has been started towards the cost, which has not been fixed.

Ninety-one British visitors were among the 475 foreigners from thirty different countries who have so far visited the Wagner festival at Beyreuth this year, according to Reuter. The biggest contingent was that of the Americans, who numbered 106.

Daily Programme Review.

DUBLIN: Irish Music by Stanford and Harty, 7.30.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: The Magyar Orchestra—Light French Music, 7.

NORTH REGIONAL: "Depression over Fairyland," Musical Fantasy, 8.

BERLIN: Symphony Concert, 8.5.

SWISS STATIONS and PRAGUE: Swiss National Day programmes.

ROME: Operatic Concert, 8.5.

ON August 1, 1291, the men of Uri, Schwyz, and Lower Unterwalden entered into a defensive league, out of which has grown the Switzerland of to-day. The inauguration of this league is celebrated by the Swiss people every year, and to-night's programme from Schweizerischer Landessender (Beromünster) will include some of the celebrations, beginning at 8 o'clock, and Schiller's play, "William Tell," at 9.10. Prague will also have a Swiss programme.

A well-chosen chamber music programme is included in the B.B.C.'s National broadcast at 9.20. Miss Dorothea Helmrich will sing a group of songs by Schubert and a group by Wolf, while the Spencer Dyke String Quartet will include a Haydn piece (Quartet in E flat, op. 64, No. 6) in their contributions.

For Irish listeners of a literary turn of mind a short item in the National programme at 10.35 will be interesting. Miss Nesta Sawyer will read W. B. Yeats's lovely poem, "He Wishes for the Cloths of Heaven," and "Into the Twilight," by the same author.

GIRL BATHER'S DEATH.

Maureen Hourihane, aged 15 years, daughter of Mr. Hourihane, of the Prudential Insurance Company, Drimoleague, Co. Cork, was drowned in view of her aunt and uncle and hundreds of seaside holiday-makers at Drimoleague, Co. Cork.

The girl had been staying at Inchadoney since Saturday with her aunt, Mrs. J. Sheehan, and she had only recently learned swimming.

Going into the river in company with her aunt and uncle, she became separated from them, and was carried out in the current. Her shouts and signals for help were answered from the shore, but all rescue efforts were unavailing owing to the roughness of the sea.

HERE'S GREAT NEWS FOR YOU!

Included in the new Atwater Kent Radio programme are:

A 6-valve (200-2,000 metres) superheterodyne table model in a beautifully designed new-style cabinet at £22/10.

A magnificent 8-valve (200-2,000 metres) radio-gramophone, affording flawless radio results and giving natural reproduction of gramophone records, with a tonal quality never achieved hitherto. Price, £57/10.

A 7-valve (200-2,000 metres) superheterodyne console set, in a strikingly handsome cabinet that is the product of a master-craftsman. Incomparable value at £37/10.

A 5-valve compact model, in a pleasantly designed cabinet of walnut, measuring 11¼" x 7¼" x 5¼". Price £16/10

And these are only four of the many new Atwater Kent attractions! The programme incorporates two radio sets for motor car installation

A new Atwater Kent Radio programme. Wonderful but true, it eclipses every previous achievement of this super-sensitive, true-to-life radio. Even better results. Smarter cabinets. And actually lower prices This new A.K.R. programme will prove a milestone in modern radio progress. Never before in radio history did such a perfect combination of beauty and efficiency present itself. Never before was first-class radio so easily within the reach of nearly everybody. WORLD EDUCATION CONFERENCE.

SCHOOLS AND CULTURE.

MORE SINGING AND LESS ARITHMETIC.

THE CINEMA AND THE WIRELESS.

THE Department of Social Adjustment held its meeting yesterday in the Supper Room of the Mansion House, Dublin.

Dr. Selma Borchardt, Washington, U.S.A., who presided, said that their discussions would deal with the school as a means of interpreting and expressing the cultural life of the community, and as a reflection therefor. She spoke especially of her own country, where they had the culture of the humanities in the class-room. They were now in the midst of evolving what they trusted would be a planned economy. They knew that in Germany the question of intolerance was serious, and they were seriously alarmed, and they asked what were the educated people doing.

Dr. Marietta Johnston, Alabama, well known in experimental education in the U.S.A., dealt with what might be done to prevent arrestive development. Everybody should dance, and folk-dances should be encouraged. They should also have more singing and dramatics. She thought that arithmetic might be spared half the time, and have singing, dramatics, creative craftswork and sports. She thought that such subjects as the cause and cure of war should be discussed as the children grew older. There was work for every man, but children should be excluded from all work. Teachers should not teach propaganda.

The Chairman said that in the United States 76 of their cities were removing the kindergarten and vocational training classes from their schools, but citizens were demanding that these so-called non-essentials should be retained. Her European colleagues, she said, were far more advanced than in America in the maintenance of social standards.

UNEMPLOYED TEACHERS IN SCOTLAND.

Mr. Hugh Guthrie, Scotland, said that in Scotland one of the essential results of the refusal to raise the school age to 15 years was to throw hundreds of young teachers on to the streets. In Scotland they had well over a thousand teachers unemployed for at least one year. Higher education must be the means of raising the whole class of the community, and not for helping clever boys and girls to climb outside their class. There was a general tendency to cut down teaching staffs.

Dr. D. McDonald, Ontario, Canada, said that, except in rural areas, teachers had not suffered to the same extent as other countries. In large centres they had suffered a reduction of five per cent.

Dr. Goldring, also of Toronto, said that in rural parts of Canada teachers had frequently had to go without their salaries because of the non-payment of local rates.

Dr. J. F. Burke, Department of Education, Irish Free State, said that the recently-introduced Vocational Education Act was proving most successful. The poorer the country, the greater the amount must be spent on education. His salary had been cut, but that did not change his outlook on education.

Mr. B. Ingraham, London, pointed out that the bulk of the social work done in London was done by the teachers of London, and particularly the women.

Mr. D. Edwards, N.U.T., said that over 80 per cent. of the people in South Wales were unemployed. Over 75 per cent. of the population were either on the dole or receiving public assistance, so that they would be in a bad way if they had to depend on rate contribution for their education services. The problem in Wales was to provide school children with food and boots.

Dr. Augustus O. Thomas, Washington, U.S.A., Secretary-General of the Conference, said that they had a duty in schools to teach their pupils so that if they were displaced afterwards in employment they would be able to fall back on something else.

Mr. B. Ingraham said that this year, in addition to the cut in salaries imposed on teachers, there were other matters applying to continuation schools in London. One was that students had to pay an increased fee for entrance to various classes, so that the public would pay an increased contribution. It was also arranged that the number of students required to form certain classes was raised at the increased fees. With all these handicaps, he had never seen a better effort made by the principals and pupils of 250 schools which he had inspected.

NEW ECONOMIC CULTURE.

Dealing with the "Development of a new Economic Culture," the speaker said that no new economic culture would be of any assistance unless it allowed them to escape from the slavery of machinery. An effort was now being made to bring the youth of different countries together by exchanging students, so that they would get to know each other. In London they were endeavouring to set up a liaison between the capitals of Europe and confining their attention to educational aspects.

Referring to the influence of the cinema on education, Mr. Ingraham said that economic culture shrieked of want of effort and want of progress. If they wanted proof of that they should look at the way in which the "movies" had exploited their leisure time and reduced their romance, their spirit of adventure, their ideas of love and constancy, and the triumph of right and justice to the thinness and superficiality of the film. They had become satisfied with the mechanised, articulated apparatus that, if education had done its work, would only have been a childish toy.

Mr. D. Edwards, Wales, said that the problem of the new industrial age was to prevent machinery dominating the man.

Mr. E. Mansfield, Tipperary, said that people might be taught to forget differences with the people of other countries, but they could not be taught to forget or put in the background the learning and traditions of the great men who went before them.

Professor Howley, Cork, said that the present inclination was too much towards putting education in the forefront and the pupil in the background. The idea of introducing industrial matters to the child was altogether a mistake.

Miss Maris de la Leynz Grovos (Mexico) spoke of the need for a proper supervision of films in each country.

Miss Alice Keith, New York City, said that the B.B.C. was easily the best Radio for children; Germany came next, and in America they were doing the best they could.

Dr. Burke (Dublin) said that in the Free State a committee had been set up to see what could be done in adopting the cinema for educational purposes.

The section adjourned.

THE PREPARATION OF TEACHERS.

NEED FOR CHANGE OF SYSTEM.

AT the Engineers' Hall, Dawson street, Dublin, Professor McClelland, University of St. Andrews, Scotland, discussing the point of strength and weakness in the present teacher-training programme, said that it was important to turn out teachers with the proper attitudes, ideals and values in relation to their life's work, and the creation of an environment in "dynamic intercourse" with which the student will acquire these, as permanent qualities of personality, is the real task of a training institution. Such qualities are not taught, but caught. They came largely from personal contacts and experiences in an environment which is permeated by them.

In Dundee Training College they had encouraged students to devote one evening a week to obtaining real experiences of social-educational work outside the school. If they were to train teachers, they must get them young, before they had lost their plasticity and adaptability.

ELIMINATING THE MISFITS.

Mr. E. Mansfield (Tipperary) said that the success of a teacher's work depended on his own character and personality. He objected to the school curricula being arranged by civil servants, who worked with an eye on financial and administrative considerations. The whole outlook and spirit must, here as elsewhere, be changed if teaching was to become a profession. He condemned the present preparatory college system, which segregates future teachers at too early an age, as reactionary, wasteful and educationally unsound. He favoured instead entrance on a strictly impartial competitive examination, giving due recognition to Irish on the intermediate certificate honours at about the age of 16, to be followed by at least two years as pupil teachers in the best secondary schools with carefully-chosen teachers. By a specialised method most of the unfits and misfits could be eliminated.

A UNIVERSITY COURSE.

All teachers, primary or secondary, should, he thought, receive a university course. The Free State system of segregating future teachers at early ages in Irish-speaking areas to ensure that they will have a complete command of the language was altogether wrong. It tended to make them lop-sided and barred that broad outlook so necessary for teachers. These things had harmful reactions on the teaching of Irish and made for extravagance. He resented the closing of the university doors to national teachers. They had been shut out apparently to ensure that educationally the masses will be kept in their places.

"A MOONLIGHT SCHOOL."

CURE FOR ADULT ILLITERATES.

IN the section dealing with illiteracy, the chair at the morning session in the Molesworth Hall was taken by Miss A. Carleto Woodward, U.S.A. The first speaker was also from U.S.A.—Miss Caroline P. Stephens, Lafayette, who spoke of her part in the "crusade" in the State of Louisiana to reduce the number of illiterates, who had amounted to twenty per cent. of the population in 1920. She said that, with the aid of the local policewoman, she collected a group of eleven adult illiterates into what was called a "Moonlight School." Meeting at night, the entire class achieved literacy in twelve weeks—a miracle of no small moment. One outstanding pupil was able to announce that she had "written a letter all the way to California." (Laughter.) And the "crusade" was responsible inside the year for changing one hundred thousand people from illiterates to literates.

POSITION IN IRELAND.

Mr. F. W. Ryan, M.A., a former President of the Dublin Street Trading Court, said that, owing to a variety of circumstances, Ireland was very backward in dealing with illiteracy. "Compulsory education" only came into force in 1920, and did not make attendance more than quasi-compulsory. A child was only required to attend school on 150 days of the year, and, as a result, the parents were doing mathematics, indulging in mental gymnastics, to arrange the child's minimum attendance as conveniently as possible. (Laughter.) Under the Vocational Education Act, however, great powers were given to propound programmes suited to the individual needs of illiterates, young and old, men and women, the time and place of the class being adjusted to suit the needs of pupils.

Mr. Matta Akrawi, representing the Ministry of Education of Iraq, said only ten per cent. of the population of his sparsely-habited country were literate, but there was an old tradition of learning descended from the Arabian Empire. The special need of their education was that it should have a religious frame, because otherwise the people, who were deeply religious, would not allow their children to attend school.

Dr. Margarita Comas, of Barcelona, said that many Spanish people who could read when they left school were unable to do so at the age of twenty. Therefore, the teachers tried to encourage the taking of an interest in what was going on in the larger world, reading of newspapers and appreciation of libraries.

INFLUX TO CITIES.

Miss Maria de la Luz Grovas said that a difficulty being experienced in Mexico was also, she thought, common in other countries: people were leaving the country for the cities, where they preferred to pick up a scanty living than to work on the land. Native Indians who were brought to the universities picked up their subjects quickly, but liked living in the city, with its comforts and pleasures so much that some would not go back to the villages to do the teaching for which they had been trained.

Dr. Dragutin Subotic, of the Yugo-Slav Legation in London, representing the Ministry of Education of his country, mentioned his Government's edict that all persons up to the age of twenty-five should attend schools to attain literacy. As it would have been unfair to bring the peasants from their fields, travelling schools went round at convenient seasons; peasants attended from the district daily for six weeks or so. Then the school moved on.

THE "RED INDIANS."

Dr. W. Carson Ryna, director of Indian education for the United States Government, presided over the section in the afternoon. He told the delegates that the people whom Europeans know as "Red Indians" were rapidly adjusting themselves to modern living. The success of the education they received was indicated by the fact that five hundred Red Indian youth were now undergoing University training.

Mr. F. W. Ryan, M.A., referring to the general question of illiteracy, said it was one that palpably affected the world at all points. Maximum efficiency was essential in education, and illiterate people were stragglers in the world's army of progress. The question of whether such people should have votes was one to be considered.

THE BUDDHIST TEMPLES.

Mr. M. L. Manich Jumsai said that the Buddhist temples of Siam had always been great seats of learning, and the priests now co-operated with the State and gave their services in teaching, this being supervised by State inspectors. This was very useful, because even the smallest Siamese village had two or three monasteries or temples. Then the Boy Scouts of Siam were "winning merit" by visiting the villages with interesting books, which constantly brought willing new pupils to the schools.

Miss Emily Marks, U.S.A., inquired—Do the priests teach religion at the same time as the other subjects?

Mr. Manich Jumsai—Yes, but the pupils are not obliged to attend during the hours of religious teaching. The problem is not difficult in Siam, because it is totally Buddhist.

Mr. J. Walsh, B.A., from the Primary Branch of the Free State Department of Education, said a small number of subnormal children slipped through their primary schools, and were unable to read and write. This would be forestalled if the schools were better staffed, and the teachers were able to give more individual attention. Of course, it was a matter of finance, but if classes were restricted to thirty pupils, not a single illiterate child would leave their schools. At present employers and public did not appreciate the value of the primary school-leaving certificate, but in a few years it would probably become compulsory.

Mr. M. Kearney, intervening—On behalf of the Irish National Teachers' Organisation, of which I am an ex-President, I protest against the suggestion that a primary leaving certificate should be made compulsory. High marks in history or mathematics may not make a child a better employé. I protest against any idea that he should have it before being allowed to secure employment. My organisation would resent that being made compulsory. It would kill small schools in competition with bigger; it would be most prejudicial.

The concluding speaker was Mr. D. Daley, M.A., Vocational Committee, Cork.

MENTAL HEALTH PROBLEM.

THE PRIMARY VIRTUE.

EXAMINATIONS AND LEARNING.

A DISCUSSION, which ranged from questions of abstract philosophy to the problem of the rights and wrongs of examinations, marked yesterday morning's session of the Home and School Section of the World Education Conference, meeting at University College, Dublin.

Introducing a discussion on mental hygiene, Mrs. A. H. Reeve, Philadelphia, Chairman of the Section, said that insufficient attention was being paid by the public to the question of mental health.

Dr. E. Graham Howe, Chairman of the Mental Section of the British Psychological Society, described mental health as a state of growth in which individuals might freely move and make their way, within their own limits and free of time, towards a real harmony within themselves and in their social group, and into fuller development of the greater whole.

The primary virtue, he said, was courage. Fear was the enemy. They might connect courage with love, but love which was not courage was not worth the dignity of the word. Mistakes were the stepping-stone of learning. They were limited within a material world, and part of the law which limited them was time. Time was a cardinal point in mental hygiene. Adaptability was another important thing. All mental adjustment might resolve itself into that factor of adaptability.

They must not attempt to impose the pattern of their choice upon an individual whom they did not know, proceeded Dr. Howe. They had two minds. There was emotion and there was reason, as there was spirit and matter.

Why had education worshipped for so long the false god of reason? They were out for the education of the whole individual. That was something which was independent of reason and knowledge. There was no freedom except through obedience to the law. With an autocratic dogmatism they knew where they were. With the fallacy of freedom they did not know where they were.

DEVELOPING THE CHILD.

Authority, whether it were of parent or teacher, was the bridge over which the individual child might grow. If they could find the law and say, "You must do this," then they were entitled to take a sergeant-major attitude, and the child would respect them. But if they assumed an attitude of egotistical impotence they must not be surprised if the child competed with them. They wanted to develop the whole child from within—mood, motive, inspiration, originality. They wanted to develop the harmony of the inner mind. Let them keep mind and matter separate, but work continuously through them.

Mr. Greeve, London, agreed with the theory of "freedom for all" creating a fallacy. He spoke of one experimenter who, when he punished a boy, shared the punishment. If he gave the boy some digging to do he dug, too. The scheme did not work.

Miss Duffy, Wexford, said that Irish teachers would like to give the freedom of which Dr. Howe had spoken; but their programme was too comprehensive. They were bound to show a certain percentage of promotions each year, whether the children were normal or sub-normal. The inspector at examination time expected the deficient child to be as expert as the brilliant child.

The Hon. Mrs. E. Franklyn, London, said that reason could be a very deficient servant. Once an idea had been accepted by the will, reason would come forward and support it.

Miss Morrison, London, said that while teachers were trying as hard as they could to be a bridge over which the child grew, what were they to do when there was a dominant personality in the home, such as a parent who was a dictator?

MENTAL HYGIENE.

Mrs. Hugh D. Bradbury, President, National Congress of Parents and Teachers, United States of America, spoke on "Professional Guidance for Voluntary Workers in a Mental Hygiene Programme." With the statement from one of their most eminent physicians and surgeons that every second hospital case was a mental one, with statistics on suicide, crime, accident and divorce showing the influence of mental disorders, many of which were traced to their origin in childhood, it became the responsibility of thoughtful people, said Mrs. Bradbury, to provide and maintain a suitable study of mental hygiene. The future would rest largely upon their building up intelligent, commonsense and harmonious programmes of home and school which would prevent those social maladjustments. Mental hygiene was more far-reaching in its possibilities than any other phase of preventive work. It affected health, education, industry, social institutions, economic conditions and even international relationships. Studies in that field must be directed to adults who were training children, and who, consequently, were dependent upon the teacher and the parent. A mental hygiene programme, which depended upon home and school co-operation, and was based on mutual understanding, was, naturally, one which would emphasise the educational side of the work.

The welfare and happiness of children, while dependent upon home and school, was also greatly affected by community influence. The fundamental purposes of a mental hygiene programme would be to seek:—

(1) To understand the child;

(2) To stimulate and guide his emotional and intellectual development;

(3) To prevent contact with all home, school and community influences which would deter his normal, wholesome, mental growth;

(4) To correct such mental disorders as might be within their control by understanding and readjustments, and

(5) to create a consciousness on the part of the community to its responsibility in creative work.

Mrs. Bradbury went on to outline the work of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers and the study groups by which they sought to reach their parents and teachers with the programme. They sought to demonstrate that school programmes were dependent to a large extent upon the child's preparation for school life.

Miss Muriel Payne, organising secretary, Home and School Council, England, spoke on "Parent Education for Mental Health," and outlined the development of the child's mentality as it grew.

TRAVELLING CLINIC.

Miss S. Lucile Thompson, University of Pretoria, South Africa, read a paper on the work done in her Dominion, particularly by a travelling clinic, which visited many centres, giving advice to teachers and parents. There were parents who were uninterested in their children because of their inability to apply the advice and digest the information which they received.

Speaking of the tendency to take an interest in the child's success only in branches, which would redound to the credit of the family and meet with social approval, Miss Thompson mentioned cases of children being forced into scientific work for which they were unfitted, when they would have been successful at some form of manual labour.

Dr. W. Carson Ryan, jun., Washington, spoke of "School Examinations and Mental Health." He said that examinations stimulated fear and anxiety. Examinations actually interfered with learning. The examination scheme perpetuated the wrong type of education. The real essentials of a school were to make people healthier and happier. There was no reason for a scheme of education unless those were the objectives.

Miss Duffy said that inspectors at examinations attached too much importance to what a child did not know, and not to what it did know.

NECESSARY EVIL.

The Rev. Brother Wayne said that they could not allow a school under its teacher to go its own sweet way. The test was the examination. The programme in secondary schools in Ireland gave the teachers a great deal of scope. Examinations might be an evil, but they were a necessary evil.

SOCIAL ADJUSTMENT.

ITS RELATION TO HEALTH.

The subject at the afternoon session was "Social Adjustment; Its Relation to Health." Lord Allen of Hurtwood presided, and opened the discussion with some remarks upon "How modern education can be made the dominant influence in social adjustment." He appealed to them, as teachers, to consider not only the technique of their profession in the future, but also to protect, in their own country, and also in whatever countries they might be travelling, freedom of thought. They were living at a time when human reason might become an independent agency of force. Man until 150 years ago was, to a large extent, helpless, in the face of the natural world. As a result he was superstitious, and resorted to magic. The coming of science enabled man to become master of the natural world, and it had an effect upon his mind, and their children were going into a world in which that mental development would be an important force.

THE CHIEF AMBITION.

Let their chief ambition be to produce a partnership between the school and the home. Unless the teacher and parent could co-operate in the early stages of a child's life he did not believe that social adjustment would become possible in the future. The mind of the adult was being illuminated through the child. If it was a question of peace, or war, or religion, or sex, they approached it from the point of:

"What do you think we should say to our child?" They were now asking children to make decisions upon subjects which were previously decided for them. The new technique of education might produce great moral, spiritual, physical and psychological results because of its responsibilities.

The Rev. Brother Clayne said that he did not agree with the remarks on the freedom of thought. Freedom of thought was unquestionably an ideal, but it was one of the shibboleths of the age, and it was one that had been responsible for much evil. It was an expression which should be very clearly defined. There were many things they were not free to believe. Had scientific discoveries led to independent thought? Their people were even more the victims of dogma, even those who disliked dogmatic utterances, than in the old days. The human mind was never greater than in the great days of Greece.

If they had a refusal to believe in freedom of thought, said Lord Allen, in reply, let them beware of the future of civilisation when they looked to right or left. The fact that they could meet and discuss things upon which they disagreed showed that the present world was a better place than the world before the industrial revolution.

M. Georges Milsom, Paris, read a paper on the "Social Programme of the Junior Red Cross."

Dr. C. L. C. Burns, Director of Child Guidance and Special Schools Medical Officer, Birmingham, who followed with an address on the "Aims of Education," said that education did not mean merely training the mind to think or acquiring a number of facts. It was concerned also with the physical and moral side of the child, and the development of character. He thought that in schools a certain standard should be set, that decisions should be made for the children, and that rules should be laid down. This was necessary to give them a feeling of security. Otherwise their consciences had too many decisions to make. It was parents who laid the foundation of a child's character, by what they were to each other and to the child. They were the creators.

Speaking in French, Madame Yoonne Liard, of the French Ministry of Education, presented Professor C. Bouglé's paper on "Education for World Relationships," which was translated by Miss Reeve. In the regulation of human affairs, said Madame Liard, it was necessary that children in the schools should be prepared for peace.

She went on to speak of the work that was being done in France by a committee representative of 42 associations, some religious, some lay. All the differences between these associations were overcome by the sentiment of the majority: "We will have no more war!"

FUTURE OF THE FEDERATION.

NEED FOR GREATER ORGANISATION.

MR. H. L. CONSTABLE, I.A.A.M., England, presided at a meeting of the Department of Teachers' Organisations, which was held yesterday in the Round Room of the Mansion House. The topic discussed was "Relations of the Teachers' Associations to the W.F.E.A."

Mr. E. W. Jones, N.U.T., said that the question really was "Is the Federation worth while?" Some extremely good results had come about as the result of its formation, including the closer co-operation of educationists from different countries. Was the Federation, however, attempting to do too much? It was trying to solve so many problems at once that one was inclined to ask whether it was capable of carrying on the laudable work which it had set itself to do.

Mr. G. D. Dunkerley, I.A.A.M., England, said that secondary teachers in Great Britain hoped for a greater advance in the status of teachers all over the world. It was also felt to be essential that a too-Imperialistic point of view should not prevail among the younger generation. The meetings of the Federation were of great value: the question of bi-lingualism was one of those which could be discussed with benefit. He suggested that a more permanent organisation should be set up within the organisation to carry on its work between conferences.

A WORLD-WIDE SURVEY.

Mr. Thomas Frisby, I.N.T.O., said that there should be a world-wide survey of all the problems which had to be dealt with. He thought that matters contained in textbooks, which were calculated to promote racial animosities, should be done away with.

Mr. F. S. Orme, Incorporated Association of Headmasters, England, said that almost more could be done by an exchange of pupils than an exchange of teachers, in bringing about a mutual understanding with the people of other countries.

Mr. S. Mason, I.A.A.M., England, referring to "biassed" text-books, said they were a real menace to international peace, and their abolition was a necessary step which should be undertaken at once.

Mr. C. L. Dillon, A.S.T.I., said that in Ireland there were six organisations, representing about 2,000 teachers, but there were many who did not take enough interest in educational problems, and who remained outside the associations.

Mr. Robert Neilly, I.N.T.O., said the one serious defect of the Federation was lack of the proper machinery of organisation. They needed proper headquarters and a permanent secretariat. The problem of finance was a pressing one, and he suggested that a fund should be started for this purpose.

Mr. T. Henderson, E.I.S., Scotland, said the World Federation should be effectively controlled by teachers' organisations in the various countries. Two alternatives faced them—either to improve the Federation or else abolish it.

Miss O'Connor, Massachusetts; Miss Purtill, Nebraska; Mrs. Gordon Wilson, England, and Mr. Long, London, also spoke.

At the opening of the afternoon session Miss Tessie Gray, President of the National Education Association of the United States, said that the Federation had failed in its object of getting down to the ordinary teacher. The great need was organisation. She expressed her appreciation of the system obtaining in Ireland as regards retirement, and hoped it would be adopted later on in her own country.

SECRETARY'S REPLY.

Dr. A. O. Thomas, General Secretary, W.F.E.A., said that after the war the difference in religious creeds prevented the various countries from co-operating. Education, however, provided a common ground, and the W.F.E.A. came into being as a result. Nationalism was stronger to-day than it had ever been before, and countries were trying to confine themselves to their own markets.

The world, however, had got to find out how to live together, though each nation had the right to its own political freedom.

Mr. F. Mander, N.U.T., said the World Federation had not sufficiently extended in one important direction: it was not really international, but confined too much to members of the Anglo-Saxon race. He thought that some effort should be made to link up the W.F.E.A. with other teachers' organisations in Europe.

Dr. Paul Monroe, President of the W.F.E.A., said the purpose of the organisation was to seek a professional and international understanding, from which an international peace might come. Internationalism should be on a rational rather than an emotional basis, and this could best be done by teaching.

American educational organisations up to a few years ago had confined themselves to theoretical discussions, but it was being realised that the welfare and organisation of the teachers themselves was part of the question also.

A resolution that the work of the Federation should be continued effectually between conferences, that there should be effective control of the Federation's policy by constituent bodies, and that co-operation be secured between the World Federation, the International Federation of Secondary Teachers and the International Federation of the Teaching Association was passed unanimously, and it was decided to submit it to the board of directors.

PHASES OF SCHOOL LIFE.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE EXHIBITION.

An exhibition has been opened at University College, Dublin, in connection with the Conference. The exhibition is supervised by the Very Rev. T. Corcoran, S.J., D.Litt., Professor of the Theory and Practice of Education, with the co-operation of the National University.

The various phases of school life are illustrated, including, in the case of convents, paintings and drawings, designs in leather work, etc. As regards schools, there are some splendid specimens of handwriting, drawing, needlework and woodwork.

The colleges represented in the exhibition include:—Belvedere, Clongowes Wood, the Franciscan College, Multyfarnham; the Cistercian Colleges, Mungret College, St. Mary's College, Arklow, and the Patrician Brothers' Colleges in Galway, Mallow and Ballyfin, Mountrath.

The convents exhibiting are:—Loreto Convent, Athboy; Loreto Convent, Rathfarnham; Loreto Convent, North Great George's street, Dublin; Loreto Convent, Gorey; Loreto High School, Rathfarnham; Loreto Convent, Enniscorthy; Loreto Convent, St. Stephen's Green, Dublin; Dominican Convent, Eccles street, Dublin; St. Louis Convent, Mount Carmel, Kilkeel; St. Mary's Convent of Mercy, Arklow; Our Lady's Bower, Athlone; Brigidine Convent, Goresbridge; St. Brigid's College, Falcarragh; St. Louis Convent, Monaghan; St. Mary's Ursuline College, Waterford; St. Dominic's High School, Belfast; St. Mary's Dominican Convent, Cabra; St. Ida's Irish College, Dingle, and St. Kevin's Irish College, Glasnevin.

An interesting section of the exhibition is a collection of handwriting specimens done by pupils of elementary schools in Ireland on Cremer unit principles. The inventor, Mr. P. T. Cremer, is a well-known Irish educationalist. He is a registered secondary teacher, with many years' teaching experience in English and Irish colleges. He has succeeded in evolving the "unit" principle of handwriting, which bears his name, and which has revolutionised handwriting in the schools. Keen interest was taken in the work done by the pupils of various schools under this system.

HIGH MASS AT THE PRO-CATHEDRAL.

There was a large congregation at the Solemn High Mass which was celebrated at the Pro-Cathedral, Marlborough street, Dublin, yesterday morning. Delegates were present from England, Scotland, Mexico and other foreign countries.

The Archbishop presided.

The celebrant was the Rev. J. McArdle, the deacon being the Rev. P. O'Flynn, the sub-deacon the Rev. T. Condon, and the master of ceremonies the Rev. M. Murphy. The assistants at the Throne were the Very Rev. L. Sheehan, Adm., Pro-Cathedral, and the Rev. R. Glennon, Archbishop's House.

The music of the Mass was rendered by the Palestrina Choir, Dr. Vincent O'Brien presiding at the organ.

Solemn Benediction was given by the Rev. J. McArdle.

Among those present were Mr. de Valera, President of the Free State Executive Council; Mr. T. Derrig, Minister for Education; Mr. Cormac Breathnach, T.D.; the Very Rev. Dr. Cullen, St. Patrick's Training College; Mr. T. J. O'Connell, Secretary, Irish National Teachers' Organisation; Mr. Bowen and Mr. P. Bradley, Free State Department of Education.

MEMORIAL TO NAZI ANTHEM WRITER.

Horst Wessel, the young Nazi storm leader who wrote the words of the Nazi anthem, and who was shot by Communists in 1931, is to have a tablet erected to his memory in a street of the former Communist quarter of Berlin. Tablets to the memory of Karl Marx and Ferdinand Lassalle have been removed to make way for this new memorial.

AN EXPLANATION.

TO THE GENERAL PUBLIC.

I wish to give the true explanation of the Strike at my Premises, No. 5 Marino Mart, and to contradict the false statements that certain evil-minded individuals have circulated in their propaganda against me. The statement that I have been relying on cheap labour is an absolute falsehood. I have always paid a reasonable wage, according to merits.

The true cause of the Strike is:—I had the audacity to dispense with the Charge Hand of my Marino Branch because he would not give me a satisfactory explanation with regard to the conduct of the business. I tendered him a week's wages in lieu of notice, which he refused, and stated at the same time that he would compel me to reinstate him and continue as before. I realised that if I had to submit to this demand I could not call my business my own.

I also wish to make known to the public the Union involved in this Strike is a Union recently started in Dublin under the name of the "Commercial Employés' Union." No properly qualified Union could call such a Strike. The Union had not a bona-fide cause, or the Staffs of my other Branches would have gone out in sympathy with them.

Two delegates from this Union called upon me on several occasions. I received them, and proved that I was justified in my action, but they were adamant in their demand to have the employé, who is their chairman, reinstated. I informed them that I would prefer to close my Premises rather than to submit to this monstrous demand.

I have been established in business since 1902, and have always treated my employés with every consideration. I now believe I am entitled to the moral and practical support of the public against this unjust Strike.

DUBLIN ROTARY CLUB.

TOURING IN IRELAND.

Mr. Charles Murphy, Secretary of the Automobile Association, gave a talk on touring in Ireland before a meeting of the Dublin Rotary Club yesterday in the Metropole Restaurant. Mr. E. Keith Eason presided.

Mr. Murphy said that he was not without hope that the day was not far distant when the amount of annual income that was garnered in this country from those who came to visit would equal many millions, and that the exodus from the "sister isle" to the Continent would in some degree be diverted westwards. If each and every one of them would learn some of the ancient history of Ireland they would on all occasions be welcome in any society they might find themselves in any part of the world.

Questions of import duties, travelling permits and Customs facilities had caused the motorist of the Free State to realise that the attractions of his own land were free without any of the irritating formalities which had to be observed when one took a motor car across the border. "It is part of my daily work," said Mr. Murphy, "to make easy the path of those who want to take their motors abroad—as any journey outside Ireland is now regarded; but, simple as these formalities appear to me to be, and easy as they are to overcome, I have to admit that they are often irritating to the ordinary man in the street."

Continuing, Mr. Murphy said that it could not be too strongly emphasised that the roads of Ireland were now approaching a standard of excellence that entitled them to be ranked among the roads of the leading European countries.

"We are renowned all the world over," said Mr. Murphy, "for our hospitality, and we should see to it that on all occasions the stranger or visitor should be well received, and his needs properly catered for, so that when he leaves the country he carries with him the impression well to the fore that our reputation for hospitality has been well maintained. While I would be the first to admit that a great deal still remains to be done to bring our hotels up to the standard which is necessary, and which exists in other countries, I must pay my tribute to what has been done since conditions became normal in this country."

Hotel proprietors, he said, should be encouraged in every way to improve their establishments, and to enforce cleanliness and good cooking. He wished to instil into all members of the Rotary Club that they should not travel in other countries without having had an intimate knowledge of, at least, the whole coast of Ireland, the scenic attractions of which could not be surpassed.

Among the guests present were:—Miss Allan, Principal of Homerton College, Cambridge, President of the English Training College Association; Miss Waterhouse, Vice-Principal of Homerton College (guests of the Rev. Dr. Hanna); Alderman George Dymond, Rotarian, past Mayor of Plymouth; Mr. R. R. Butler, Birmingham; Mr. L. S. Widoger, Leeds; Mr. M. W. Lambkin, past President, Maryvill Mission; Mr. J. Cahin Lauderback, past President, Chula Vista, California.

Captain Greer, Secretary, R.I.A.C., also attended.

The Chairman extended a cordial welcome to the guests.

Mr. Lauderback and Alderman Dymond expressed their appreciation of the hospitality and kindness which they experienced in Ireland.

A FILM OF THE WEEK.

"ARMS AND THE MAN."

The Grafton's picture this week, "Arms and the Man," will satisfy those who want to know what Mr. Bernard Shaw is like when he turns from writing plays to producing films.

We heard that he had exercised a personal and very active supervision in its making, and we heard also that he had succeeded in getting so much of his own way with the nominal producer that he could almost be said to have produced it himself. Most of us have been rather curious as to the result.

Well, the result is what one might have expected. Mr. Shaw has merely had his play photographed. He has not allowed any "translation" into terms of the cinema. As the film has had to run for a shorter time than the play, compression has been achieved by the simple method of cutting out the less essential parts of the dialogue; for Mr. Shaw has successfully resisted any tampering with the speeches, which have not been altered by so much as a word.

"Arms and the Man" is such a perfectly constructed play, and so essentially of the stage, that any attempt to make a film of it would only spoil it.

It has been spoilt a little, because, owing to the need for compression, the plot does not emerge so well as on the stage; but it would probably have been spoilt more if Mr. Shaw had not taken the course he did. As it stands, it is very good entertainment, excellently acted by Barry Jones and Anne Grey.

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—A depression over the North Sea is moving away eastward, and will be followed by a strong wedge of high pressure now off West Ireland. Weather will be fair, with decreasing winds, but strong winds and rain will be renewed before long in the extreme north-west.

North-West Ireland.—Moderate or fresh west wind, backing south-west; fair at first, perhaps rain later; moderate temperature.

North-East, South-East and South-West Ireland.—Moderate or light west wind, backing south-west; fair; moderate temperature.

Irish Sea and St. George's Channel.—Moderate north-west wind, fresh locally at first fair; sea rather rough early, becoming moderate to slight.

The Irish Times.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 1, 1933.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

It is expected that the Free State police action in collecting firearms from persons who hold permits will be discussed in the Dail to-day. Among those whose arms have been collected is the Chairman of the Senate. General O'Duffy, in a statement issued last night, gives his reasons for refusing to give up his weapon. He denies a rumour which he says was canvassed lately in official quarters—that the National Guard was connected with a movement to seize the reins of power. The Guard, he says, is non-political, and its influence will be exerted only in the cause of order.—(Page 7.)

The first general meeting of the fifth biennial conference of the World Federation Education Associations was held in the Mansion House, Dublin, last night. Mr. de Valera and Mr. Derrig, Free State Minister for Education, welcomed the delegates.—(Page 7.)

At last night's meeting of the Dublin County Council the pledge of support to the Government in the economic war, passed a year ago, was rescinded by ten votes to eight.—(Page 7.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

The loan for Canada, to be raised in Britain, is considered to be an immediate forward step in fulfilment of the recent inter-imperial agreement following the World Economic Conference.—(Page 7.)

ABROAD.

Mr. and Mrs. Gandhi were arrested early this morning before the start of the new individual disobedience campaign he proposed pursuing as from August 1st.—(Page 7.)

The International Catholic Secondary Education Congress, under the presidency of Professor Corcoran, of the National University of Ireland, opened at The Hague yesterday.—(Page 7.)

FINANCIAL.

Presiding at the meeting of the Hibernian Bank yesterday, Mr. T. L. Moore said it was matter of common knowledge that every class of business had been restricted for some time past, and there was very little sign of a marked improvement in the near future. The bank's half-year was satisfactory.—(Page 11.)

London Stock Markets were generally weak, with a few bright spots here and there. Business was on a small scale.—(Page 11.)

Canada's Example.

In the City of London yesterday a loan of £15,000,000 was underwritten for the Dominion of Canada. The issue, which will be offered for subscription to the public to-morrow, will be at par, and will bear interest at the rate of 4 per cent. It will be redeemed within a period of twenty to twenty-five years. This issue is of the utmost importance from the political, as well as from the financial and economic points of view. The amount is not very great; but the mere fact that, after an interval of more than twenty years, the Dominion of Canada has returned to the London money market in search of a loan is of deep significance. From the beginning of the century until just before the Great War, Canada, in common with the other Dominions, used to raise all her loans in London. When the War broke out British investments formed no less than 68 per cent. of the foreign capital in Canada, as against the United States' 24 per cent. During and since the War, however, partly as a result of the British embargo on external loans, and partly as the result of other factors, Canada has been financing herself largely from her own resources, and when she has been in need of foreign capital she has raised it in New York. In 1930, 59 per cent. of the foreign capital invested in the Dominion came from the United States. Circumstances of many kinds united to bring the Canadian dollar within the orbit of Wall street's influence, and the tendency was to rely less and less on London and more and more on New York.

This movement was accentuated when His Majesty's Government was forced to abandon the gold standard. Most of the Dominions followed Britain's lead, and kept within the so-called sterling bloc; but Canada remained aloof, and only last March Mr. Rhodes, the Dominion's Minister for Finance, spoke strongly against a proposal to link the Canadian dollar with sterling. Until the United States dollar was divorced from its gold basis, therefore, Canadian currency was more or less controlled by Wall street. When President Roosevelt decided to inflate Canadians found themselves in considerable difficulties. The United States dollar began to fluctuate wildly, while the pound, although anchored to nothing except to Britain's international credit, maintained a remarkable measure of stability. Day by day the position of the dollar became less certain. Borrowers in all parts of the world grew nervous, and London once again assumed its former position as the centre of international finance. Canada now has come back to the fold. Her financiers realise that sterling is the most stable currency in the world, and that British credit never stood higher than it stands to-day. There is not the least doubt that the loan will be subscribed in a few minutes. The terms are generous, and investors are more than anxious to put their money into imperial securities.

If the failure of the World Economic Conference has had any lesson for the British people, it has taught them the need for reliance on themselves. The idea of international unity in matters of economics and finance is a foolish dream. Every nation is playing its own hand. All are ready to take whatever they can get; none seems to be willing to give anything. Within the borders of the British Commonwealth can be found everything that is necessary to make a group of peoples independent and strong. The resources of the Dominions and the Colonies are virtually unlimited, and, if they would support one another, instead of doing trade with foreign countries, there is very little that they could not achieve. Britain has nothing to hope from other nations. She has done everything in her power to foster a spirit of co-operation in Europe; but all her efforts have been in vain, and it is high time now that she should turn her mind to her own affairs. A certain amount of progress was made at the Ottawa Conference a year ago; but only the fringe of the problem was touched. Some of the Dominions showed a selfish spirit which was entirely out of keeping with the objects of the Conference, and individual interests were preferred to the common weal. On such a basis no great structure can be reared. If the peoples of the British Commonwealth desire to take the fullest advantage of their kinship, of their geographical and strategical position, and of their commercial and industrial opportunities, they must be prepared to help one another in order ultimately that they may help themselves.

The New Education.

Those who follow the proceedings of the Educational Conference now met in Dublin scarcely can fail to be impressed by the width and scope of its discussions. Whatever it may have been in those Victorian days to which the delegates refer from time to time with kindly tolerance, it is evident that education in the modern world is confined and fettered neither by an arid formalism nor by any undue reverence for tradition. The meetings which have been held in the earlier part of the Conference suggest, indeed, that progress will be made only over the ruins of abandoned theory. Yesterday's paper and the subsequent debate upon the examination system are an illustration in point. Formerly the culminating event of every school-teacher's term, the delight and pride of ministries, the infallible guide to prospective employers, examinations to-day have fallen so low in esteem that they retain scarcely a friend. Dr. A. W. Carson Ryan, of the United States, sees in them "frustration, fear, inferiority and anxiety." Other speakers laid an unerring finger upon the cardinal weakness of the system when they pointed out that examiners so frequently seem concerned rather to unmask the ignorance of their victims than to elicit what they know. The Reverend Brother Coyne, of Dublin, who stood alone in the defence of examinations, found them not an unmitigated evil, but an evil still. Many thousands of children will rejoice that their teachers at last have perceived what they themselves always have felt to be the truth about examinations. This, however, was not the only drop of balm to fall upon their delighted heads during yesterday's meetings. In the Department of Social Adjustment a proposal was made to curtail by half the time usually allowed in schools for arithmetic. The moments saved would be devoted to dancing, dramatics and song. If any proof were needed of the lengths to which advanced educationalists are prepared to go in order to shape their craft to the demands of a changing world, these meetings would supply it. Teachers of the old school, we suspect, would condemn such reforms out of hand, but their dismay would be an index to their ignorance of modern conditions. The Conference has to face facts, and many of them are unpleasant facts. Unless the world recovers rapidly from its troubles, many of the children now safely at school will be unable to obtain employment when they leave. Of what avail will be their knowledge of arithmetic, however confirmed and established by one examination after another? Enlightened teachers to-day are anxious, and we believe rightly anxious, to enlarge the mental outlook of the next generation. That some of the suggestions which have been made, and will be made, go too far in an attempt to rationalise the craft is inevitable. That they should be brought forward, however, is right and proper. The age demands experiments in education, and this Conference has shown that the spirit of trial and discovery is not lacking.

The Horse Show.

Dublin's international functions are crowding thick and fast upon one another during these few weeks. The British Medical Association's conference is barely at an end; the World Education Conference is in process, and next week will witness the Horse Show. It is gratifying to learn from Mr. Edward Bohane, the Director of the R.D.S., that this year's Horse Show has every prospect of success. The actual decline in entries is less than five per cent., as compared with last year's. This decline is surprisingly small in view of the numerous circumstances that might have been expected to damage the Show—particularly the general depression, with its effect on potential sales, and the economic war. Furthermore, the military jumping competitions, which last year were shorn of much of their glory, promise to recapture it this year. Six teams will compete—from Belgium, France, Switzerland, the Netherlands, Czechoslovakia and the Free State; Britain's representatives will be the only notable absentees. A "record" entry has been received for the "lay" jumping contest, and the Irish Hunts will make an unprecedentedly lavish display. We are glad to learn that there is no threat of a decline in the success of the Show; for it is one of those events which spread Ireland's name throughout the hemispheres, and people are apt to judge our land by its success or failure. In all probability, most of the visitors to the World Education Conference will follow the example of so many of the doctors, and will stay in Ireland for the duration of the Show. We hope that it will appear at its best for their benefit. The entries are all right, and, if only another spell of fine weather will come from the west with General Balbo, its success as a spectacle will be assured.

Taxi-Cab Fares.

No little feeling has been aroused among the drivers of London taxi-cabs by the Home Secretary's order which decrees an increase of the initial fare from to-day. Hitherto the initial fare has been sixpence; henceforth it must be ninepence. The proprietors of small concerns are delighted; for they believe that the increase will make all the difference to their businesses, most of which have been in fairly low water for some years past. On the other hand, the drivers plead a piteous case against the Home Secretary's ruling. They complain that, while a sixpenny fare was the regulation, the majority of their passengers handed over a shilling in payment—that is to say, sixpence for fare and sixpence for tip. Under the new system they will pay precisely the same convenient sum, so that the driver's perquisite will be only threepence, instead of sixpence. We can appreciate his grievance, even while we envy the citizen of London town, who can obtain there for ninepence the same convenience that costs a shilling (plus, generally, a sixpenny tip) in Dublin; but this whole matter of taxi-cab charges is obsolete and irrational. To realise the illogicality of a flat rate it is only necessary to stand for ten minutes at any busy junction in Dublin and to scrutinise the approaching taxi-cabs. Some of them are smart, new machines, which almost would pass for a luxurious private car if it were not for the tell-tale flag and meter. Others bring back a memory not merely of pre-War but of pre-Boer War days; their doors are swinging open, their paint is gone, they rattle and crash along the smoothest street with the noise of a steam-roller journeying through a quarry. Yet the passenger must pay equally for either class of vehicle, disregarding the difference in wear and tear to his nerves and dignity.

COURT AND PERSONAL.

The King and Queen have been entertaining on board the Royal Yacht every evening. Their latest dinner guests included the Marquess and Marchioness of Ailsa, the Hon. Ernest and Mrs. Guinness, Captain Robert Somerset, and Mr. and Mrs. William Jameson.

The Prince of Wales, who takes the deepest interest in his ranch at High River, Alberta, Canada, exhibited some of his stock at the recent Edmonton Show, and was awarded the Junior and Grand Championship for a fine shorthorn calf last week.

The Duke of York has promised to visit the Duke of York's camp for Public School Boys from Industrial Concerns, which is being held at Southwold.

Don Alfonso and Queen Victoria Eugenie arrived at Stuttgart last Saturday, and though only making a short stay, have visited the sports field and watched several competitions in the gymnastic contests at the grand fête now open.

The British Ambassador to the United States, the Right Hon. Sir Ronald Lindsay, left New York on Saturday in the s.s. Aquitania for England, where he hopes to spend a six weeks' holiday. The Minister of the Netherlands and Madame de Maries Van Swinderen and their daughter, Mrs. Hoyer Millar, have left London for Danny Park, Sussex, where they will remain till the end of October.

The Earl and Countess of Limerick are spending the rest of the summer and early autumn in Oransay, a small island in the Firth of Lorn, in Argyllshire. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal has left London and joined Lady Strathcona in Scotland. Viscount Powerscourt has returned from England to Powerscourt House, Enniskerry. Lady Mildred FitzGerald is on her way home from the United States, and is expected to arrive next Friday at Warren House, Stanmore. Lady Oranmore and Browne has returned to Ireland.

Baroness Burton and Major W. E. Melles will spend the early weeks of the shooting season in the Island of Mull, where they have some excellent grouse shooting. The Hon. Mrs. Reginald Brougham left London yesterday for Scotland. Lord Strickland has arrived by air from Marseilles, and joined Lady Strickland at 5 Holland Park, London, W.2. Lady Vaughan has returned from Belgium, and joined General Sir Louis Vaughan at Deal, where they will spend the next two or three weeks.

Colonel Sir Arthur Holbrook, K.B.E., who has been laid up for the past six months, and underwent another operation in June, is now making a good recovery. He has left the nursing home, where he was under treatment, and is convalescing at his son's residence at Kingston Hill, Surrey.

The marriage arranged between James I. McGuire, of Cambridge House, Rathmines, and Lelia A. Douris, of 69 Adelaide road, Dublin, will take place in Dublin on Wednesday, 6th September.

TO-DAY'S DAIL PROGRAMME.

THE REVISION OF REPRESENTATION.

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

When the Dail meets to-day, the Committee stage of the Land Bill will be resumed. Other business on the Order Paper includes the second stage of the Land Bond Bill, and the Committee stages of the Sugar Manufacture Bill and the Garda Siochana (Pensions) Bill.

At question time, Mr. Frank MacDermot (C.P., Roscommon) will ask the Minister for Local Government and Public Health if and when steps would be taken by the Government to comply with Article 26 of the Constitution. Article 26 stipulates that a revision of the representation of the various constituencies in the Dail calculated in relation to the population figures as disclosed in the 1926 census shall be made every ten years. The ten years' period has now elapsed.

A new Workmen's Compensation Bill will be introduced in the Dail to-day. It is an Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to compensation to workmen for injuries suffered in the course of their employment.

The Cork Tramways (Employés' Compensation) Bill, 1933, and the Agricultural Produce (Regulation of Exports) Bill, 1933, will be received back from the Senate. A Ministerial amendment to the Cork Tramways Bill appears on the Order Paper changing the date from which the bill takes effect from 30th September to March 31 of 1931. This amendment has been accepted by the Government on the suggestion of Senator Crosbie.

The Minister for Finance has again altered his proposed amendment to the amendment made by the Senate in regard to public servants who accepted appointments in the Free State Civil Service. This amendment proposes to exempt from the "cuts" any person who accepted an appointment on invitation made to him after 6th December, 1922, and who for the purpose of accepting such appointment relinquished an appointment in the Civil Service of another country. If, having regard to the terms on which the person accepted such appointment, the Minister considers it fair and reasonable that the remuneration, or some portion of it, should not be treated as salary for the purposes of this Act, he shall determine that no part, or a specified part only, shall be deemed to be salary for the purposes of this Act.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

BRITAIN AND THE FREE STATE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Will you very kindly permit me to refer to the speech made by Mr. Vyvyan Adams in the debate on the Appropriation Bill in the House of Commons on Thursday afternoon? He was called immediately after me, but, unfortunately, as I had to leave the Chamber in response to an urgent message from the Lobby, I was unable to hear the whole of his speech. On reading his remarks in Hansard, which only reached me this morning, I was astounded to find his statement, in alluding to Mr. de Valera, thus:—"My view of him is that he is by no means the knave which the hon. member for Moseley seems to think." . . . There is not a word or phrase in my speech which would bear such an interpretation. I could never be guilty of offensive or impertinent comment on the Executive head of the Irish Free State Government.

I have unqualified belief in the sincerity, integrity and personal honour of Mr. de Valera; and the only criticism I advanced was that his political outlook is, in my judgment, completely at variance with those practical aspects of present-day problems, the solution of which mean so much to Great Britain, to Ireland and to the Empire.—Yours, etc.,

P. J. HANNON.

Grand Hotel, Harrogate,

"THE HORNET."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES

SIR,—Three summers ago I saw one of those large insects, like a wasp, with a body fully two inches long, as described by Mr. H. F. Longfield in his letter to you to-day. I have been wondering what it was.—Yours, etc.,

W. A. DAVENPORT.

Hotel Bella Vista, Esplanade, Bray,
Co Wicklow, July 31st, 1933.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The hornet, about which an inquiry is made in your issue of this morning, is, like the nightingale, an absentee from Ireland, and the insect which your correspondent describes was certainly not that species, but the much more formidable-looking "giant sawfly," known to entomologists as sirex gigas. Often mistaken for a hornet, this insect, at first sight, frequently causes alarm, but it is perfectly harmless, except to growing timber, and its handsome appearance should be a strong point in its favour. Your correspondent's description leaves no doubt as to its having been the insect he saw. In hot summers it is not very rare in the southern half of Ireland, and I remember being flown against by one in a dazed condition in Great Brunswick street a few years ago. It does not, however, seem to be very familiarly known.—Yours etc.,

OBITUARY.

VICTORIA LADY HOLMPATRICK.

The death took place yesterday at her residence, Longthorpe House, Peterborough, of the Dowager Lady HolmPatrick. Born in 1847, Lady Victoria Alexandrina Wellesley was a grand-daughter of the first Duke of Wellington and sister of the third and present Dukes. She married in 1877 Mr. Ian Trant Hamilton, son of Mr. James Hans Hamilton, M.P. for County Dublin from 1841 until 1863. Mr. Ian Hamilton was himself representative of Dublin County in the House of Commons from 1863 until 1885, raised to the peerage of the United Kingdom in 1897 with the title of Lord HolmPatrick, and died in the following year. Lady HolmPatrick had five children, the present holder of the title and four daughters—the Hon Mrs. Georgina Anderson Pelham, O.B.E.; the Hon. Sybil Hamilton, Lady Swansea, and the Hon. Mrs. Clare Willis.

SIR MAURICE DESPRET.

Sir Maurice Despret, K.C.V.O., President of the Compagnie Internationale des Wagons-Lits et des Grands Express Européens, died suddenly at Spa, Belgium, on Sunday night. He was in his seventy-second year.

Sir Maurice was a Conseilleur Juridique of the King of the Belgians, a former President of the Court of Cassation, and also President of the Sofina Company (Société Financière de Transports et d'Enterprises Industrielles).

CAPTAIN W. J. MENAUL, M.C.

The death occurred on Saturday evening last of Captain William John Menaul, M.C., of Laurelvale, County Armagh. He had captained the Laurelvale Cricket Club against the Harmony Club in a Junior League match, and entered the pavilion to lock up. He appeared then to be in his usual health. About thirty minutes afterwards, however, he was found lying dead in the pavilion. His death was due to heart failure.

Captain Menaul was manager of Messrs. Thomas Sinton, Limited, linen manufacturers, Lamenvale. He served in the 9th Battalion Royal Irish Fusiliers in the Great War, and was awarded the Military Cross for gallantry at the Somme, where he was wounded. He was mentioned in despatches for bravery during the final offensive, and was decorated with the Croix de Guerre by the King of the Belgians. Captain Menaul was aged forty-five years. He was chairman of the Laurelvale Branch of the British Legion.

DUBLIN UNIVERSITY VACANCY.

In deference to the opinion of certain College authorities as to the undesirability of a full-time professor in charge of an important department becoming a member of the Dail, Professor J. W. Bigger has decided not to be a candidate for election for the vacant seat in the Dublin University constituency.

Cries for help were heard by climbers in the Zlobista gorge in Slovakia, states Reuter's Vienna Correspondent. They found a girl who had been lying for 70 hours on a ledge of rock. On the rocks below lay a youth, her companion, dead.

LONDON LETTER.

MORIBUND LIBERALISM.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

Mr. Lloyd George's declaration that Liberalism is dying out has caused much perturbation in the Liberal ranks, but its truth can scarcely be denied. Even now the Liberal Party in Parliament is in a state of flux, since its extremists are anxious to cross the floor of the House of Commons and ally themselves with the Left, while the moderates are looking to join Sir John Simon and Mr. Walter Runciman. Much is heard about Sir Herbert Samuel and his supporters in the House of Commons, but what is ignored is that they were all elected by Conservative votes, and that there is no seat in England that can be asserted as safe for an independent Liberal candidate. If Liberalism had not thrown itself into the national cause at the general election it would have been destroyed almost beyond hope of recovery.

Mr. Henderson and the Labour Party.

Mr. Arthur Henderson, having been selected against considerable Labour opposition as candidate for the Clay Cross Division—a seat which has never yet returned a Conservative, and is unlikely to vote for a National Government candidate—will probably be elected in due course when the election takes place towards the end of the month. His return to the House of Commons is likely to cause some little disturbance in the Parliamentary Labour Party, which elects its leader at the opening of every session; for the Parliamentary leader had always been recognised as the national leader as well. Mr. Henderson is Secretary of the Labour Party, and also its Treasurer, and, while it is thought that it will be too much for him to become national and parliamentary leader, he was for a time national leader, secretary and treasurer. In the circumstances, a meeting of the Parliamentary Labour Party will be of exceptional interest, since the Labour Party in and out of Parliament is greatly attached to Mr. George Lansbury, who may have to give way to Mr. Henderson.

International Police.

It may be news to many people that there is a small body of international police now at work in Europe in the shape of a quintette of highly-trained detectives, who, knowing no barriers caused by frontiers or Customs, possess the aid and support of the most powerful police organisations of Europe. The squad came together by accident, when it was discovered, after a combined drive against a gang of forgers in Holland, that remarkably good work might be done by selected men from Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany, and a move was set on foot to establish an international squad. Criminals for years past have been able to dodge through frontiers without much trouble by means of forged passports, and the police have sometimes been held up because they were unable to overcome formalities quickly enough. These special police, however, will be able to cross frontiers without delay.

Danish Bacon.

Danish bacon is so remarkably plentiful in this country that it is rather surprising to learn that the Danes are suspected of preparing an arrangement by which they will break through the bacon marketing scheme, and will obtain almost complete control of the industry in Great Britain. Denmark is allowed at present to send here 62 per cent. of our foreign imports of bacon, but there is nothing to prevent her from sending a smaller quantity. She is reducing her pig population, however, and it is said that she plans to cut down exports to Great Britain to such an extent that the demand will exceed the supply, with the result that, when once the British supply is exhausted, bacon will be forced up to high prices. Such a situation would lead to a request to the Danes to send more bacon, and, as they would be in a position to dictate their own terms, it is asserted that their demand would be that all restrictions on their bacon exports should be lifted.

The Davis Cup.

The triumphant return of the victorious British tennis players from Paris this evening with the Davis Cup has given rise to a problem which must be solved very quickly. So many years have passed since the cup was here, that nobody knows where it ought to be kept, and it is suggested that it may be placed on exhibition for a year in one of the public museums, or placed in the vaults of a bank for safety. The matter is to be decided in the course of the next few days—probably before a dinner which will be given on Thursday in honour of the players at the Savoy Hotel. It is interesting to notice that no duty was payable on the cup, since it is classed as re-import. The British share of the gate money from the challenge round played in Paris will be about £8,000, but none of this goes to the players, since, as amateur tennis players, they must not handle any official money, even for expenses. Travelling expenses and accommodation are provided, but they must pay out of their own pockets any incidental expenses, such as gratuities and laundry.

Aeroplanes for Egypt.

The visit of the director of the Military Aviation Section of the Egyptian Ministry for War, who is expected to arrive in London this week, is connected with the purchase of British aeroplanes for his Government. He will confer with the Egyptian Minister in London, and it is understood that at least ten new machines will be ordered. They will be of a rather larger type than most of those previously supplied, and their equipment will include wireless apparatus. The contract thus will benefit not only the aeroplane construction and engine building industries, but also the wireless and electrical trades.

The Imperial Pound.

A task performed once in every ten years is being carried out at the National Physical Laboratory at Teddington by the comparison of the imperial standard pound with the parliamentary copies which are enshrined in the main staircase of the House of Commons. The operation is intricate and delicate, being made on what is described as the most exact weighing machine in the world. This machine, which has just been inspected by a number of experts, is installed in the home of Sir Joseph Petavel, the director of the laboratory, where, kept at a regular temperature, it is shielded constantly from possible magnetic disturbance. It is so delicate that it is operated from an adjoining room, in order that its accuracy may not be impaired by contact with human beings.

GENERAL O'DUFFY ON THE GUN COLLECTION.

AN ASTONISHING RUMOUR DENIED.

WHY HE REFUSES TO GIVE UP HIS FIREARM.

MATTER MAY BE DEBATED IN DAIL.

IT is understood that thousands of persons throughout the Free State are affected by the decision of the authorities to collect all the revolvers held on licence certificates.

The holders include many ex-officers of the Free State Army, bank managers, persons connected with important industrial concerns, and others.

It is clear that the collection is not, as has been suggested, confined to persons associated with the newly-formed National Guard.

General Eoin O'Duffy, Director of the National Guard, when asked by an "Irish Times" representative yesterday about his revolver, replied: "I have it still."

Among those who surrendered their arms during the week-end, it was learned yesterday, was Mr. T. Westropp-Bennett, Chairman of the Free State Senate, who was visited by police officers at his home in Co. Limerick.

An official at detective headquarters at Dublin Castle stated yesterday that it was "not advisable to disclose" the reasons for the Government's decision, but that, to make the order immediately operative, a decree revoking certificates had been issued, and that this was put into force during the week-end, so far as reasonable methods were concerned.

"Some holders of arms and ammunition kindly and courteously handed over everything, while others have made a protest, and held on to what they believe to be their private property, and necessary for their private defence," he said.

As July 31st is the date of expiry for gun licences or certificates, all these permits would have terminated yesterday, and renewals would have dated as from to-day.

WIDESPREAD ACTIVITY.

Reports from our correspondents show that members of the Civic Guard were actively engaged in collecting arms throughout the Free State during Saturday and Sunday.

At about 8.30 on Saturday evening the Guards visited the residence of Mr. T. Westropp Bennett, at Summerville, Bruff, with an order revoking his licence to have a revolver, and at their request he gave it up. All persons who held licences or permits in the district of which Bruff is the police headquarters were visited. Several are said to have refused to surrender their weapons. The Bruff area includes a large portion of East Limerick.

Our Limerick Correspondent reports that all revolver permits in the city and county have been revoked. The revocation orders have been signed by Superintendents of the Civic Guard in the several districts. The order applies to water bailiffs. It is stated that possessors of permits generally have complied with the police request.

At Ballina (County Mayo) on Sunday the Civic Guards visited the houses of all persons who possessed revolvers. The arms in the local banks also were collected. Free State aeroplanes circled over the town during the collection.

In the Claremorris district about six revolvers were surrendered.

All revolvers held under permit in the Galway and Oughterard districts were taken up by the police on Saturday. The police showed no regard for politics. Even high officials were included in their visits, and it is stated that no owner refused to deliver his arms.

In Dundalk the Civic Guards and detectives who collected arms are said to have met with no refusal.

No member of the National Guard (A.C.A.) in the Monaghan area has a permit to have arms. Weapons held by other persons in the area have been collected. A few persons are said to have expressed surprise at the police demands, but none has refused to give up his arms.

The police in Tipperary, Listowel and Cork have visited licence-holders and taken possession of their firearms.

THE GOVERNMENT'S ATTITUDE.

PROBABLE DEBATE IN DAIL TO-DAY.

By Our Political Correspondent.

It seems to be generally accepted that the Free State Government should be given the earliest opportunity of making a statement on the activities of the police authorities during the week's end in collecting arms from persons who were duly licensed to carry them.

This will be done in the Dail to-day.

There are several ways in which the matter can be raised. A private notice question could be asked, or a request for information might be made, or the matter might be raised on the motion for the adjournment of the House.

It is likely that a private notice question will be put, and I understand that the Government are disposed to permit a full debate.

The Government will, no doubt, be asked to state their policy with regard to unlicensed arms, and whether any effort will be made to recover them.

A meeting of the Executive Council was held last evening, when, no doubt, the situation was discussed.

It was learned that the executive of the Cumann na nGaedheal Party had the matter under consideration last evening, but no decision was taken. It may be further considered to-day before the sitting of the Dail.

GENERAL O'DUFFY ON THE NEW MOVE.

REMARKABLE DISCLOSURES.

GENERAL O'DUFFY issued the following statement last night:—

"The obvious intention of the Firearms Act was that arms should be kept out of the hands of criminals and ill-disposed persons, while they should be available under licence to citizens of good character, whose lives or property might be in danger of attack. It is to me inconceivable that there should be a proposal so to administer the Act as to deprive law-abiding citizens of the means of self-defence or defence of their property, while it is admitted that thousands of guns are illegally held all over the country.

"So far as the National Guard is concerned, I am informed to-day that no more than ten members have arms, and all hold permits. Other citizens who hold revolver permits are mostly bankers, or those carrying large sums of money. The total number is very small, and all have satisfied the Gardai as to the necessity to have permits. It is clear, then, that the action of the Government was not taken because any fears were entertained as to the safety of the State because such people were in possession of a revolver. I fear the purpose is to create an atmosphere to justify interference, official or unofficial, with the National Guard, a body of unarmed men, enrolled in a non-military organisation, which is gradually securing the confidence of the people on its policy.

NON-POLITICAL.

"We have been accused of being attached to a political party. I have proved these last few days that we are not. We have been accused of entertaining the idea of dictatorship. On the contrary, we will oppose, so far as we can, any such line of action. We are accused of being an armed body. We are unarmed.

A RUMOUR DENIED.

"We have arranged a solemn anniversary to be held in memory of the dead for the 13th August. Owing to the economic conditions prevailing, we only accept a small representation from each county, say 3,000 or 4,000 volunteers in all. It has been canvassed in Government circles that we intend seizing the seat of government and the military barracks in Dublin on this occasion. No serious-minded person will believe this. In a previous interview I asked for the co-operation of the Government and State services to make the ceremony worthy of the occasion. Instead, scares are being deliberately created. The sorely tried people of this country have had enough of scares already, and the purpose of the National Guard is to allay any fears for the future in this respect.

"I have been called upon by a number of representative citizens to accept the leadership of the movement, and I will try to prove worthy of the trust and confidence reposed in me by building up for this country a great and useful organisation. We would wish the relationship of the National Guard and other organisations—excepting Communism, which we are determined to assist in wiping out—to be of the friendliest nature. We realise that there is some good in every organisation, as there is in every individual, and our object is to bring out that good and develop it, while maintaining at the same time our absolute independence of all parties.

"Ireland has shown extraordinary interest in the National Guard. Although only ten days formed its policy is being discussed in every home in the land. There are many, of course, who do not agree with our policy, but all are eager to know more about it. Any attempt at repression will be greatly resented by the people, who would undoubtedly show their disapproval of any such action in a practical way at the first opportunity. In this country, movements flourish under suppression and pampered movements fail, and, although the Craigavon ban and the Communist manifest have helped the National Guard, we do not, nevertheless, court suppression by the Free State Government, because of the unpleasantness it would cause among the people. But, ban or no ban, we will keep the step just at the pace the people desire.

QUESTION OF ARMS.

"In regard to the revocation of armed licences, so far as the few members of the National Guard who have arms are concerned, I have already stated that none of them should hold unauthorised guns. If any member whose licence has now been cancelled feels that he can part with his gun without endangering his own life, he should at once surrender it. I am not prepared, however, to take the responsibility of ordering members whom the Superintendent of the Gardai consider to be in danger to hand up their only means of defence.

"So far as I am personally concerned, as I have already stated, the person in the position of Commissioner of Police during the past eleven years, when banks, business houses and private individuals were held-up by armed men and robbed, and under whose direction the criminals were apprehended and punished, could hardly be regarded by the police as one whose life was not in danger of attack. Many of those are of the type which would be wary of engaging armed men in a fight for his life, but would be cowardly enough to attack unarmed men.

"While I was Commissioner of the Garda, and since I was removed from office, I was accompanied by an armed member of the Garda for the reasons given above. To-day this member has been taken from me. I have made representations in this matter, and I have had no reply. Under the circumstances, and in justice to myself, I am not going to give up my gun. I am sorry to be forced into what might be considered a disregard for the law, but feel that the Government and its advisors should not have strained, if not broken, the law themselves by their obvious interference with the discretion of the Superintendent of the Garda.

"They are showing complete indifference to the loss of human life. It is the first law of nature, and it is in conformity with the moral law that a man should safeguard his own life. If my revolver is seized I must take other steps to protect myself, whatever the consequences may be."

"AN IMPERIAL GESTURE."

CANADIAN LOAN IN BRITAIN.

FIRST FRUITS OF NEW EMPIRE AGREEMENT.

WIDESPREAD interest was evinced yesterday in the Canadian Four per Cent. Loan for £15,000,000, which is to be issued at par on Wednesday in the British market.

Its flotation immediately after the conclusion of the World Economic Conference is generally regarded as striking evidence of the essential solidarity of the Empire and of the determination of the Dominions to consolidate the imperial unit, a determination which will be encouraged by the certain immediate success of the issue.

"There are two special features of this loan that are of great significance," said the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, High Commissioner for Canada, in an interview yesterday. "In the first place, it follows the Empire declaration, in which the United Kingdom and all the Dominions joined, reaffirming a determination to develop inter-imperial trade, and indicates that the United Kingdom and Canada have taken an immediate forward step in that direction.

EMPIRE'S STABILITY.

"Secondly, it is a great imperial gesture that will enthuse British peoples throughout the Empire, and increase their confidence in the success of the great Empire movement.

"With the United States, on one hand pursuing a policy of more or less nationalistic isolation, and the European countries which make up the gold group taking a similar attitude—although for different reasons—on the other, the Empire countries comprising one-quarter of the world's population and a quarter of the world's territory have been made to appreciate the importance of their position and their responsibility to their own people as never before.

"The progress and stability of the Empire is more assured to-day than it has ever been."

IRISH WELCOMED TO HOLLAND.

CATHOLIC SECONDARY EDUCATION CONGRESS.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

THE HAGUE, Monday.

The International Catholic Secondary Education Congress began here to-day in the presence of 250 delegates, representing many countries, including Ireland. The opening ceremony took place in the great hall of the Dutch Lyceum for Young Girls, where the Congress will be held. Both the State and civic authorities were represented—the former by the Minister of Education, Dr. H. P. Marchant, and the latter by the Burgomaster of The Hague. Dutch educational experts were also present.

Owing to the absence of the Bishop of Haarlem, Monsignor Aengenent, the address of welcome to the Congress was delivered by Canon Van Dam, Dean of the Hague.

In his address Canon Van Dam explained the importance of the Congress from the pedagogic, religious and international points of view. The world crisis, aggravated by the economic position and unemployment, exerted a great influence on secondary education. Of special interest was the eternal struggle between old and new methods, and in this connection he advised moderation in defence and in criticism, and courage in the application of new forms.

After the Congress had been welcomed by the President of the Dutch Secondary Education Society, Professor Corcoran, of the National University of Ireland, the President of the Congress, delivered an address.

In the name of the Dutch Government, Dr. Marchant heartily welcomed the Congress. In Holland, he said, the people were very much absorbed in educational problems, and all the questions which were to be discussed were of special interest to the position in Holland. The Government hoped that the Congress would result in a complete success, and would show the way to solve all the difficulties in regard to secondary education.

Dr. Goffinet, of Brussels, explained the great value of Christian ideals and the unity of Christian principles in education.

Dr. Bohn, of Bonn, gave an outline of the development of education problems since 1919.

A telegram of homage was sent to the Pope, and a telegram of greeting to Queen Wilhelmina.

At the conclusion of to-day's proceedings the members of the Congress visited Rotterdam and were shown over the docks.

ANNIVERSARY OF THE GREAT WAR.

GERMAN EX-SERVICE MEN'S MANIFESTO.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

BERLIN, Monday.

The President of the Ex-Service Men's League, "Kyffhaeuser," General von Horn, has issued a manifesto to its members reminding them that the nineteenth anniversary of the day is approaching, "when the German nation entered the war of defence."

"Neither the atrocity fables nor the disproved lie of Germany's war guilt will stand before the bar of history," it is declared. "Clean in its honour and in defence of the country, the old German Army fought for four and a half years, and has become immortal through the fame of its bravery, its achievements and discipline."

The manifesto concludes by affirming the League's loyalty to Hitler, and expresses the hope that in future years August 2nd may be celebrated as the special day of the German soldier.

DUBLIN COUNTY COUNCIL REVOLT.

THE ECONOMIC WAR.

"MINISTER'S SQUEALING SURRENDER."

DUBLIN County Council last night rescinded the resolution passed a year ago:—

> "That in the present economic crisis we, the Dublin County Council, pledge our support to the Government in whatever action they consider necessary to defend the State."

The motion of rescission was passed by ten votes to eight. Arguments used by those who opposed the motion were that it was stabbing the legally-elected Government of the country in the back, and that it was an attempt to stampede the Government.

Mr. Good made a plea for striking a bargain with Britain for the liquidation of the land annuity charge.

The discussion was raised by Mr. P. Belton, who, pursuant to notice, proposed the resolution to rescind the pledge of August 29th last, as he felt that was the best way of drawing attention to important matters affecting all the County Councils in the Free State.

BIG LOSS TO RATES.

The Land Bill, he said, proposed to wipe out all arrears of land annuities that had accrued three years ago, or before then, which meant, he thought, a loss of six, seven or eight thousand pounds to the country; and, whatever confidence was intended in the Government a year ago, he felt that this action of the Government was a very peculiar way of defending the State. If they allowed the motion to remain on the books they would be endorsing the action proposed in the present Land Bill in forgiving those arrears of land annuities.

Grants had been stopped from that Council, and now it was proposed to fund some of the arrears over a period of years, and when they were paid back they were going into the Exchequer, and not coming back to the County Councils. He suggested that they should get the law agent's opinion on the matter.

Mr. R. Blake seconded the motion.

Mr. Mulvaney asked Mr. Belton to withdraw the motion in the interest of peace.

PEACE PROPOSAL.

Mr. Good said that if all these arrears of land annuities were to be forgiven what was to prevent a combination of farmers arranging that they would not pay any more annuities?

The British Government, he continued, should be approached and told that this was not a matter of money, and asked what they would take to settle the matter; would they take twenty millions or twenty-five millions? In his opinion, the offer would be accepted. They could then have a moratorium for three years, and they could raise forty or fifty millions if necessary, get back their markets, and start to do some good for the country.

Mr. Fogarty said that Mr. Belton's motion meant stabbing the legally-elected Government of the country in the back.

Mr. J. P. McCabe asked did any man outside a lunatic asylum imagine that there was any comparison between the economic position at the time when the economic war was started and the position to-day? Why should he support a Government that had ruined the country?

THE BORDER.

Mr. Tunney said that the Government acted very honestly and rightly in going to the country for a mandate for their policy, and they got it. They carried out their promises. They were manly and brave in the midst of the economic crisis.

"I am," he asserted, "as much opposed to English rule in Ireland as I am to Russian rule in Ireland."

Mr. Dooge—There is no English rule in Ireland to-day. There is no country in the world as free as Ireland is to-day.

Mr. Tunney—What about the border?

Mr. Dooge—The border will be there when you and I are not here. The question to-day is, do we want to be partners in the British Commonwealth or do we want to be a Republic. The English people are indifferent.

MR. BELTON'S BLUSH.

Mr. Clare said that the resolution was a resolution to stampede the Government.

Mr. Belton said that he never suggested that there should be a surrender to England, but as an Irishman he blushed for shame when he read Mr. Lemass's statement in the Senate last week.

It was a squealing surrender to Mr. Thomas, who immediately replied with "Carry out the Treaty."

After a long discussion the division was taken, which resulted as follows:—

For—Messrs. Belton, Blake, Cullen, Delaney, Dooge, Dowling, Ennis, Morgan Good, McCabe, Rollins—10.

Against—Messrs. Clare, Devitt, Fogarty, Fox, McCormack, Mulvaney, the chairman (Mr. J. J. Shiel), Tunney—8.

The Chairman declared the motion carried.

ITALIAN FLIGHT HOPES.

WEATHER CONDITIONS IMPROVING.

The Italian air fleet may leave Newfoundland to-night for Valentia Island. That is deemed to be the earliest time that a start can be made on the eighteen hundred miles hop across the Atlantic Ocean.

The storms of the week-end have given place to high south-south-westerly winds, which would favour the flight; but the state of the sea does not warrant the risk being taken of flying over the sea, upon which a forced landing in case of mishap would virtually be impossible.

Crowds of sightseers visited the island again yesterday. The Civic Guards Bands marched around the island playing, and in the evening gave a recital on the promenade.

The motor launch of the cruiser Muirchu is to be used for bringing General Balbo and his crews from their seaplanes to the quay, where the guard of honour will be drawn up and the Civic Guards Band will play the Italian National Anthem.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT PAPAL PALACE.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

ROME, Monday.

One plumber was killed and three others injured at the Papal residence at Castel Gandolfo to-day through a mishap to the scaffolding on which they were working.

On learning the news at the Vatican the Pope retired to pray for the victims of the accident.

GANDHI TAKEN TO GAOL.

WITH HIS BAND OF MARCHERS.

MIDNIGHT SWOOP ON THE ASHRAM.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

AHMEDABAD, Tuesday.

MR. GANDHI, Mrs. Gandhi and Mahedav Desai (Mr. Gandhi's secretary), with thirty-two members of the Ashram, were taken to Sabarmati Gaol at 1.40 a.m. to-day.

The arrests were made under the Emergency Powers Act.

This confirms the belief that existed in Government circles at Simla last night that Gandhi would be arrested before he began his proposed spectacular march to-day through Gujerat, and is the Government's reply to the challenge of the Mahatma in starting a new individual civil disobedience movement with the object of obtaining swaraj (self-government) by compulsion.

Mr. Gandhi was arrested under the section of the Act which authorises action against persons about to act in a manner prejudicial to the public safety.

It is expected that Mr. Gandhi will fast.

This is the fourth time Mr. Gandhi has been imprisoned in India. His first term of imprisonment was in 1922, when he was sentenced to six years, but was released after two years on account of all-health.

The main object of Gandhi's new campaign, which he was quite aware would render him liable to re-arrest, is understood to be his belief that non-co-operation is necessary as a discipline and an education for the Indian masses.

THE EXTREMISTS.

He considers that only in this way can they become self-conscious of their Indian traditions and offer a moral resistance to the materialistic aspects of Anglo-Saxon civilisation.

Moreover, although many members of the Indian Congress disapproved of civil disobedience, Gandhi did not wish to renounce it altogether in the fear that if he did the extremists, left to themselves, would become still more extreme, and that the result would be a recrudescence of violence and terrorism.

Although this was understood in official circles, it was felt that it was no reason why the Government should play Gandhi's game. In fact, it was regarded as axiomatic that a Government prepared to negotiate with those whose declared policy was to break the law must also be prepared to abdicate all its authority.

BORDER TRIBES' DEFIANCE.

SHOTS AT WARNING R.A.F. MACHINES.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

SIMLA, Monday.

Bombs may be dropped from British aeroplanes on villages in the territory of the Bajauri at dawn to-morrow if they have not by then handed over three agitators, including the so-called Pretender to the throne of Afghanistan.

The aeroplanes, which dropped leaflets on the villages yesterday, were greeted by fusilades of rifle-fire at Khar, the headquarters of the Bajauri Chief. There were no casualties. Khar and Kotkai are the principal villages which may be bombed. The agitators have been stirring up trouble in the district.

The attitude of the Bajauri was also shown yesterday, when coolies engaged in repairing the Dargai-Chitral road, south-west of the Balampat Bridge, were fired on by hostile tribesmen from the other side of the Panjkora River. The coolies fled and escaped without casualties.

No movement of troops is expected unless the air operations prove useless.

NATIVE TROOPS ONLY.

These operations will be carried out with the maximum humanity possible, a warning of bombing invariably being given to enable the inhabitants to disperse. The humble mud houses of the villages are easily repaired. The crops are usually spared, except as a final means of pressure, after night bombing and delayed action bombs have been tried.

The Gandao column, composed of the 1st/7th Rajputs, the 5th/10th Baluchis, and the 3rd/13th Punjabis, with two batteries of mountain artillery and detachments of sappers, R.A.M.C., etc., reached Dand to-day.

It was decided not to use the British battalion (Gordon Highlanders) owing to the great heat.

The Upper Mohmands are now reported to be concentrating beyond the Khapak Pass, and appear to be on the point of renewing their attacks on the friendly Halimzai tribe.

A jirga of friendly tribes was held yesterday, which was attended by three hundred maliks (headmen), and at which cheers were given for the British and their timely support.

FROM "THE TIMES."

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

MR. HENDERSON'S JOB.

The Times, in a leading article to-day, says: Most of the comments on Mr. Henderson's decision to stand for Clay Cross seem to miss its true point of interest. They range from a plan in the Opposition Press over the imminent return to Parliament of an outstanding figure in the Labour movement, with an echo from Liberalism about the union of progressive opinion, down to a solitary sneer at Mr. Henderson's work as Chairman of the Disarmament Conference and his recent tour of the European capitals. All this, of course, is the most common-place party business. What really matters is the extent to which his own return to party business will affect the great task which he has undertaken at Geneva. That it must make some difference is hardly open to question, and Mr. Henderson would probably have been better advised, in his own interests, no less than in those of the cause of disarmament, if he had resisted the temptation to return to the scenes in which, till two years ago, he had spent his political life. At the age of seventy he might well have looked forward to ending it amid general good-will in a mission which is far too high to be affected by party criticism. If he adds not only the care of a constituency, but the active work of organisation to which he has devoted himself in the past, then he can hardly hope to have as much time and energy left for disarmament. Moreover, he is unlikely to get through an election campaign without being induced to say something which is better not said by a man in his present non-party position.

The re-assembly of the general commission of the Conference is planned for October 16, and Mr. Henderson will thus, in any case, have about a month in Geneva before the opening of Parliament. He should, moreover, be free to carry out in September the further tour of European capitals which he has in mind, and which he believes to be a necessary preliminary to a successful meeting of the general commission.

WELCOME TO WORLD'S EDUCATION CHIEFS.

LARGE GATHERING IN MANSION HOUSE.

ADDRESSES BY MR DE VALERA AND MR. DERRIG.

AT the first general meeting of the fifth biennial conference of the World Federation Education Associations, which was held in the Mansion House, Dublin, last night, Dr. Paul Monroe, President of the American College for Girls, Istanbul, Turkey, presided, and a civic and national welcome was given to the delegates. There was a large attendance.

President de Valera, on behalf of the Irish Free State and the people of Ireland, welcomed the delegates. The Lord Mayor of Dublin (Alderman Byrne, T.D.) and Mr. Thomas Derrig (Free State Minister for Education) joined in the welcome.

THE HEDGE SCHOOLS OF OLD.

Mr. de Valera, having welcomed the visitors, trusted that their stay would be pleasant for themselves and a fruitful one for the cause of education and for the peace and friendship which they had met to advance. These were causes which the Irish people always had at heart. For centuries after the collapse of the Roman Empire Ireland was almost the sole refuge of learning in Europe. The missionaries who went forth from her schools at that time took the leading part in evangelising the barbarian invaders of the West, in teaching them the arts of civilisation and inspiring them with the love of peace. Later, when her own territory was invaded and her traditional culture assailed, she maintained for centuries the rigorous discipline of her schools of poetry and law, and when these were destroyed the lamp of knowledge was kept alight in the hedge schools by wandering teachers, whose only material reward was a shelter and a scanty meal in a peasant's hut. The love for learning which had shown such persistence still remained in the hearts of the Irish people, and now that the moulding of the educational system was once more in their own hands, they hoped to regain for their schools their old pre-eminence and to contribute their full share again to the educational progress of the world.

THE EFFICIENT SCHOOL.

A matter which in Ireland they were prone to forget was the importance of relating the programme of their schools to the normal lives and avocations of their people. The most efficient school was that which best equipped its pupils with the knowledge bearing upon the life around them and the circumstances in which they were likely to spend their days, while relating that life to the life of the world.

The beginning and end of true education was instruction in religion and morals. It was not force nor fear, nor the sense of common material interests that bound men in society. It was the knowledge that they were brothers, children of one Father, fellow-subjects bound by the same law, and destined to the same end. The constant teaching of these trusts by word and example in the school, as in the home and in the church, was the surest means of promoting friendship, justice and good-will among the nations of the world.

IDEAL SYSTEM.

This was an ideal system to which they in Ireland were, perhaps, no nearer than many other countries, but it was an ideal which they should some day realise.

The Lord Mayor (Alderman Alfred Byrne, T.D.) joined with President de Valera in welcoming the delegates to Dublin and to Ireland. Dublin was honoured at its selection for that Conference. He expressed the hope that the holding of that Conference would bring about much good for the people of this country, and of every country represented at the Conference.

Mr. Thomas Derrig, Free State Minister for Education, joined with President de Valera and the Lord Mayor of Dublin in extending a hearty Céad Míle Fáilte to the delegates. They were, as a people, engaged in attempting to restore and revive relations with other countries that were broken or faded over a long period, and in no respect were they more anxious to preserve these relationships than in the sphere of cultural and intellectual endeavour. Such relationships, founded on mutual good-will and spiritual kinship, were most likely to endure. To-day when they had taken up the broken threads of their educational and cultural development, and were knitting anew the web of their national life, it was a source of satisfaction to know that Ireland had something distinctive to offer which might repay their examination; something which would assist the delegates in their efforts to realise a loftier and more inspiring conception of the value and power of educational ideals in the world of to-day. He trusted that the Conference would lead to the awakening of public opinion in this country to a deeper appreciation of the present needs of education.

FREE STATE'S POLICY.

Mr. Derrig then outlined the trend of educational policy pursued by the Free State Government, concluding with a special reference to the colossal task which the Government had undertaken in their attempt to revive the national language and make it once again the speech of the people.

Dr. Coffey, President University College, Dublin, said that in the World Federation East and West were bound together. He did not know anywhere else where a teaching body represented so fully and with such enthusiasm its own people as that of Ireland.

Alderman Cormac Breathnach, T.D., President Irish National Teachers' Organisation, on behalf of the local Reception Committee, also welcomed the delegates.

Dr. Monroe, President of the World Federation of Education Associations, expressed his grateful thanks for the kindly hospitality extended to the delegates since their arrival in Dublin. Their object, he said, was to bring about a common understanding among the nations in regard to that peace for which the world was groaning, and which would ultimately be achieved through education. Conferences nearly always dealt with conflicts between tradition and modern theory. There was a tradition common to all European people that when nations were at war, and when there was one strong nation, it should loan money to other small nations, and never expect to get it back. (Laughter.) "America," said Dr. Monroe, "never had that tradition." (More laughter.) It was not the school or the school master that should create a new social order.

The Hon. Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, United States Ambassador to Denmark, who was cordially received, paid a warm tribute to teachers. She paid a tribute to the crusade against illiteracy.

LORD ALLEN'S HOPE.

Lord Allen of Huntwood said that he was grateful to education for bringing him there on his first visit to Ireland. The last time he met the President of the Executive Council was when they were fellow-prisoners of the British Government. It was with real joy that he saw him placed at the head of that nation. "May the day soon come," added Lord Allen, "when our two peoples will live in mutual freedom and mutual understanding."

Greetings also were conveyed by Dr. Ralph Crowley, Board of Education, England and Wales; Professor Angelini, representing the Italian Government; Madame Liard, representing the French Minister for Education; Mr. F. W. Michie, Scottish Education Department; Mons. Paul de Vuyst (Belgium); Dr. Dagrutin Subotic (Yugoslav Education Department); Dr. M. Oshima (Japan).

THE KILLESTER DECISION.

SIR G. FRANKS ON ITS EFFECTS.

FUTURE POSITION OF TENANTS.

"THIS decision will, no doubt, greatly benefit a small number of ex-Service men who have had the good fortune already to get houses, but it is pretty obvious that it will act very much to the detriment of the ex-Service men who have not got houses," said Major-General Sir George Franks, one of the trustees of the Irish Sailors' and Soldiers' Land Trust, when discussing with an Irish Times representative yesterday the finding of the Free State Supreme Court on Saturday last that tenants of houses erected by the Trust are under no obligation to pay rents.

Sir George Franks said that in Dublin alone there were 1,600 applicants on the files, and he added that it seemed to him highly improbable that the British Treasury would authorise any more houses.

"It appears from the judgment," he said, "that the Court was of opinion that the rents charged were economic rents, and were calculated on replacement value. That is not the case. The average cost of a Land Trust house throughout the country is £500, and the average rent is 5s. a week—one-third of the economic value.

"The rents covered only the cost of administration, repair, upkeep, and certain contributions to the reserve fund which has to be maintained by the British Treasury for certain reasons."

Asked whether there was any possibility of an appeal to the Privy Council, Sir George Franks said that the whole matter would now be referred to the British Treasury, who would decide as to further action, if any. The trustees, in this case, he pointed out, were in rather an anomalous position, as they had not the powers of ordinary trustees, but were under the direction and regulation of the Treasury.

The Court's finding may have far-reaching results in Ireland.

Something like 2,700 families are affected by the decision, this being approximately the number of houses built by the Trust and now in occupation in the Free State. In addition to these houses, which are spread throughout the twenty-six counties, however, there are others in Northern Ireland. A decision in the Free State Courts does not constitute a precedent for courts in Northern Ireland; but will the victory of the Killester tenants lead to the instigation of similar proceedings by tenants in the North?

Steps are in contemplation by the Killester tenants, an Irish Times representative learned yesterday, for the recovery of all the rents which have been paid to the Trust. This question will be decided at a meeting of tenants, after their committee has consulted counsel.

'PLANES TO FIGHT DRUG SMUGGLERS.

EGYPT ORDERS TEN FROM BRITAIN.

It was announced in Manchester yesterday that the Egyptian Government had placed an order with Messrs. A. V. Roe, aeroplane manufacturers, for ten Avro machines of the 626 type.

These machines, it is understood, will be used by the Egyptian Government in its fight against drug smugglers.

For some time the Egyptian Air Force has been directing its attention towards the stamping out of the drug traffic, which at one time had grown to large proportions; and it is expected that with the help of the new machines the traffic will be completely stopped.

Each 'plane has room for a pilot and navigator, and carries a short-wave wireless set with which the pilot will be able to keep in touch with the aerodrome to give warning when any smugglers' caravan is sighted.

Machine guns and cameras will be included in the equipment.

A SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

THE TRANSPORT WORKERS' UNION.

DOCKERS HIT BY TARIFFS.

At the resumed annual conference of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union at the Casino Cinema, Killarney, yesterday morning, the annual report of the National Executive Committee and the balance sheet and accounts for the year 1932 were submitted, approved and adopted.

In submitting the annual report, Mr. William O'Brien said that the Union had had a most successful year. The income for 1932 had exceeded that of 1931, and the first six months' returns of this year showed that the income for 1933 would be very much in excess of 1932. In 1932 the credit balance had been increased by £9,222. In the last nine years the credit balance had been increased by £29,500, and at the end of 1932 it was £88,000.

Mr. O'Brien went on to say that the Union took a big part in the work of the Labour Party. Of the eight Labour members in the Dail five were members of the Union, and of the six members in the Senate three were members of the Union. The organisation, he revealed, had spent £3,500 in the two recent general elections.

The organisation had shown that Irish workers were fully capable of carrying on here in their own country as strong and as well-equipped a trade union as any other country could produce.

ENGLISH UNIONS.

The speaker went on to point out that, to him, strangely enough, some Irish workers seemed to have no faith in themselves, but contended that it was necessary to have branches of English unions in Ireland. He contended that this was an extraordinary view, having regard to the fact that some of those holding it professed to be in favour of an Irish Republic.

"We have no antagonism to the workers of other countries," he added. "On the contrary, we desire to co-operate with them fully, but we wish to do so on terms of equality, just the same as all other self-governing nations."

Mr. Thomas Kennedy, Vice-President of the Union, dealt with questions of wages and working conditions. He referred in particular to the unemployment caused among dockers through the operation of the tariff legislation of the Irish Free State Government.

He said that this question had been taken up by the Union, and that they had put before the Free State Minister for Industry and Commerce a definite scheme for finding alternative employment for dockers who had lost their employment through the tariffs, and for adequately compensating those dockers for whom, for one reason or another, work could not be found.

MINISTER'S PROMISE.

Unfortunately, he said, the scheme had not been adopted, but the Minister for Industry and Commerce had promised to give the matter consideration when the work of the Ports and Harbours Tribunal comes under discussion.

Mr. Kennedy added that a very gratifying feature of the year's work was that, whenever new industries were established or road or building undertakings begun, the workers engaged came to the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union for its help in the fixing of wages and conditions on these new undertakings.

Following the adoption of the reports, it was announced that Mr. William O'Brien, Dublin, had been re-elected General Secretary, there being no other nomination. Messrs. D. Clancy (Limerick), H. Farren (Dublin) and J. McClarnon (Belfast) were elected to the three vacancies on the National Executive Committee. They will hold office for a period of three years. There were four nominations.

The conference then proceeded to deal with a number of amendments to the rules of the Union.

FAIR WAGE CLAUSE IN CONTRACTS.

DUBLIN COUNTY COUNCIL DISCUSSION.

At the meeting of the Dublin County Council last night, arising out of a motion to instruct the County Surveyor to enter into contracts for the supply of stone only with contractors who comply with fair conditions as regards employment and accept trade union conditions, Mr. Belton said that he was opposed to the principle of the County Council being used to organise a trade union.

They would not, he stated, see 24s. a week paid in half a dozen cases on the land in County Dublin this winter.

The County Surveyor (Mr. J. A. Ryan) said that while he was thoroughly in sympathy with the object of the resolution, which was to try to give a living wage to the workmen under the control of the County Council, he thought that he should not be made a sort of arbitrator between the trade union and the employers.

The motion was eventually postponed.

Votes of sympathy with Mr. P. Mulvaney on the death of his son-in-law, and with Mr. H. M. Dardis on the death of his mother-in-law, were passed.

Mr. Luke J. Duffy, Glencar, South Strand, Skerries, and Mr. J. H. Downey, were co-opted members of the County Council.

CORK COUNCIL HEAT.

SCENE IN CHAMBER.

From Our Correspondent.

CORK, Monday.

Heated scenes were witnessed at Cork County Council yesterday, when, during a discussion on the right of a man to certain work, Mr. T. Corry, T.D., addressed a remark to Mr. B. Brasier.

The two members were seated opposite each other, and in a moment both were attempting to level blows across the table.

Pandemonium ensued, and, while the Chairman kept banging his bell, both members continued to address observations to each other.

Mr. D. L. O'Gorman said that Chairman had not seen fit to assert his authority, adding: "This room is not fit for any decent man, and it is entirely your fault."

In the midst of a general pandemonium the Chairman declared the meeting adjourned until 3 p.m.

On the resumption of the meeting the Chairman said that before the adjournment he had been accused of bringing discredit on the chair, and he asked for the withdrawal of that statement.

Mr. O'Gorman said that he had heard one member call another "an Orange dog" and "an informer," and the Chairman had not demanded a withdrawal. He held that he had nothing to apologise for in his remarks accusing the Chairman of partiality, and he would refuse to withdraw.

Later Mr. M. Murphy appealed to Mr. O'Gorman to withdraw the words, but Mr. O'Gorman again refused, and reasserted that the Chairman had made no attempt to secure the withdrawal of the observation made towards Mr. Brasier.

Mr. Corry then moved Mr. O'Gorman's suspension, which was the signal for further heated references, and the Chairman left the chair.

After other members had refused to take the chair, no business was transacted, and the members dispersed.

A girl had just been elected "Queen of the Danube" at Lagymanyoser, Hungary, states Reuter's Vienna Correspondent. Her father was so delighted that he danced for joy—in a boat. He fell overboard and was not seen again.

TUT
THE MAGIC HAND CLEANER

RAILWAY COMPANY ARBITRATION.

PROHIBITION WRIT.

Reserved judgment was delivered in the case of the State at the prosecution of the Great Southern Railways Company against Mr. H. J. Ryan, K.C., Railways Tribunal Arbitrator, and Mr. Conor A. Maguire, K.C., and an order was made by a majority of the Court to issue a writ of prohibition by which the Arbitrator would be prevented from giving a decision upon a judicial question which had been brought before the Tribunal.

An application had been made to the Court by the railway company to prohibit Mr. Ryan from further proceeding with the hearing of a case under the Railway Acts, 1924, in which the appellants were Richard Cole and other engine-drivers in the service of the company, who were the respondents, in as much as his decision would necessitate an exercise of judicial power which was unauthorised and contrary to Articles 64 and 68 of the Free State Constitution, and would be ultra vires the powers conferred upon him by the Railways Acts.

The company contended that the arbitrator, Mr. Ryan, and Mr. Conor Maguire, the former arbitrator in the Railways Tribunal were acting ultra vires in as much as they purported to exercise judicial powers contrary to the Constitution. In the second instance that alleged that the engine-drivers, Mr. Cole and the other appellants, had entered into a contract with them for a valuable consideration in lieu of their rights of compensation under the Railways Acts, and upon that issue they submitted that the arbitrator could not exercise jurisdiction as it involved a matter for legal determination.

Mr. Justice Sullivan, in his judgment, said that there were certain matters in which the arbitrator could exercise jurisdiction, but he could not exceed his jurisdiction by exercising a judicial power, which could be exercised only by a court of competent jurisdiction. Such a court had been described by a number of decisions, and the question in this case was whether the section of the Act conferred such power upon the arbitrator. The powers of the arbitrator were limited by the section of the Act, and he could not determine the liability of the company in such circumstances as were brought before the Court, as he was exercising a judicial power with which he was not invested by the Act. In the circumstances, he decided that the arbitrator had no jurisdiction to decide the question raised by the application of the company, who were, therefore, entitled to the order of prohibition against the arbitrator to prevent him from proceeding further with the hearing of the case.

Mr. Justice Hanna said that he had arrived at a different conclusion, as he took the view that the dispute was within the schedule of the Act, and it would be contrary to the practice of the Court to issue an order of prohibition against an arbitrator. Certain rights to compensation were given by the Act to the officials and servants of the railway company, and he thought the arbitrator was empowered to decide upon a claim where a dispute arose.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne concurred with Mr. Justice Sullivan in his judgment, and said that the point at issue in the dispute which had arisen between the appellants and the company could be decided only by judges.

Mr. Justice Sullivan remarked that the onus of bringing this action should not be cast upon the railway servants, and wished to know from counsel if he would give an undertaking to have the case forthwith brought before a Court of competent jurisdiction to decide the matter at issue in the case.

Mr. Phelps, K.C., who, with Mr. E. J. Kelly, K.C., and Mr. Joseph Healy (instructed by Mr. John J. McDonald), appeared for the Great Southern Railways Company, replied that he could not give such an undertaking at the moment, and would have to await instructions from the directors, before whose board the matter would come in a few days for decision.

Mr. Justice Sullivan said that in the second application by the company, against Mr. Conor Maguire, a similar order of prohibition would issue, as the same point in regard to the exercise of judicial power was raised in that case.

In the case of Henry Gallagher, a shop employé of the railways company, the Court decided to adjourn the hearing of the arguments.

Mr. Justice Sullivan said that in the applications against Mr. Ryan and Mr. Conor Maguire the order of prohibition would not issue until the Court heard that the railways company had decided to proceed before a competent Court to have it determined if the railways servants had foregone their rights under the schedule of the Act by the agreement into which their unions had entered with the company.

Mr. Vincent Rice, K.C., Mr. James Geoghegan, K.C., and Mr. P. J. Roe (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) appeared for the Attorney-General; Mr. Gavan Duffy, K.C., and Mr. D. Fawsett (instructed by Messrs. James O'Connor and Co.) for Henry Cole and the other engine drivers in the employment of the company; Mr. Carson, K.C., and Mr. W. G. Fallon (instructed by Mr. James J. Hickey) for the representatives of Henry Gallagher, the shop employé; and Mr. Joseph Gleeson, solicitor, watched the proceedings on behalf of the National Union of Railwaymen and other applicants.

CIVIL SERVANT'S SALARY "CUT."

MANDAMUS ORDER.

Mr. J. A. Costello, K.C., with whom was Mr. D. Johnston (instructed by Mr. W. J. M. Coulter), applied, on behalf of Mr. Harry Lisney, Cremorne, Shankill, Co. Dublin, a civil servant, for a conditional order of mandamus directed to the Minister for Finance, calling on the Minister to carry out his statutory duties as provided by Section 14 of the Civil Servants (Transferred Officers) Compensation Act of 1929.

Counsel said that this was an exparte appeal from the decision of Mr. Justice Hanna, and was for an order of mandamus directing the Minister to refer Mr. Lisney's application to the Civil Service Compensation Board set up under the Act of 1929, or to admit Mr. Lisney's claim to retire under Article 10 of the Treaty.

Mr. Lisney, he said, was a valuer and surveyor in the Valuation Office. He had reached his maximum salary. On April 30th certain deductions were made from Mr. Lisney's salary, purporting to act on the provisions of a bill which was going through the Dail at the time, but which was not yet law. Mr. Lisney's case was that he was entitled, by virtue of the Transferred Officers Act, to retire under the provisions of Article 10 of the Treaty, as amended by the supplementary agreement. He gave notice on April 18th, 1933, of his intention to retire, because of the change in the condition of his service. The Minister would contend that he had power to make the change by departmental action apart from the Act.

In granting the conditional order, the Chief Justice said that the Court did so because the delay, as appeared by the correspondence, was so long and so unexplainable, that prima facie it appeared to amount to a refusal to comply with the section. The Minister might come in to show cause, and might show that the delay was capable of satisfactory explanation

The conditional order was made returnable for 9th August, to the Vacation Judge.

THE ERNE FISHERY.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S APPEAL UPHELD.

Reserved judgment was delivered in the appeal in the case of Major R. J. Moore, of Ballyshannon, and other members of the Erne Fishery Company, against a number of fishermen in the Ballyshannon district and the Attorney-General of the Free State.

The appeal was brought by the Attorney-General from a judgment of the High Court in favour of the plaintiffs, who claimed a declaration that they are entitled to a several fishery in the tidal waters of the River Erne, from the falls of Assaroe to the bar at Ballyshannon.

Before reading his judgment, the Chief Justice announced that it represented the joint opinion of Mr. Justice Murnaghan and himself on all the questions for decision by the Court, and said that he wished to acknowledge that the great labour of putting it together was Mr. Justice Murnaghan's.

The Chief Justice dealt at considerable length with the plaintiffs' claim to make title, and the documentary and oral evidence which had been tendered at the hearing of the action, and said that it had been admitted by the Attorney-General, and had, in fact, been proved, that since the reign of James I. the plaintiffs and their predecessors in title had been in possession of the fishery in question, but the Attorney-General contended that under the law applicable the plaintiffs has not shown in law any right to the several fisheries in question.

Under the law, in order to sustain their claim to the several fishery, the plaintiffs must prove as a matter of fact, by reasonable evidence, that the several fishery, the subject matter of the action was appropriated or was in fact possessed by their predecessors before 1189, and there was an insuperable difficulty in holding that any such fishery was appropriated by the Crown before 1189.

Having stated his construction of statutes of Charles I., on which the plaintiffs relied, the Chief Justice held that the title claimed by the plaintiffs was invalid and that the appealed should be allowed.

Mr. Justice FitzGibbon came to a different conclusion. He said that the existence of the several fishery had been recognised as such by the statutes, and had been constantly dealt with as property rated for the relief of the poor. The special Commissioners of Fisheries and the Inspectors of Irish Fisheries had given certificates from time to time which could not have been given unless the Inspectors had first satisfied themselves that the fixed engines erected by the plaintiffs were legally erected by the persons legally entitled to the several fishery.

In the result the appeal was allowed, and the action dismissed.

Mr. Jellett, K.C., asked for a stay, stating that the plaintiffs wanted time to consider their position. It was, he said, a very serious matter that the plaintiffs should suddenly lose property that for three centuries they had had in their undisputed possession.

The Chief Justice said that that Court could not consider the question of further appeal.

Mr. Lavery, K.C.; Mr. E. J. Kelly, K.C., and Mr. Manus Nunan (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) appeared for the appellant, and Mr. Jellett, K.C.; Mr. Overend, K.C.; Mr. Phelps, K.C., and Mr. Newett (instructed by Mr. R. H. Reid) for the respondents.

ROSCOMMON APPEAL.

CIRCUIT COURT UPHELD.

Reserved judgment was delivered dismissing the appeal of Patrick Hunt, of Milltown, Castleplunket, Co. Roscommon, the defendant in a civil bill brought by the National Bank, from the refusal of the High Court to grant a conditional order for certiorari to quash a decree of Circuit Court Judge Wakely against him for £65 5s. 3d.

It was stated at the hearing that the civil bill was issued against Patrick Hunt, as personal representative of his father. The decree, on its face, showed that Patrick Hunt in the title was sued as personal representative of the late Patrick Hunt, and the grounds of appeal were that the Circuit Court Judge had omitted to direct the Sheriff to take in execution the goods of the late Patrick Hunt; that the decree was a judgment against the appellant personally, and that the order was made without jurisdiction, and was bad on its face.

Mr. Wood, K.C., and Mr. Barra O Briain (instructed by Mr. Michael J. Keane) appeared for the appellant; and Mr. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. Hogan (instructed by Messrs. Maurice Staunton and Son) for the National Bank.

KILKENNY ESTATE.

PECUNIARY LEGATEES.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH.)

A motion was heard in the matter of the estate of Timothy W. Kelly, farmer, late of Upper Tullaroan, Co. Kilkenny, but who at the time of his death was resident in New York, where he had, it was stated, very considerable estate and also considerable estate in this country.

The residuary estate was mentioned at £17,000 or £18,000. He made a will in June, 1925, and a codicil was executed on 31st December.

The plaintiffs—James Cleary and Catherine Cleary—are residuary legatees. The defendants are James Dillon, executor; Thomas Hogan, American executor, and Catherine Duggan, the latter being appointed to represent the pecuniary legatees.

Mr. Walsh (instructed by Mr. L. J. Ryan, Thurles), for the plaintiffs, said that the matter came on on further consideration of a former order and the Chief Clerk's certificate. Counsel mentioned that about £1,544 income tax was due and other small debts. No payment had been made for estate duty. The Chief Clerk found that £2,855 had come to the hands of the Irish executor, Senator Dillon, and, after an allowance made by the Chief Clerk, a balance of slightly over £2,000 remained in the hands of the Irish executor. Mr. Walsh said that his solicitor had received £4,717 7s. in nineteen American drafts, representing the sum bequeathed under the will to the pecuniary legatees, plus 2 per cent. interest. The pecuniary legatees were willing to accept these sums, and he asked for an order giving liberty to his clients to distribute them, and that no condition should be attached to their payment.

Mr. Price, K.C., with whom was Mr. Bacon (instructed by Mr. Nicholas Healy), for the defendant and executor, Mr. James Dillon—I do not suggest that any condition should be imposed. Counsel further said that a great deal of expense had been incurred, and the money was not exactly in the executor's hands.

Mr. J. Meade (for Mr. B. Collins, Revenue Solicitor) said that they had a claim for £1,105 3s., an admitted amount, and that was income tax absolutely apart from estate duty.

Mr. Price said that there was a little more than £2,000 coming in, and there would not be much money here by reason of what happened in America. The two plaintiffs were getting each one-sixth of the residuary estate sent over to this country, but they would have to pay debts in this country before they could keep it. He suggested that his client should pay £1,000 into court. Their claim for costs would have priority over the estate duties.

Mr. Justice Meredith directed £1,000 to be brought in by Mr. Price's client, and gave liberty to the plaintiffs to make the payments to the pecuniary legatees.

Mr. Binchy, K.C., and Mr. Esmonde (instructed by Mr. E. M. Lloyd) appeared for Catherine Duggan.

MONAGHAN WOMAN'S DEATH.

Kate Traynor, an aged Monaghan woman, was burned to death when two dwelling-houses were destroyed by fire at Monaghan yesterday.

The foundations of a huge Roman amphitheatre have been laid bare by excavations in the so-called "Vienna Hill," Near Oedenburg (Sopron), Hungary. Many Roman coins and valuables have also been discovered.

CORK INDUSTRIAL FAIR.

HIGH COURT JUDGMENT.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

Reserved judgment was given in a case concerning the Irish Industrial and Agricultural Fair, Cork, 1932, in which the liquidator, who was now engaged in the process of winding-up the company under the supervision of the Court, desired to have the opinion of the Court as to certain difficulties that had arisen in the distribution of the assets.

Last year, Mr. Justice Johnston said, the citizens of Cork, with commendable enterprise, carried through an exhibition, or industrial and agricultural fair, which was intended to show and make known the national culture, resources, products, arts, sports, and activities of the country.

A company, "limited" by guarantee and not having a share capital, was incorporated on 6th August, 1931, and the memorandum of association contained the essential provision for the purpose of the constitution of such a company—namely, that each member should be liable to contribute to the assets of the company, on its being wound-up, a certain fixed sum (£1 in this case); and it was further provided that the members should gain no pecuniary profit, directly or indirectly, out of the activities of the company, and that anything that should remain when the company was wound-up should go to some educational or charitable purpose in the City of Cork.

As the organisers of the present undertaking were not going to supply the necessary cash themselves, it became obvious that the first, and, perhaps, the most important, part of the objects and the purposes of the new company must be the power to carry through a scheme for what he might call "raising the wind."

Before the company came into existence at all a number of persons and firms had signed or given their assent to a document called a guarantee, but what the nature of this document was, and whether it had any legal binding force, he was not aware. The probability was that as it stood it had no binding force whatever upon the signatories.

Power was given to the Association to accept gifts of cash; to form a guarantee fund, and to receive subscriptions thereto from persons, whether members or not of the Association. A great deal of the misunderstanding that existed in this case had been brought about by the use of the phrase "guarantee fund." What the Association primarily needed was ready cash, and the "guarantee fund" was devised to include both payments of cash and guarantees of liability.

The contestants in this case—the National Bank on the one hand, and the unsecured creditors on the other—each for their own reasons had urged him to adopt a very strict technical construction of the word "guarantee" as used in the constitution of the Association, and it seemed to him that both in common-sense and law there was little to choose between the two views.

Having referred to the financial scheme devised by the company for the purpose of enabling them to begin the carrying out of the undertaking, Mr. Justice Johnston said that this was not a loan or advance of money by the bank to the company, because at the time the company did not require any money. It was a scheme by which the company was assured of the advance of money by the bank on a "general guarantee account up to the sum of £10,000," money which was to be repaid with interest and which was secured by a mortgage of the company's lands.

The fund that was thus assured by this "general guarantee account" was to be advanced not in a lump sum, but in advances by the bank as the work of the Fair progressed, and he saw no difficulty whatever in holding that this scheme amounted in effect and substance to the formation of the guarantee fund which was contemplated in the constitution of the company. There was nothing in that constitution which suggested that the company was intended throughout its career to drag through a precarious existence on credit, and that then, when it was being wound-up, the money-box was to be unlocked for the first time for the purpose of soothing its dying agonies. It seemed to him that the scheme so arranged by the company fulfilled not only substantially but literally the requirements of the memorandum and articles of association.

Mr. Justice Johnston held that the guarantees given to the National Bank, Ltd., to guarantee the payment of all existing and future liabilities of the Association to the bank, on a loan account not to exceed £10,000, did not constitute the guarantee fund of the company within the meaning of the company's articles of association. He held that, having regard to the power of the Association to accept payments of sums of money from persons on any terms that the arrangement entered into between the National Bank, Ltd., and the Association, whereby, at the request of the latter, the bank agreed to open an account for the Association; to honour all cheques drawn on that account; to grant accommodation on the general guarantee account, as a loan, to the extent of £10,000 for principal (with interest at the current bank rate), and to be entitled to get, upon the acquisition by the Association of the lands on which it was proposed to hold the Fair, a mortgage by the Association as a first charge thereon to secure all advances on the general guarantee account, was the formation of the guarantee fund, which was one of the objects for which the Association was to be established. He also held that the deed of charge, dated March 7, 1932, given by the company in favour of the National Bank, was vaild and enforceable in law.

Mr. J. M. Fitzgerald, K.C., and Mr. W. O'B. Fitzgerald (instructed by Messrs. M. J. Horgan and Sons) appeared for Mr. A. J. Magennis, liquidator; Mr. A. E. Wood, K.C., and Mr. Marnan (instructed by Mr. Arthur Cox) for Messrs. McConnell's Advertising Services, Ltd., Dublin; Mr. Phelps, K.C., and Mr. Newett (instructed by Messrs. Wynne and Wynne) for a number of unsecured creditors; and Mr. Overend, K.C., and Mr. Vaughan Wilson (instructed by Mr. P. C. Furlong) for the National Bank.

DUBLIN CHILD INJURED.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

In an action in which Kathleen Egan, aged 6½, suing by her father, Frank Egan, 39 Montpelier Gardens, Parkgate street, Dublin, was plaintiff, and Helena Robinson and William Robinson, trading as S. Robinson and Sons, 53 Capel street, Dublin, were defendants,

Mr. Diarmuid Fawsitt (instructed by Mr. Arthur Cox), on behalf of the plaintiff, applied to have a consent to settlement received and made a rule of Court. Counsel said that the action was brought to recover damages for personal injuries in an accident which occurred at Parkgate street on 13th December of last year. The child's thigh was broken, muscles were torn, and there were head injuries. The child had to be operated on three times, and had to use crutches now. The consent provided for the payment of £250 and a sum for medical expenses and costs.

In receiving the consent and making it a rule of Court, Mr. Justice O'Byrne directed that the £250 be lodged in Court to the separate credit of the minor, and that, until further orders, the dividends be paid to the father for the benefit of the minor.

IRISH WILLS.

Mr. Edward Connolly, of 1 Uplands, The Hill, Monkstown, Dublin, who died on 9th June last, left personal estate in England and the Irish Free State valued at £12,469.

PROGRESS OF U.S. WORK PLAN.

WOMEN'S CLUBS' BOYCOTT

OF EMPLOYERS WHO RESIST CODE.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Monday.

Organised labour won the first round of the struggle to thresh out the National Recovery Code for the vast American steel industry, employing half a million men, this morning's hearing before General Johnson, the administrator.

This victory prevents the steel companies from using the code to force the notorious "company unions" system—under which the workers of each company organise under the company officials—upon their employés. The code submitted by the owners, who are traditionally bitterly opposed to the independent organisation of labour by outside bodies, such as the American Federation of Labour, specifically provided for the maintenance of company unions.

FIRMS GIVE WAY.

The spokesman of the American Federation of Labour attacked this attempt to continue the ostracism of independent labour organisations by the steel industry.

General Johnson supported the American Federation of Labour, and finally Mr. Robert P. Lamont, President of the American Iron and Steel Institute, agreed to withdraw the objectionable clause, thus leaving the workers officially free to choose their own method of organisation. Mr. Lamont added, however, that the owners would make every attempt to continue to deal with their employés through the company unions.

The proposed code submitted by the owners also provides for a forty-hour week, and a minimum wage of 15 dollars a week.

RETAIL WORKERS.

Meanwhile General Johnson is pressing for a retail code embracing over 2,000,000 shops and employing over 5,000,000 persons. Labour in this case is divided over the question of a 48-hour week for food shops and a 40-hour week for all others, except drug stores.

The oil code is believed to be near a quick solution, following on a statement placing the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey behind the Administration's oil stabilisation programme.

Hundreds of thousands are expected to return to work this week, but so far no figures have been published.

Mrs. Foole, the President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has urged over 2,000,000 members virtually to boycott merchants and others refusing to adhere to the recovery programme.

INFLATION QUESTION.

Meantime the currency problem is not forgotten, but, according to the Washington correspondent of the New York Times, President Roosevelt's advisers declare that the Administration is determined fully to test the recovery programme before even considering embarking on any scheme of currency inflation. It is understood that the President is opposed to inflation unless it is absolutely necessary.

He recently gave it as his private opinion that inflation did not appear a necessary companion of the Recovery Acts.

PEER'S NIECE DROWNED.

INQUEST STORY OF MOTHER'S BRAVERY.

Efforts by Scouts and the mother of Troop Leader, Miss Bridget Winifred Barrett, niece of Lord Kensington, of Druidstone, Broadhaven, Pembrokeshire, to save her from drowning were described at the inquest at Marloes, near Haverfordwest, yesterday.

Miss Barrett, the daughter of Major F. W. Barrett, the polo player and trainer, of Wroughton Hall, Wilts, entered the water at Musslewick Bay on the last day of her holidays to see if the bathing was safe for the Scouts. She got into difficulties and was swept to the mouth of a large cave, which is covered at high tide.

Mrs. Barrett, who had her hand bandaged, said that she was returning from church on Sunday when a Scout rushed up and said that her daughter was in difficulties. She dashed down, boys tied a rope round her waist and she jumped in. She could not swim owing to the swell, and although she got within four yards of her daughter was washed back again.

A doctor said that a wound on the head had been caused before death, and Miss Barrett had probably been stunned.

Mr. V. J. Higgon, of Treffgarne Hall, Haverfordwest, the District Commissioner of Scouts for Pembrokeshire, speaking for Mrs. Barrett, paid a tribute to Scouts Meade, Moore, Dance and Gyles, who, he said, saved her life and did their best to save Miss Barrett.

A verdict of "Accidentally drowned" was returned.

HOMICIDE CHARGE.

ACCUSED MAN FOUND NOT GUILTY.

A unanimous verdict of "not guilty" was returned by the jury at Falkirk yesterday in respect of a charge of culpable homicide, brought against John O'Donnell (26), a blacksmith, of Gordon street, Gamelon, who was alleged to have assaulted his father, John O'Donnell, an ironmoulder, on June 7th, by fracturing his head with an axe, the father dying in the infirmary from his injuries.

An agent, on behalf of the accused man, advanced the plea—unusual for the Scottish courts—of mental dissociation or disturbance, due to cruel and violent treatment by the dead man of the accused man and his mother, whereby he was in fear of his life, suddenly ceased to be master of his own mind and became incapable of appreciating his actions.

A mental expert gave evidence that this condition could have been brought about by severe emotional strain caused by the father's drunken bouts; anxiety for his mother and sister, and lack of sufficient sleep.

The evidence of the accused man's mother and sister revealed an unhappy family life, owing to the dead man's drunken habits and violent conduct.

It was stated that he had assaulted a daughter; threatened his wife with a razor, cut her face open with a blow from his fist, and had been drinking for days before the evening of June 7th, when he came home and quarrelled with his son.

THE GOVERNMENT "DECIDES."

From Reuter's Correspondent.

BERLIN, Monday.

The Reichstag will have nothing to do henceforth with treaties concluded with foreign Powers; for it is the Government and not Parliament which now decrees laws, makes treaties, etc.

Consequently the introduction to future laws will be worded, "The Government has decided upon the following law, which comes into force herewith."

PEMBROKE'S SUCCESSFUL SWIMMING MATCH.

In the match between Weston-super-Mare and Pembroke last night the following were the results:—

100 Yards—1, Wheeler; 2, Fletcher. Won by a touch. Time—64 secs.

Squadron—1, Pembroke; 2, Weston. Won by two yards.

Water Polo—Pembroke defended the deep end. Morton missed in the first minute. Shannon saved well. Weston scored twice; then Wallace netted from a pass from Judd. Half-time: Weston, 2; Pembroke, 1.

Weston aded another on changing ends. Morton then scored for Pembroke, Wallace adding another soon after. Morton and Hamill scored further goals for Pembroke, and the final position was:—Pembroke, 5; Weston, 4.

HAVOC CAUSED BY GALE.

CROPS DAMAGED.

Considerable damage was caused in many parts of Ireland and Britain by the gale which prevailed during the week-end. Crops in the Counties of Cork, Dublin, Kildare and Roscommon suffered severely.

Passengers aboard the London, Midland and Scottish Belfast-Heysham steamer, Duke of Lancaster, had a thrill when the boat, being unable to berth at Heysham, circled for hours outside the harbour.

During the night the wind blew at gale force, and the decks of the boat were almost continually awash. Those passengers who came on to London by train arrived at Euston more than seven hours late.

YAWL IN DISTRESS.

An eighteen-foot yawl on which, it is said, there were two men, is believed to have been lost during a gale in Belfast Lough. Members of the Holywood Sailing Club from the clubhouse noticed the boat in distress. They obtained a rowing boat, and put out in an attempt at rescue. As they approached the yawl disappeared.

A passing coal boat also made for the scene, but the crew similarly lost sight of the yawl. The small boat had great difficulty in making its way back.

Subsequently inquiries were made along the coast, but there was no trace of bodies or wreckage.

Big marquees and tents in the Territorial camp at Ramsey, Isle of Man, were blown down in the gale.

The Weymouth lifeboat returned to the harbour towing the motor yacht, Heron, whose owner, Mr. Knight, his wife and crew of two, burned flares to attract attention when their vessel dragged anchor. The Heron was a few yards from Portland breakwater rocks when the lifeboat reached her.

GALE AT SEA.

The gale in the Isle of Man delayed steamers yesterday, and also caused damage. The Lady of Mann, from Fleetwood, encountered the full force of the gale. One window in the lounge was smashed by a heavy sea soon after leaving Fleetwood, and part of her stern bulwark was also damaged. The Manx Maid, which took the midnight sailing from Liverpool on Sunday night, got in at seven o'clock yesterday morning, and later left for Dublin. It is reported that she met heavy seas, which damaged her bulwark and carried away part of the deck structure.

Holiday-makers cheered the crew of the Clacton-on-Sea lifeboat when it returned from towing a barge into Harwich yesterday after a great buffeting in heavy seas and wind.

The barge Audrey of Grays, Essex, with a cargo of wheat, had part of her sailing gear carried away, and when the lifeboat reached her heavy seas were washing over her. Among the lifeboat crew were two volunteers, one being Alfred James Spurgeon, who had retired after thirty-four years' lifeboat service.

DUBLIN MOTOR ACCIDENT.

DEATH OF INJURED MAN.

Arthur F. Figgis, aged twenty-three, of 25 Lower Leeson street, Dublin, died at St. Vincent's Hospital yesterday morning as the result of injuries received when a collision occurred on Sunday night between a motor car in which he was seated and a hackney car at Leeson street and Appian Way.

Christopher Murphy, aged twenty-one, of Iveagh Buildings, Patrick street; Mabel McMahon, aged nineteen and a half years, of Brooklawn, and Sheila Cahill, aged twenty-one, of Main street, Donnybrook, are in the Royal City of Dublin Hospital, Baggot street. They are suffering from head injuries. Miss Cahill was still unconscious yesterday afternoon.

An inquest will be held on Mr. Figgis to-day.

PASSPORTS FOR TAXPAYERS.

FRENCH BILL TO TRAP DODGERS.

The provision of what may be described as "domestic passports" is the latest idea in France to induce people to pay their taxes. A bill endorsed by 140 deputies has been framed to give effect to the plan, and will be introduced in the next session.

Unofficial estimates indicate that only about three million of the potential eleven and a quarter million taxpayers of France actually pay any taxes at all. The proposed "taxpayers identity card," renewable annually, would come into effect on January 1st next year.

It would be issued to every person making a tax declaration, whether liable to taxation or not. Failure to make a declaration would prevent the individual from obtaining a card, and thus from carrying out the ordinary business transactions of every-day life. For, as from April 1, 1934—if the bill becomes law—it will be compulsory to present the card in order to open a banking account, rent a safe, deposit cash dividends, register deeds, deal on the exchanges—or even draw a pension or salary.

Each card will carry a number, and this number will be entered on all books, receipts, records, etc., of any transactions carried out by the owner, and on the card will be printed the dates on which taxes fall due and against them will be stamped the official receipts when they are paid. No new cards will be issued to any taxpayer in arrears on December 31. Thus automatically the defaulter's business life would be brought to a standstill.

If necessary, too, the use of the identity card might be extended to cover other social privileges.

BRAZIL'S FOREIGN DEBT SERVICE.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Monday.

A new formula for the payment of the Brazilian foreign debt service, which has been worked out in collaboration with Sir Otto Niemeyer, of the Bank of England, is, according to the newspapers here, being put forward by the Brazilian Government.

It is stated that the Minister of Finance has dispatched to the Economic and Financial Commission of the states and municipalities the proposed form of a declaration by the Government to the foreign creditors, in which the Government offers the resumption of the debt service under the new formula.

THE ALPINE CAR TRIAL.

BRITISH ENTRANTS DOING WELL.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

MERANO, Monday.

There were no serious casualties during the first day's run in the International Alpine Trial, which began at four o'clock this morning.

The only mishap of any note occurred to a German, Klotz, who was driving a Mercedes-Benz. In attempting to pass a Mercedes driven by Mr. E. K. Rayson, Klotz's car skidded off the road. The car missed two trees, dropped four feet into a ditch and overturned. The driver managed to crawl out of the car, but his passenger was pinned underneath. Mr. Rayson immediately stopped his car and helped to raise the Mercedes-Benz, and the passenger was then freed.

Among the first fourteen arrivals were Mr. Rayson, who is driving in the individual class for cars over 3,000 c.c.; the three S.S.1 cars, which are competing in the class for cars between 2,000 c.c. and 3,000 c.c.—Dr. E. J. H. Roth, driving a Talbot in the individual class for cars between 2,000 and 3,000 c.c.; Miss M. D. Patten, who is driving an Alvis in the same class, and A. F. Lago, who is also driving a Talbot in this class. All these cars arrived at 12.35 p.m. The 250 miles circular route was from Merano to Cortina, then on to Dampezzo, over the Giovo Pass—about 7,000 feet—and the Pordoi Pass and back to Merano.

W. W. Blackstone, driving an O.M. in the class for cars between 1,500 c.c. and 2,000 c.c., was forced to retire after skidding into a telegraph pole near Falzarego. He was not injured, but the car was so badly damaged that he was unable to proceed.

The feature of the day's run, from the spectators' point of view, was the thrilling broadside skidding on the Pordoi Pass, owing to the loose gravel surface. There were many exciting thrills, and several competitors had narrow escapes.

The following have also arrived:—L. Martin in a Humber, C. M. Walker in a Daimler, and J. G. Pige Leschallas in an A.C., all of whom are competing in the class for cars between 1,500 and 2,000 c.c.; the three Rileys which are competing in the class for cars between 1,100 c.c. and 1,500 c.c., and the three Frazer-Nashs, which are competing in the same class.

Among the individual entrants in the class for cars between 1,100 c.c. and 1,500 c.c. the following have arrived:—Mrs. A. G. Gripper and A. G. Gripper in Frazer-Nashs, F. H. Durcher in a Wolseley, C. H. Wood in an Aston-Martin, N. M. Keep in a Riley, Jack Hobbs in a Riley, A. L. Marshall and H. H. Porter Hargreaves in Frazer-Nashs, F. W. Morgan in a Wolseley, R. E. Tongue in an Aston-Martin, R. J. Nash in an M.G. Magna, and S. Sanders in an M.G. Magna.

MEASURES AGAINST KIDNAPPERS.

NEW YORK GOVERNOR'S PLANS.

From "The Times" Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Monday.

Mr. Lehman, Governor of New York State, is preparing a message to the Legislature, now meeting in extraordinary session, to enact measures for the financial relief of New York City, in which he will ask for laws increasing the penalty for kidnapping and making mandatory the prosecution of persons who compound felonies by paying ransoms.

Three men were arrested in Albany, two last night and one this morning, on suspicion of being connected with the kidnapping of Mr. John O'Connell, junior. They were questioned at length by the District Attorney. He refused to say who they were, but one is known to be a waiter.

The police of the Bronx are investigating a report that Mr. O'Connell was released by his kidnappers in 220th street in that borough. In both New York and Albany Federal agents are co-operating with the State and city police.

BASIS OF THE IDEAL MARRIAGE.

PSYCHOLOGIST'S VIEWS ON PREPARATION.

Ideal marriages were discussed by Dr. William Brown, the psychologist, at the annual summer school of the British Social Hygiene Council.

"The ideal marriage is a monogamous marriage, founded upon compatibility of feeling, general interest and mutual forbearance," he said.

"Only under conditions where the parents are completely at harmony with one another, and have the same outlook and ideals and the same desire for the happiness of their children, can the children develop under the best conditions."

Discussing the need for preparation for marriage, Dr. Brown said that a great deal of nonsense had been talked on this subject.

"It is said that individuals should not only be aware of the biological facts of sex, but that they should also have some form of experience before marriage," he said.

"The first of these statements is correct, but the second is not. It is my experience that no advantage is gained where practical knowledge has been attained before marriage."

WAR CEMETERY CROSS DAMAGED.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

BETHUNE, Monday.

Lightning has struck and seriously damaged thee British War Monument in the Lillers Cemetery, some 7½ miles from Bethune.

The base of the monument is almost entirely destroyed, and will be difficult to repair.

INDIANS INCREASING IN CANADA.

Information compiled by the Canadian railways shows that Indians in Canada are increasing, and now number 108,012. Indian children attending school number 15,300.

The majority of Indians engage in agriculture, fishing, and trapping. They also make chairs, baskets, canoes and snowshoes.

The annual income of the Indian from various occupations, including those of riggers and riveters for the erection of bridges and the steelwork of modern buildings, has been estimated at £1,350,000.

"As the twig is bent so will the tree Grow"

One of the Irish Bishops has said:—"Education does not consist wholly in cramming "children's heads with facts and "figures—it is far more important to mould character, to "develop a sense of responsibility in our youth, with a "keen outlook upon life and the "will to avail of its opportunities to the utmost for the "benefit of themselves and of "the community. The School "Savings Association tends "powerfully to produce this desirable result."

One of the chief aims of the Saorstat Eireann Savings Movement is to inculcate habits of forethought, thrift and self-reliance in children, in other words—character formation.

TRAIN ROBBERY SENTENCES.

PROTEST FROM THE DOCK.

"WE WILL GO ON HUNGER-STRIKE."

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

THERE was a surprising end to the case in which a number of men were convicted of implication in the robbery of £500 from a Great Northern Railway train at Gormanstown in 1929.

When sentence was passed one of the prisoners said: "We will go on hunger strike," and another shouted: "The whole case is a made-up one and a concoction and perjury by the police against us."

The following prisoners were arraigned yesterday for sentence:—

Owen Durnin, no occupation, with an address in Tara street, Dublin, who was convicted on Friday of conspiracy to steal part of the £500 in silver coin stolen from the train;

Francis Corr, proprietor of the Greyhound Inn, Swords, and his brothers, Terence and Joseph Corr, convicted of receiving (the only charge against them);

Peter Whelan, signalman, Gormanstown, convicted of receiving part of the money "under threat of immediate death or immediate serious violence"; and

Christopher Farnan, steeplejack, with an address in Eccles street, Dublin, who pleaded guilty to stealing the money, were all put forward for sentence.

COUNSEL'S SUBMISSION.

In the case of Whelan, Mr. J. P. Murnane (instructed by Mr. Gerald McGowan, solicitor) addressed the Judge on the question of the special finding of the jury in regard to the defence of duress applied to Whelan in receiving part of the money. He submitted that, taking all the circumstances into consideration, the defence should be successful.

Judge Davitt said that the jury definitely found by their verdict that duress was applied, and he felt he was bound by it. He imposed a sentence of twelve months' imprisonment, with hard labour, not to be executed if Whelan entered into recognisances to be of good behaviour for two years, himself in bail of £100 and two sureties of £100 each.

An application for leave to appeal was granted.

In the case of Durnin and the brothers Corr, Detective Inspector McGloin said that Joseph and Terence Corr had been licensees of a public-house at the North Wall, and had convictions against them under the Licensing Act. "I must say in fairness to Terence Corr," continued Inspector McGloin, "that he has been conducting himself well." "Durnin," added the inspector, "is the brains behind this whole case."

"SERIOUS CRIME."

Judge Davitt said that the serious aspect of the whole case was the careful methodical preparation that must have preceded the carrying out of the project. Receiving stolen property was a very serious crime, only less serious than that of blackmailing.

He imposed a sentence of three years' penal servitude on Durnin; two years' imprisonment with hard labour on Joseph Corr; eighteen months' imprisonment with hard labour on Terence Corr; and eighteen months' imprsonment with hard labour on Francis Corr.

In the case of Farnan, Inspector McGloin said that but for the assistance that Farnan had given the police it was doubtful if they would ever had traced the robbery. He believed that the whole of Farnan's career of crime was due to unemployment.

Judge Davitt said that Farnan had pleaded guilty to six charges of house breaking, two charges of larceny, and two charges of conspiracy, and finally to the larceny of £500 in silver from the train. Taking into consideration the assistance he had given to the police and the time he had saved the court he could not impose a lesser sentence than three years' penal servitude.

The Judge complimented Inspector McGloin and his assistants, Detective Officers Brady and Sullivan on the capability shown by them in bringing to justice the participants in this three-year-old crime.

MORNING STAR HOSTEL.

At the conclusion of the criminal business Judge Davitt said that he wished to remove a false impression which might have been created in the mind of the public.

In a case before the court a fortnight ago, one of the witnesses in the course of his evidence he thought in an unguarded moment, made use of expressions which were given publicity, and which unfortunately, might have the effect of discouraging the organisers and people in charge of the Morning Star Hostel, run by Mr. Frank Duff.

That Institution was an admirable one, and was doing excellent charitable work. He could say that from his own knowledge and experience of the place and the officers of the court could say the same.

STOLEN MOTOR CAR.

TWO MEN REMANDED.

(BEFORE MR. McCARTHY.)

Thomas Cleary, motor driver, and John Wilton, a labourer, both of Bayview avenue, North Strand, Dublin, were remanded on bail on charges of larceny and illegal receiving of a motor car value £50, the property of Mr. Samuel Nelson, North Richmond street, Dublin.

Detective Officer Coughlan said that, with Detective Officer Saul, he was motoring along Drumcondra road at 1.30 a.m. on Sunday morning, when a car, the number of which he recognised as that of a car that was reported stolen, passed and turned down Clonliffe road. They followed the car, and when questioned after the car pulled up at Ballybough, Wilton said that he had got a lift at Coolock and had nothing to do with the taking of the car. Cleary said that he got the car from a man whom he did not know.

Mr. Nelson said that he left his car outside Oxford terrace on Saturday at 11.25 p.m. It was undamaged when recovered by the Guards.

BABIES' CLUBS' ANNUAL OUTING.

The Babies' Clubs' annual outing took place on Saturday last, the following clubs being represented:—St. Andrew's, St. Laurence O'Toole's, and St. Patrick's. Miss Hanrattie was in charge of the arrangements, and the party left Westland Row Station at 2.45 p.m. for Killiney Strand, returning at 9.30 p.m.

A most enjoyable day was spent, and close on 100 participated. Various sports and games were indulged in—skipping, running, jumping, egg and spoon races, etc. Tea, sandwiches, sweets, and fruit were freely disposed of during the day. Prizes were distributed to the winners of the events by Mrs. Smyth, of the Committee of St. Andrew's Club.

The success of the outing was mainly due to the generous contributions of Mr. George Byrne, Mr. R. J. Duggan, Mrs. Smyth, Miss Collins, Mrs. O'Connor, and the Committee of St. Patrick's Baby Club.

The Franco-German War of 1870 costs the Reich over £396,000 a year, states Reuter from Cologne. This is the amount contributed to-day by the Reich towards the pensions of 21,000 veterans who still survive.

TUT

BARRAGE'S GOOD CHANCE IN BRIGHTON STAKES.

THE three days' Brighton fixture, followed by two days at Lewes, concludes what is termed the "Sussex fortnight." The former venue can be a very pleasant rendezvous when there is no sea mist or high wind. This year the meeting has no opposition, and, judging by the entries, the sport will be of an exceptionally interesting character.

Captain Arnold Wills, who won the Stewards' Cup last week with Pharacre, is hopeful of bringing off a nice double with the aid of Chorist, who is engaged in the chief race to-day—the Brighton Stakes. This owner ran two in the race last year, and they occupied the leading positions, Chorist winning under 2lb. more than his burden on this occasion.

The seven-year-old is a useful performer over this distance—twelve furlongs; but he ran without much distinction in the Trundle Handicap at Goodwood, and I am not so sure that he will be able to turn the tables on Barrage.

The latter was a good fourth, and has only to allow Frank Butters's charge 2lb. for the outing. Moreover, with the weights on a higher scale it will be possible to give Barrage stronger assistance from the saddle. Alex. Law's gelding has been running with rare consistency of late. He has only won once, but that was over a mile and a half at Lingfield, and he scored comfortably from some useful performers.

Lower down in the scale I like the appearance of Gipsy Lad, who has won three races in succession in the space of two months. True, they were only in selling plate company, but if he has made the progress suggested by his form, the handicapper may have erred by placing him on the 6st. 13lb. mark.

Another favourably treated is Stop Gap, the mount of Cliff Richards. He did not run so well as expected in the Charlton Handicap at Goodwood, but previously won three races in four attempts, and has only to reproduce his earlier form to be dangerous. Sou'-Wester has been showing a return to his best in recent home spins, and C. Leader runs Carus in preference to Light o' Love.

Carus was a close third to Rapidan and Lestebridge over the course and distance in May. Gay Ensign, as a promoted "plater," will have to advance on anything he has done recently to win, and I give my vote to whose chief opponent may be Gipsy Lad.

Tag End will carry Mr. J. B. Joel's colours in the Marine Plate in preference to the penalised Rosemary's Pet and Mrs. Joel's Polar Bear, and, despite his nine years, I fancy the Foxhill candidate will go close. He was none too lucky when third, beaten a head and a short head to Monk Vendor and Quart Pot at Liverpool.

Opposition will be strong, for there are good accounts to hand concerning Golden Legend and Devineress, who have a penchant for downhill tracks, and the course specialist, Tetrapod. My impression is that will win from Devineress.

One of Gordon Richards's fancied mounts is Pipe of Peace in the Downs Maiden Plate. This filly has been disappointing all the year, however, and I prefer both Salford and True North, who were second in their last races over this distance. I think the form of behind Philander at Worcester will bear close inspection, for it shows much improvement, and I look to her to score.

The Alfriston Plate seems to rest between Vectis Lady, Trapper, and Orbazia.

VECTIS LADY,

who has been going well at home with Cotoneaster, may outstay Orbazia and win.

Stanley Wootton should win the opening "seller," the Channel Plate, with EASTERN SLAVE FILLY,

and E. Smith's mount,

SAWSTON,

is my choice for the Henfield Plate.

NEWMARKET NOTES.

HYPERION AGAIN PLEASES IN GOOD GALLOP : SELECTIONS.

NEWMARKET, Monday.

THE morning was dull and threatening during exercise hours, but several interesting spins took place. In a good stripped mile gallop Beatty's Rosenkavalier (P. Beasley) went better than Copra (Jelliss) and Craig Nahir (H. Beasley), and, although he has been beaten in his last two races, he ran sufficiently well to win a similar race to that which he won at Manchester in June.

Reine d'Ete gelding went well in a good five furlong spin with New Leaf (H. Beasley), Warship (P. Beasley), Garrionella filly (Jelliss) and Jeruel (Parsons), and if he is sent to contest the Juvenile Selling Plate at Brighton on Wednesday it would not be policy to leave him out of the calculations.

The Hon. George Lambton gave Fairyhill, Lavendula II., Fines Herbes and Complacent, at intervals, nice five furlong spins. The last-named will be seen out for the De Warrenne Handicap at Lewes on Friday, and the track should suit her.

Pricket, who disappointed in the Liverpool Cup, was given a nice gallop over one mile, but more interest was centred in the work done by the St. Leger colt, Hyperion, who was led by Servus (Mr. Cottrill) in a nice pace gallop over one mile and a quarter, and he again pleased. Highlander had the companionship of Canaletto, and moved well in a similar spin.

C. Leader took the top sheets off Light o' Love and Double Arch and sent them one mile at a striding pace. Both are engaged in the Brighton Cup on Wednesday, and, being in different ownership, both may run.

Peace Pact moved well in a similar gallop with Quartz. Considering that it was her first attempt this season, she ran very well in the Vyner Handicap at Hurst Park recently, and as the season advances she will improve.

Noel and "Boxer" Cannon, with Felix Leach and Hamshaw, had a mixed five furlong spin with the following animals—Candle Deck (Wells), Phenick, Royal Brocade (R. Jones), Nectarine, Lady Eloi filly and Despotic.

I liked the way Royal Brocade acquitted herself, and she is now coming into form. I noticed how well she ran behind Figaro in the Spring Hall Plate at our July fixture, and she should shortly register a winning bracket.

Suspense impressed in a good nine furlong spin with Barkby Holt. Miss Clayton's mare is looking well in herself. She has not run since she found Tom Tit III., at a difference of 3lb., too good for her at the Ripon May fixture, and shortly, when we have yielding going, I shall expect her to pick up a race.

We shall have ten runners at Brighton. Danish Blue and will be seen out for the Downs Maiden Plate, and I prefer the latter.

Carus and Sou'-Wester are in good trim for the Brighton Stakes, but I intend to plump for who has 2lb. less than when he won the race last year, and ran well in his race at Goodwood.

SAWSTON

runs in the Henfield Selling Plate, and will give a good account of himself.

We have three fancied candidates running for the Marine Plate. Golden Legend just failed to beat Mardina at Worcester, while Devineress, after winning at Epsom, failed in her next attempt, but, nevertheless, ran well. Outrider ran a good fourth for the Newark Handicap at Nottingham, but I advise the support of

and expect

TRAPPER,

who finished fourth in the Liverpool Cup, to take the Alfriston Plate.

FROM THE GREYHOUND TRACKS.

THE DERBY TRIAL STAKE.

WELL PHIL'S VICTORY AT SHELBOURNE PARK.

At Shelbourne Park last night Well Phil won the Irish Derby Trial Stake. The Louth dog led all the way, and, coming with a strong burst in the straight, beat Tiger Tom by four lengths. Good Silver had too much pace for opponents in the Sandymount Sprint, and Butler's Gift just got up in the last few strides to win the Clonmel Stake by half a length from Coming Brigade. Details:—

DUBLIN STAKE—Mr. P. Brennan's bd. b. BAB (5) (Lawyer's Fee—Lady Moone), 4 to 1, 1; Mr. P. J. Smith's SIGNET SEAL (2), 2 to 1, 2; Mr. M. Kiernan's FOXY WAY (4), 5 to 1, 3. Also ran—Castleve Maid (6), 2 to 1; Princess Anna (1), 4 to 1; Castle Flyer (3), 3 to 1. Four lengths; same. 31.12 secs.

CELTIC HURDLE—Mr. J. F. Geoghegan's bk. d. FALCON'S NEST (1) (Beauty's Raven—Reckon Not), 4 to 1, 1; Mr. B. O'Doherty's FEALE SKIPPER (4), 5 to 2, 2; Mr. G. Downey's DUSKEY CUTLET (3), evens, 3. Also ran—Flying Huntsman (6), 3 to 1. A distance; a head. 33.64 secs.

SANDYMOUNT SPRINT (355 yards)—Mr. M. O'Connell's w. bd. d. GOOD SILVER (6) (Golden Gauge—Haymen's Choice), 3 to 1, 1; Mr. J. Sherry's CONNIE'S PET (4), 6 to 1, 2; Mr. P. Maguire's PLEASURE IN STORE (3), 5 to 2, 3. Also ran:—Gentle Dick (1), evens. Three lengths; one length. 20.60 secs.

IRISH DERBY TRIAL STAKE—Mr. J. Wells's bd. d. WELL PHIL (5) (Bottle—Blue Bride), 3 to 1, 1; Mr. P. McKenna's TIGER TOM (4), 5 to 1, 2; Mr. A. McKeever's MIDDLE DICK (1), 7 to 2, 3. Also ran:—Viking (2), 6 to 1; Reuter (6), 2 to 1; Roi Oitoi (3), 7 to 1. Four lengths; three lengths. 30.85 secs.

SHELBOURNE HURDLE—Mr. F. H. Blake's bk. d. CUTLET'S DOONANE (1) (Mutton Cutlet—Doonane Girl), 5 to 4 on, 1; Mr. J. Barry's INCHITERRACE (6), 4 to 1 agst., 2; Mr. J. Conroy's BORDER BEAUTY (4), 6 to 1, 3. Also ran:—Lady Go Right (3), 3 to 1. Six lengths; a head. 32.35 secs.

CLONMEL STAKE—Mr. P. Smith's BUTLER'S GIFT (3) (Porthos—Glenavon), 3 to 1, 1; Mr. J. Colclough's COMING BRIGADE (5), 5 to 1, 2; Messrs. O'Donnell and McHugh's JUST A FREAK (4), 4 to 1, 3. Also ran:—Parting Kiss (1), 4 to 1; Kilbricken Hero (2), evens. Half a length; a head. 31.70 secs.

CITY PLATE—Mrs. O'Neill's bk. d. OLD PARKITE (1) (Beaded Dick—She's Next), 6 to 4 on, 1; Mr. P. J. Murray's MODERN GIFT (5), 7 to 1 agst., 2; Mr. T. Reilly's MOOLTAN (3), 8 to 1, 3. Also ran:—Family Pet (2), 7 to 1; Executor (4), 4 to 1; High Line (6), 10 to 1. One length; three lengths. 31.82 secs.

VALUABLE DOG INJURED.

Reenagros Eagle, a valuable greyhound, the property of Mr. Con Randles, Kenmare, while taking part in the first heat of the Scurry Gold Cup at Clapton, and leading, had the misfortune to break the hock of his hind leg. He held the best record this year in the Dublin tracks for the 355 yards sprint.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

LIKELY HORSES AT BRIGHTON.

BARRAGE MAY WIN THE STAKES.

LONDON, Monday Night.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

THE second half of what is called the "Sussex Fortnight" begins to-morrow at Brighton. The racing there does not promise to be very good; for the days have gone when good horses were sent to Brighton to run for the Stakes and the Cup.

There is a fairly good entry of second-class handicappers for the Stakes to-morrow. Chorist, who is top weight, won this race last year, and it is not unlikely that he may win it again.

Light of Love has not been sent from Newmarket with the other likely runners to-morrow, so we may count on his absence here. Stanley Wootton's three-year-old, Melliford, has several engagements in the week, but it is likely that he will miss this race.

The best in the race may be BARRAGE and Chorist, and I choose the former.

There are some good sprinters in the Marine Plate, and the best of them may be DEVINERESS, who put up remarkable time when she won at Epsom in June.

The Downs Maiden Plate may be won by MISS DEWAR.

ALL-IRELAND CLUB.

HANDBALL.

FINALS AT BALLYMUN.

An excellent programme was got through at Ballymun. The feature was the final of the All-Ireland senior soft ball doubles between Dublin and Carlow. The latter required one game to win, as they had the better of the other half at an earlier date.

Dublin won the opening game, but the Carlow pair got going in the second, and won a great set-to.

The final of the city and county hard ball was won by J. J. Kelly, who defeated Morgan Pembroke. The deciding factor was the superb tossing of Kelly, which enabled him to win many aces outright. Details:—

Final of All-Ireland S.B. Doubles—McDonald and Stapleton (Carlow) beat C. Ryan and J. Brennan (Dublin)—18-21, 21-15.

Final of City and County Senior H.B. Singles—J. J. Kelly beat M. Pembroke—21-11, 21-4, 21-12, 21-10.

Final of All-Ireland Junior S.B. Singles—J. Ryan (Carlow) beat J. Lynch (Dublin)—21-18, 13-21, 11-21 21-3.

Final of City and County Junior H.B. Doubles—A. Shanley and J. O'Brien (St. Mary's) w.o.; P. Byrne and J. O'Reilly (Gate) scr.

Friendly—A. Shanley and J. O'Brien beat T. Harvey and P. Duggan—21-8, 21 14, 21-17, 21-14.

GOLF.

P.G.A. AND ITS FREE STATE MEMBERS.

PROPOSED ALTERATION OF THE RULES.

BY OUR GOLF CORRESPONDENT.

UP to 1922 the Irish members of the Professional Golfers' Association (England) held, alternately in Ulster or Leinster, a qualifying competition for a place in the competition proper for the 1,000 guineas tournament, which is the biggest prize competed for by the members of the Association.

Soon after the constitution of the Irish Free State, however, some busybody on the Committee of the Professional Golfers' Association discovered that the Irish Free State was a Dominion, and questioned the right of the members resident in the Irish Free State, under the Association's rules, to compete in the qualification rounds in the Irish section. Legal opinion was obtained by the P.G.A., and it was against permitting the existing arrangement to continue.

The Free Staters would have to travel to England to take their chances in the "foreign" section. The decree was promulgated and given effect to, and since then the Irish qualifying competition has been held in Ulster and confined to the members of the Association resident in Northern Ireland; for, needless to say, apart from other considerations, the professionals of the Free State clubs could not afford the time and the money to compete in the section for "foreigners."

NO DIVIDING LINE IN IRISH GOLF.

More than once the Irish Field Golf Correspondent commented on the injustice which these professionals were thus subjected to. It was pointed out that, for the purposes of golf, Ireland had not been broken up; that no dividing line had been drawn by the Golfing Union of Ireland, and never would be, and that it was preposterous for the P.G.A. to make "foreigners" of Irish professional golfers for no reason but that they were citizens of the Free State.

When John Burke, of Lahinch, was selected to play for Britain in the Walker Cup match in America last year his qualifications were likewise discussed in certain golf circles in England, but before the Irishman's selection the position must have been carefully considered. No official notice was taken of the objections which were, of course, groundless. Burke was a member of a club affiliated to the G.U.I.

Recently, however, the situation, so far as the Free State professionals and the P.G.A. are concerned, has been eased somewhat. The selection of John Burke to play for Britain, and the magnificent achievements of William Nolan at Southport and St. Andrews, together with the closer association of the English and Irish professionals through the medium of the Open Championship of Ireland and the International matches between the professionals of Ireland, England and Scotland, have not been lost on the British professionals.

I have been informed that after the next annual meeting of the P.G.A. the ban on the "Irish foreigner" will probably be lifted, to a certain extent at all events.

The idea is to alter the rule of the P.G.A. and to make provision for the allocation of two places to the Irish section, for which all Irish members of the Association will be eligible to compete.

It is not, I was informed, the intention for the present to hold the qualifying competition in the "South", but, even so, it is gratifying to know that after this year the Free State "foreigners" of the P.G.A. are to be reinstated, as it were, to their rightful position as Irish golfers and Irishmen.

I should mention that these professionals strongly resented being labelled foreigners by the P.G.A., although the latter had no alternative, on the reading of its rules, but to transfer them to the foreign or Dominions' section.

SARAZEN WANTS A "DAVIS CUP."

Gene Sarazen, winner last year of the Open and the American Open titles suggests, "an international golf tournament patterned after the Davis Cup of tennis, in which the golfing countries of the world (Great Britain, America, Japan, France, Argentina and others) could meet in a real international contest.

"I am sure it would be a great attraction," says Sarazen, who also says that there is an apparent drifting apart of amateurs and professionals, especially in England.

"I wish something could be done to bring them closer together again," he says. "I would like to see, and I believe it might be the solution of the problem, matches annually played between the British Ryder Cup team and the American Walker Cup team, and the British Walker Cup side and the American Ryder Cup team."

Sarazen, speaking of his recent trip to England, says that the St. Andrews course is undoubtedly the finest in the world. "I wish," he said, "that every man who plays golf could play St. Andrews once. It would be a real treat for him."

CHANGES ON ENGLISH XI.

TEAM TO MEET WEST INDIES IN THIRD TEST MATCH.

THE England team for the third Test match with the West Indies, commencing at Kennington Oval, on August 12th, has been selected as follows:—

D. R. Jardine (Surrey) (capt.), C. F. Walters (Worcester), R. E. S. Wyatt (Warwickshire), C. S. Marriott (Kent), Hammond (Gloucester), Ames (Kent), James Langridge (Sussex), Verity (Yorkshire), Nichols (Essex), Clark (Northamptonshire), Bakewell (Northamptonshire).

Twelfth man—Townsend (Derbyshire).

There are three changes from the team which played at Manchester in the second Test match—C. S. Marriott, Nichols and Bakewell, replacing R. W. V. Robins, Sutcliffe and Macauley, all of whom are suffering from either injuries or illness. Marriott receives recognition for the first time, but the rest of the team have previously played for England. With the exception of Bakewell, the side is composed of players who took part in the Gentlemen v. Players match at Lord's. In that match Nichols and Clark, the two fast bowlers, formed an excellent combination, and now they will have the assistance of C. S. Marriott, Verity and James Langridge, with Wyatt and Hammond to provide additional help if necessary.

The loss of Robins considerably weakens the batting, while, with Marriott and Clarke in the team, the fielding is not so strong as usual. Five of the side figured in the two previous Tests, namely, Jardine, Walters, Hammond, Ames and Verity.

THE M.C.C. TEAM TO TOUR INDIA.

The following players have been invited to tour India with the M.C.C. next winter:—

D. R. Jardine (Surrey) (capt.), C. F. Walters (Worcester), B. H. Valentine (Kent), R. E. S. Wyatt (Warwickshire), W. H. Levett (Kent), James Langridge (Sussex), Nichols (Essex), Verity (Yorkshire), Townsend (Derbyshire), Bakewell (Northamptonshire), Clark (Northamptonshire), Gregory (Surrey), Paynter (Lancashire), Barnett (Gloucester), Ames (Kent) and another.

Hammond and Sutcliffe would have joined the team, but asked to be excused, as they need rest following the strenuous tour in Australia. D. R. Jardine has already accepted the captaincy of the team, which sails on September 22nd, and leaves Colombo on the return journey on March 7th. Major E. W. C. Picketts will act as manager to the team.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT

DUBLIN QUIET.

GUINNESS FIRM.

Dublin Stock market was quiet and uninteresting. In the great majority of quotations former prices were repeated. Free State Funds and Land Bonds were all unchanged, and War Loan was again dealt in at 98⅞. Three per cent. Land lost ⅜ at 82½.

Dublin Corporation stocks were dealt in at last prices, and the new Cork Loan was 1½ and 1¼ prem.

The only change in Banks was a fall of threepence in Nationals to 43s. 3d.

Rails and Trams showed no change.

Guinness units were well supported, and closed at the former price of 98s. 3d. The report figures were favourably commented upon. Alliance Gas repeated 12 11/16, and the Debs. rose ½ to 95. Burke Debs. were ⅛ better at 6⅝.

The Industrial market was dull and weaker generally. The best spot was B.A.T., which rose 1s. 9d. to 109s. All the other quotations—Dunlops, Coats, Courtaulds, Imperial Tobacco and Chemicals—showed small losses of a few pence.

The Harrington Goodlass Wall Prefs. were unchanged at 11s. 3d.

LONDON WEAK.

BRITISH FUNDS REACT.

There was not a great deal of business passing in the London Stock markets yesterday, and when the modest accumulation of week-end orders had been arranged most departments relapsed into a state of almost complete inanitation, and the general trend of values was adverse to holders. The losses sustained were, however, with a few exceptions, of modest proportions, while bright features were not altogether lacking, several of the Kaffir Mining issues jumping forward smartly. The outstanding feature in the Stock markets yesterday was provided by the commencement of dealings in the new Australia Commonwealth 4 p.c. Registered Stock, 1943-48. Allotment to cash applications were scaled down to 50 p.c., and the price opened at ¾ prem. The announcement of the new Canadian issues was very favourably received in City circles.

*Close in New York, 4.48⅜.

Gilt-edged securities finished slightly easier. Consols 2½ p.c. shed ¼ to 72¼, with the 4 p.c. 1/16 down to 107 3/16, while Local Loans lost ¼ to 84¼, with War Loan 3½ p.c. easing to 98 13/16 against 98 15/16 at the week-end. The Conversion Loans also went off the turn, but Victory Bonds were an exception, and they improved ⅛ to 109⅛. Indias were quiet and steady. The feature among Foreign Govt. stocks was the sharp appreciation in Argentine issues, following upon the more reassuring advices over the week-end. Otherwise little of interest transpired, and the few movements resulting were irregular in character and of modest proportions. British Rails, following upon the sharp burst last week-end opened on a decidedly quieter note, and in most instances the trend was adverse to holders. Among Colonial and Foreign Rails the Buenos Ayres issues improved for the same reason as influenced the Argentine Government Stocks, but "Canpacs" lost ⅝ to 17½. Others were little changed.

Business in the Industrial section was on a small scale, and in most instances prices were easier. Dunlops, Molasses, Fords and the Celanese issues all lost the turn. Distillers and Watneys were other weak spots, the latter finishing exceptionally weak owing to the unexpectedly heavy reduction in the Deferred dividend. Elsewhere Rubber shares lost fresh ground, and Oils went off. Mines, on the other hand, displayed a rather firmer front, with Kaffirs attracting interest.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

WATNEY DEFERRED WEAK.

With the holiday season now in full swing, little disposition was seen to extend commitments in the Industrial market yesterday.

The volume of business passing was considerably less and prices generally displayed a reactionary tendency in the absence of fresh buying orders. Support, however, was not entirely lacking. A weak feature was provided by Watney Defd. on the final dividend declaration.

After a steady opening, Trans-Atlantics developed weakness on adverse advices from Wall street. Selling continued after official hours in the "street," final prices being about the lowest touched.

Wireless stocks were subject to scattered selling.

Motor and Transport shares made a rather mixed showing, with Fords easier at 24s. 6d.

Electricals generally remained on the quiet side.

Iron, Coal and Steel descriptions seemed uncertain in their movements.

With a few exceptions, Breweries had a heavy appearance, the market being overshadowed by the unexpected heavy reduction in the Watney Defd. dividend. The shares mostly concerned were marked down 5s. to 46s. 6d. Distilleries lost 1s. 1½d. at 78s. Guinness were comparatively steady on the satisfactory results, while Mitchell and Butlers closed firm on profits figures and dividend.

Although slightly easier, the Tobacco leaders made a satisfactory showing in the circumstances. "Bats." lost the turn at 109s., and Carreras "A" reacted to 7 11/16. "Imps." were well maintained at around last Friday's closing level of 106s. 6d. Gallahers hardened a few pence at 48s. 6d.

There was little fresh business passing among Textiles, and prices were inclined to sag from lack of interest.

Rayons were subject to scattered sales, particularly the Celanese issues.

In the Miscellaneous department there were rather more sellers than buyers about. Harrisons and Crosfield Defd. reflected the decline in Rubber shares, and closed 2s. 6d. down at 72s. 6d. Dunlops also slipped back 9d. to 34s. 7½d. Profit-taking sales were also reported in London Bricks, which eased to 69s. 3d. Spillers were similarly affected, the Ord. receding to 52s. 9d. and the Defd. to 34s. 6d. Imperial Chemicals lost the turn at 20s. 9d.

OIL SHARES EASIER.

Little business in Oil shares had accumulated over the week-end, and few orders were received during the course of th day. Dealings were consequently on an extremely small scale, and prices closed slightly easier in the absence of support.

Wall street being closed on Saturday, there was no guidance to dealers from this source, and they were not inclined to increase their commitments to any extent. This led to a lowering of quotations on the appearance of a seller, there being few buyers about.

No support was forthcoming from the Continent, neither Paris nor Brussels taking much interest in their favourites. Quotations sagged during the morning, although few shares were offered, and showed little change during the afternoon, but the tone was slightly steadier towards the close.

RUBBER SHARES DULL.

Dull conditions pervaded the Rubber Share Market, and values were lowered further all round during the morning. Subsequently a rather firmer tendency developed, in sympathy with the improved tone which became evident in the raw material department; but, while share quotations rallied, the initial losses were not entirely made good, and a dull tone ruled in the raw material market at the opening, but subsequently the tone improved. Spot and August sold from 3 11/16d. to 3 13/16d. per lb., with October to December improving from 3 13/16d. to 3 15/16d. per lb., and January to March from 3 15/16d. to 4d. per lb. In accordance with expectations, London stocks of rubber were further reduced by 885 tons, while Liverpool stocks were 37 tons lower on the week.

LONDON "STREET" MARKET.

A large crowd again assembled in Shorters Court last night, but business was on a considerably smaller scale. Following the lead of America, the principal trans-Atlantic counters displayed general weakness. Nickels were offered freely, and closed ⅜ down at 19⅛. Tractions fell 3/16 to 14⅝, while Radios finished ¼ lower at 8⅜. Both Steels and Drugs were depressed at 55½ and 51½ respectively. Canadas fell ½ to 17.

Home Industrials were neglected. In the Mining section Rhodesian Selection Trust lost 3d. to 11s. 3d., and a fair turnover was seen in East Rand Consolidated at 16s. 3d.

Six persons were killed and thirty injured as a result of a quarrel between two children of rival families in Elyat, Upper Egypt. The children's quarrel developed into a general fight between all the members of both families, and rifles, knives and bottles were freely used.

LONDON MINING MARKET SLOW.

WEST AUSTRALIANS IN DEMAND.

Brisk dealings in a few specialities gave the Mining market an appearance of activity yesterday, but trading, on the whole, remained quiet.

Among West Australians, Lake Views and Wiluna changed hands frequently, but did not remain at the best.

Base metal shares were affected by the declines in metal prices. Tin fell £1 2s. 6d., lead 8s. 9d., and copper and spelter 6s. 3d. each.

Rhodesian copper shares sagged again, although business was at a very low ebb, and a few Tin shares closed slightly easier.

The Kaffir market was dominated throughout the day by East Rand Consols. Dealings in them started at about 9.30 before many dealers had arrived, and it was difficult to fix an opening price. The outburst of activity in the shares followed the announcement that the company has acquired the mineral rights over the farm Spaarwater yesterday. Further announcement also stated that drilling had been started on farm Maraisdrift, which was taken over from the Rhodesian Corporation. At the close an advance of 4s. 6d. was shown at 16s. 3d.

Trading in other Kaffirs was far from brisk, although the tone kept quite firm. In addition to its purchase of East Rand Consols, Johannesburg sent buying orders for Daggas East, Daggas and Nigels, while the same centre also took some West Witwatersrands at the reduced level reached in London. Closing prices:—

DUBLIN WOOL SALES.

MESSRS. GANLY AND SONS.

Messrs. Ganly and Sons last Friday offered a catalogue containing approximately 500,000lb. of home-grown wools to a large and representative attendance of home, cross-Channel and Continental buyers. Trade ruled brisk throughout, cross-breds and the finer grades being in particularly good demand. Fully 80 per cent. of the catalogue was sold at prices showing an increase of from 10 to 15 per cent. over June rates.

Following are the quotations:—

	Washed.	Greasy.
Downs	10d. to 11d.	7½d. to 8d.
Fine Bred	7½d. to 8½d.	5½d. to 6½d.

Scotch	5d. to 5½d.	4½d. to 5d.

Messrs. Ganly's next auction will be held on September 13.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

FOUR MILLION CAPITAL.

The Second Covent Garden Property Company, which was foreshadowed by Mr. Philip E. Hill at the recent annual meeting of Covent Garedn Properties, has been registered with a capital of £4,000,000 in £1 shares. At the meeting Mr. Hill announced that it was not intended to make any immediate issue, but as favourable opportunities occurred additional properties would be acquired. He also said that negotiations were proceeding for the purchase of certain properties and that shareholders would be given the opportunity to participate in the new enterprise.

R.M.S.P. VOTING TRUSTEES.

The duties of the two voting trustees of the Royal Mail Steam Packet group of companies, Brigadier-General Sir Arthur Maxwell and Sir William McLintock, have been formally terminated. The voting trustees were appointed in 1930 to assume voting control and to prepare a scheme of arrangement. When the scheme of arrangement was sanctioned by the Court in June, 1932, the duties of the voting trustees were very largely reduced, but they continued to function for the settlement of various details. Both Sir Arthur Maxwell and Sir William McLintock remain on the boards of a number of the associated companies as ordinary directors.

NEW WEST RAND COMPANY.

Randfontein Extensions, Limited, has just been registered at Pretoria with a capital of £50,000 in 5s. shares to work areas acquired from the Union Investment Corporation on the farm Luipaards Vlei No. 10, adjoining the Randfontein Estates' property. The extent of the new company's property is about 10,000 acres.

THIRTY KRONER TO THE £.

A meeting of some 800 farmers, at Aarhus, Denmark, has, with very few dissentients, passed a resolution in support of the L.S. Organisation (Farmers Amalgamation), recommending a so-called currency strike in which agricultural producers and importers will refuse to exchange sterling cheques for Danish kroner until the krone has been cut down in value to 30 to the £. "Their action will naturally be met with all the opposition the Government is able to exert," said M. Hansen, the Danish Minister of Finance. "Where the krone now stands there it must naturally be maintained." The farmers, in their campaign against the krone, went to the length, last Sunday, of organising a milk production strike in South Jutland.

WATERFALL RUBBER.

At a meeting of the First Mortgage Debenture stockholders of the Waterfall (Selangor) Rubber Estates, held recently, it was resolved that a committee of not more than five persons be constituted for the purpose of conferring with the Board and settling a scheme for the reorganisation of capital. It was decided that Messrs. L. A. Stride, P. G. Ross Hume and A. Clapperton be the first members of the committee, with power to add to their number. The issued capital of the company is £335,148 in 2s. shares. For the year to 30th September last there was a loss, after providing £14,778 for debenture interest, of £19,731, and the credit brought in was reduced to £3,877, which was carried forward. The Seven per Cent. First Debenture stock outstanding at 30th September last was £191,052. In December, 1930, stockholders agreed, inter alia, that interest should not be enforceable until 28th July, 1933.

COMPRESSED PAPER PACKING.

It is announced in connection with the recent issue by Compressed Paper Packing that the time allowed for renouncing allotment letters has been extended to August 8, and that divided allotment letters will be graned up to August 5.

SWEDISH TRADE.

Hambro's Bank Journal contains the following report on Swedish trade:—In the opinion of "Svensk Travarutidning" there is no doubt that the timber market will be quite able to maintain the improvement reached during the last few months. Demand has slightly fallen off since the settlement of the Anglo-Russian dispute, although it is still satisfactory for the time of the year. Pulp sellers are taking up a very firm attitude, according to "Svensk Pappersmassetidning," and refuse to accept lower prices. The Sulphite Pulp Suppliers, an organisation of producers in Sweden, Norway, Finland, Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia and the Memel district, have decided to continue collaboration for 1934. It was reported that from the producers' point of view the situation has improved. There has been no great change in the paper market, but the situation may be said to be fairly satisfactory.

U.S. MARKET COLLAPSE.

The National City Bank of New York, in the cabled summary of its monthly review for august, says that the break in the prices of stocks, grains and cotton during the latter part of July may engage the public attention in a greater degree than its economic importance warrants. Influenced by the natural business recovery, the continuous depreciation of the dollar in the foreign exchanges and the measures adopted under the Industrial Recovery and Farm Relief Acts, the bank finds it natural that far-sighted business men should anticipate their requirements for commodities, and that securities should advance on both investments and speculative buying. It was also natural that a considerable number of marginal buyers lacking funds for their operations or relying upon less orders for protection should push the advance too fast and far. The danger that speculation would be overdone had been forseen in all conservative quarters., and President Roosevelt last May warned against the "ballyhoo route to prosperity"; now that an early reaction has come, however, it would be difficult to show that any but the speculators have suffered greatly from their mistakes, and the latter have taken the most appropriate and efficacious punishment that could possibly be devised.

HIBERNIAN BANK MEETING.

BURDEN OF HEAVY TAXATION.

NO SIGN OF IMPROVEMENT.

The ordinary general meeting of the Hibernian Bank, Ltd., took place yesterday afternoon at the head office, College Green, Dublin. Mr. Thomas Levins Moore (director) presided, in the absence, through illness, of the Chairman, Mr. M. F. Mahony.

The other directors present were:—Messrs. P. J. Brady, C. E. Lambkin, W. R. Nolan, C. H. O'Connor and Alfred Tennison Collins (general manager).

In moving the adoption of the half-yearly report and statement of accounts, Mr. Moore said that they had in their hands for some days past the report and statement of accounts for the half-year, and he felt assured that the general position of the bank and the result of the half-year's working might be viewed with satisfaction. Comparing the figures of the balance sheet with those for June, 1932, the deposit and current accounts showed an increase of £314,000, and, on the other side, the amount of the cash and investments taken together showed an increase of £550,000. They would observe that the cash in hand and with bankers was equivalent to about ten per cent. of their liabilities to the public, and the total of cash and investments (£7,430,000) bore the satisfactory proportion of sixty per cent. The premises account was being steadily reduced, and the allocation towards it of £5,000 out of the past half-year's profits, as recommended in the report, would bring it under £200,000.

INCREASED TAXATION.

"Our profit and loss account," continued the Chairman, "reflects the increased taxation which has still to be borne, although the hope had been held out to us that we would be relieved this year of at least some part of the extra burdens which were placed on us last year. The net profits (£43,313), although somewhat under those for the previous half-year, are £4,230 better than those for the corresponding period of 1932, when we had to bear the retrospective increase for 1931 in the corporation profits tax, in addition to the proportion of that tax for the half-year.

"We are, therefore, enabled, after allocating £10,000 to the reserve fund, bringing it up to £640,000, to recommend the reduction of the bank premises account by £5,000, and the payment of a dividend at the rate of eleven per cent. per annum, leaving a balance of £31,160 to be carried forward to next account.

THE OUTLOOK.

"It is a matter of common knowledge that almost every class of business has been restricted for some time past, and there is very little indication at the moment of any marked improvement in the near future. The present state of things calls for special care and watchfulness, pending a return to better conditions. You may rest assured that the directors will continue to give their close attention from day to day to the affairs of the bank, and that the loyal services of the staff in the furtherance of the bank's interests may confidently be relied on."

Mr. C. E. Lambkin seconded.

SHAREHOLDERS' COMMENTS.

Mr. J. J. Maguire, in supporting the motion, said that the statement was satisfactory, and he thought the shareholders as a whole ought to be satisfied that at such a time of depression eleven per cent. was being paid. The treatment of the banks in regard to taxation, he continued, was grossly unfair. They were serving the interests of the public, and yet they were selected for heavy taxation. The excuse was that the money was required for social services, but the community could not exist by dispensing money on social services.

Referring to the fact that the banks were the largest holders of railway stock, he said that it was a monstrous thing that they should have been so severely hit by the recent Railways Act. The interests of shareholders would not have been sacrificed in such a way, without any consideration, anywhere else except Russia. The balance sheet showed care on the part of the directors, and perhaps they should be thankful there was a dividend in view of the heavy taxation.

Mr. Gerald Tench said that to his mind there was nothing wrong with the accounts, except the one expression "war loan." He would eliminate that and substitute "national loan." Remarking that the one matter of serious consequence was the financial relations of the Free State with England, and that if England owed Ireland £140,000,000—or, according to Mr. de Valera, £400,000,000—nothing else was of any consequence, Mr. Tench proceeded to speak at great length on the subject of Anglo-Irish relations.

After some interruptions Mr. Tench resumed his seat, saying that he would hand his manuscript to the Press.

The report and accounts were unanimously adopted.

The dividend of eleven per cent., subject to income tax deduction, was approved on the motion of the Chairman, seconded by Mr. C. H. O'Connor.

A resolution of thanks to the directors and staff, moved by Mr. Tench and seconded by Mr. John Healy, was also passed.

CHEMICAL AND METALLURGICAL.

At the ordinary annual meeting of the Chemical and Metallurgical Corporation, Ltd., held yesterday, Dr. E. P. Andreae, the chairman, referred to the offer of the Imperial Chemical Industries. He said no exchange of shares appealed to their board as the most equitable solution of the difficulty. The chairman added that it was for each individual shareholder to make his decision. There was no resolution to be put on the subject of the offer up to date. The I.C.I. had received assents from about 70 per cent. of the shares required. The I.C.I. reserved the right to withdraw their offer, if not accepted, on or before August 24, 1933, by the holders of 90 per cent. in value of three classes of shareholders affected—Preference and Ordinary shareholders and Option Certificate holders.

MOTOR TYRE PRICE REVISION.

The principal tyre companies have agreed on a scheme for levelling up the prices of motor tyres which came into operation yesterday. An official of Dunlop's said to a reporter, "The scheme will mean a slight increase in the price of some of the tyres for the smaller type of car and a modification in the prices of those for the medium and large-sized cars. The alteration does not mean that an increase is applicable to all sizes. It is a general revision and levelling up."

POULTRY, CAGE BIRDS, DAIRY.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times the Poultry Correspondent says:—

> The waste of food is usually on farms where fowl are fed without any method. Soft mash should be fed in troughs either in the laying house, from which birds can be excluded, or, if outdoors, there should be a wire enclosure sufficiently close to prevent wild birds from entering. Grain may be fed either in clean straw litter in a scratching shed or in troughs on a plot of short grass. No more than the fowl will consume should be given; if there is any left, it should be immediately gathered up. In this way there can be no danger of sparrows or other wild birds getting any food. Scattering soft food on the dirty ground is often done, and this is not only wasteful, but also dangerous to the health of the fowl.
